It's been a year of Holstein family affairs

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MANHEIM — It wasn't another "father-son act," but it was still a family affair in the Holstein competition at the Manheim Farm Show Thursday afternoon.

And it took a whole year for the family to get their act on the local dairy show stage, too.

Winners of the grand and reserve championship in the large Holstein competition at Manheim were Dennis and David Kulp, sons of Robert and Ruth Kulp, Power Road, R1 Manheim.

Dennis, 23, had the grand champ and younger brother, David, 19, had the reserve.

The brothers were both ready to come on to the local Holstein showing scene at last year's Manheim Farm Show, but a sudden wind storm that tore up the dairy tent postponed their plans for a year.

"After showing mostly at the other end of the classes, we felt we were ready last year," David Kulp said.

"We felt we had some good entries last year and had a good chance."

But then the storm canceled the show.

In the meantime, Dennis bought his first "show cow," Stewhills Envoy Stacy, VG-85, at the Spring Promise Sale at the Guernsey Pavilion in April. Bred by Michael Stewart, Airville, York County, she went on to take Manheim's grand championship as a four-year-old.

The reserve grand champion, owned by David, is junior two-year-old, Kulp-Dale Jemini Babe, a home-bred.

So even though the Kulp brothers had to wait a year and the entry list increased sharply at this year's Manheim Farm Show due to the new pole barn facility, they were ready to do their "family thing."

Eastern's purchase highlights 60th year

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — It may be proper to celebrate a 60th anniversary with a diamond gift, but last week, Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative president Michael Donovan presented more than 750 members with some good news during their 60th Anniversary meeting.

Donavan told the group their co-op just received the green light from the New York State Agriculture Commissioner to proceed with their purchase of the co-op's first bottling plant.

Before the two-day meeting ended, Eastern delegates and their board overwhelmingly approved a resolution to oppose the 50-cent per hundredweight assessment on all milk shipped. Ironically, their guest speaker for the meeting was Edward Coughlin, director of USDA's dairy division, the department responsible for administering the amended dairy support program.

"We had been negotiating with Kraft Foods, for their Homer, N.Y. milk plant since last November," explained Eastern spokesman Len Zemaitis.

He noted the co-op needed state approval for liscense transfer. But after a recent hearing in which private dealers tried to block the purchase, the commissioner ruled in favor of Eastern.

"It's important for a co-op to own that plant," said Zemaitis. "Kraft has been gradually getting out of the activity of bottling milk."

According to Zemaitis, the bottling plant secures a market for nearly 100 Eastern shippers. The plant has been bottling under the Sealtest label and Zemaitis reported the co-op will continue bottling for Sealtest. The fluid product is then handled by 10 distributors.

The 60-year-old co-op, with a membership of approximately 3,500, originated as a bargaining tool for northeastern dairy producers. But a growing trend in marketing has changed all that.

"We're physically handling 84 percent of milk produced by members. That's up 50 percent from a year ago," Zemaitis reported.

Not including the recent Homer plant purchase, Eastern has accomplished a 50 percent increase in supply contracts with Kraft Foods which furnishes a market for an additional four million pounds of milk monthly to the Kraft Company.

Eastern's Leprino cheese plants average approximately 54 million pounds per month. In addition, International Cheese Corporation, operating a plant at Hinesburg, Vermont, earlier this year signed a 5-year supply contract with Eastern.

Just as their markets continue to grow, so does the co-op's concern over the pending 50-cent assessment, which will be levied nationally on December 1 of this year.

Governor proclaims Farm Women's Day

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — With a flourish of his black pen, Governor Dick Thornburgh signed a proclamation this week designating Oct. 14 as Farm Women's day in Pennsylvania.

That proclamation was the result of action taken by Marie Baughman, president of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women, to win recognition for the efforts of the more than 4,000 members in 189 local societies upholding the goals and philosophy of the agriculture tradition.

On hand at the Governor's offices in the Capitol for the ceremonial signing were state Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, state Farm Women's First Vice President Edith Diehl, Shippensburg.

According to Mrs. Baughman, also of Shippensburg, the idea was sparked by a group of her friends who asked about the background of the Society and their suggestion that the women should have their own day of recognition.

Pursuing that suggestion, Mrs. Baughman had the proclamation written up in official style and sent a copy of it to the Governor's office in early September.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Oct. 7
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Weak, although some improvement is reported. Discounting on both whole birds and parts is usually the only means of stimulating movement and most items are priced lower today. Most plants feel definite signs of improvement may be lacking with until mid next week.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices lower on U.S. Grade A at 42-46 cents with most plants open to further negotation.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva (000). Slaughter schedules continue heavy, although an occasional plant has no slaughter schedule today. Estimated 1,770,000; Actual 1,915,000; Actual 10/5 1,927,000; Average Weights 10/5 4.38 revised 9/28 4.36. Live supply & weight remain heavy - undertone continue weak and unsettled.

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, Oct. 7

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

OCT. 11-17, 1982

Indian Summer's a hummer.

Plant tulip bulbs now. . . Spy Mata Hari executed Oct. 15, 1917. . . New moon Oct. 16 (Sat.). . . Average length of days for the week, 11 hours, 8 minutes. . . Pilot Chuck Yeager broke sound barrier at 670 MPH, Edwards AFB, Oct. 14, 1947. . . Eleven Nazi war criminals hung Oct. 16, 1946. . . God gave us our memories so we might have roses in December.

Ask the Old Farmer: I recall an old neighbor of mine always smoked a clay pipe referred to as a "T.D." Do I remember correctly? If so, whence the initials? L.C., Boston.

We can answer part of your question. The old original clay pipes bearing the letters "T.D." were made in Scotland and the letters were the initials of the names of the two partners who owned the works. We don't recall the names.

Home Hints: Keep a piece of soap in your sewing box to use as a tailor's chalk

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Partly cloudy, warm, with a few showers, all week; turning cold during weekend.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Week is clear and quite warm; for weekend, partly cloudy, turning cold.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: To start, mostly clear, turning hot; cooler, rainy weekend.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Week brings clear skies, hot temperatures; at week's end, warm, with light rain.

Thursday, Oct. 7
Report supplied by USDA

CATTLE: Compared to last week slaughter steers and heifers closed 1.00 to 1.50 lower. Cows steady to 2.00 lower. Bulls 1.00 to 2.00 lower. Slaughter steers and heifers opened the week under pressure in face of a declining carcass and boxed beef trade. Light midweek supplies and an upturn in wholesale beef prices erased part of the early week's losses. Receipts this week about 2500 as compared to 1854 a week ago and 2227 a year ago.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: Choice 2-4, mostly 3's 1000-1200 lb. 55.00-56.00. Two loads 1075 lbs. 56.50-56.75. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 and Choice mostly 3 and 4's 950 1200 lbs. 54.00-55.00. Good and Choice 1-3 1350 lbs. 51.50.

Omaha Cattle

Thursday, Oct. 7
Report supplied by USDA

Weekly 51 Cattle Compared to previous week's close Slaughter Steers and Heifers ended the week fully 1.00 lower, after having been down 2.00-3.00 on Monday's liberal supply. Sharply reduced midweek receipts combined with a stronger undertone in the dressed beef trade to recoup much of the early week loss, and the week's trade ended on a healthy note. Overall finish continued quite attractive as far as dressing percentages and quality grades were concerned, but numbers of Yield Grades 4's still a problem. Consequently yield grade 2-3 cattle received by far the best interest and bids during the period. Cows 1.50-2.50 lower. Bulls steady.

Steers comprised 35 pct. of the week's receipts; Heifers 30 pct; Cows 6 pct; Feeders 28 pct. Four day receipts 9166, week ago 10,112, last year 10,941.

STEERS: At the close Choice 2-4 1050-1300 lbs. 56.00-57.50, several loads 57.75-58.00. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 1000-1150 lbs. 54.50-56.00. Few Good and Choice 2-3 1300 lb. Holsteins 50.00.

HEIFERS: Choice 2-4 950-1100 lbs. 54.00-56.00. Mixed Good and Choice 2-3 900-1050 lbs. 53.00-54.00.

Average of LS 214 detailed quotations for 900-1100 lb. Choice Steers 55.75, 1100-1300 lbs. 56.42. Average cost Steers 55.30, average weight 1131 lbs. as compared 58.89 and 1148 lbs a week ago. Average cost Heifers 53.48, average weight 998 lbs., compared 56.84 and 1001 lbs. a week ago.

COWS: High Cutter, Utility and Commercial 1-3 37.50-40.00. Cutter 37.00-38.00. Canner and low Cutter 35.00-37.00.

BULLS: 1-2 1100-1700 lbs. 47.00-52.00.

Get Ready To Lock-In Record Feeding Margins

Have you found yourself in the past expanding your herd when margins were high and feed costs low, only to find that when it was time to sell the finished hog, prices had dropped significantly because all your neighbors expanded when you did? Clayton feels the 1983 hog situation could be very similar to this scenario with strong fall prices in 1982 resulting in herd expansion. This will likely be followed with significantly lower prices into 1983. We will give you the evidence in this report.

Off the Sounding Board

By Sheila Miller, Editor

It's everybody's problem

In just one short month the townships of Caernarvon and East Earl in eastern Lancaster County will begin hearings on a most controversial subject — a proposed hazardous waste landfill.

Both of these townships will pass judgement on plans submitted by Envirosafe Services Inc. The township officials will have to vote yea or nay on whether to grant ESI a special exception in order to turn the old Narvon clay mine site into a home for hazardous waste.

Already there is a charged feeling stirring the local residents into speaking out against the proposed landfill. A sense of mutual need has brought together farmer and nonfarmer in a common effort — to stop the landfill which they feel threatens them.

Their cause has brought forth strong voices out of a normally quiet people — the Mennonites and Amish of the community. Together with their neighbors, these soft-spoken people are leaving no doubts in the minds of others that they are not happy with the idea of perhaps someday dealing with another Love Canal situation.

These individual landowners are not alone in opposing ESI's planned landfill. Just last Friday the Lancaster Environmental Action Federation went on record as "strongly opposed" to the landfill. And on Wednesday evening the Lancaster County Conservation District followed suit.

In citing their reasons for opposing the Narvon landfill, LEAF pointed out their belief that "much of the hazardous waste targeted for Narvon could be recycled or rendered harmless. The wastes are being buried in the ground simply because this is the least expensive means of disposal. We believe industry and government should redouble their efforts to encourage the reuse of these wastes which should be viewed as a valuable resouce — not just something to throw away. If waste volumes can be reduced by recycling, the need for landfill sites such as that proposed at Narvon would be greatly reduced."

The Federation also pointed out the fact that Lancaster County is the most agriculturally productive, non-irrigated county in the U.S. and therefore "is not the place for a hazardous waste landfill. There are many places in less populated areas where agriculture is not a major industry that would be suitable for such a facility."

Recalling the negative impact that the world-famous TMI nuclear reactor had on Lancaster County agriculture, as well as surrounding counties', it is not hard to fathom how consumers also could boycott food produced close to this hazardous waste site. Since this part of Lancaster County is experiencing an ever-increasing trend for truck crop production along with the traditional crops of corn, tobacco, and small grains, any food scare would inflict grave financial impacts.

Now you might be saying "Isn't that too bad for those unfortunate Lancaster County farmers who are unlucky enough to live next door to the Narvon clay mines?" But what's at stake here goes much deeper into the heart of agriculture than the misfortunes of just a few farmers.

Ever since the pioneers settled this nation, it has been the practice to take the best the land has to offer and then, when it's worn out and ruined, to move on to "greener pastures." Well, we ran out of virgin land many years ago and now we're forced to make do with what we've got.

But the competition for our land is so intense that we find farmers fighting factories and families just to hold on to their fertile cropland rather than succumbing to the monetary temptation of selling out at top dollar for an industrial site or a new housing development.

It's a proven fact that prime farmland also is prime land for just about every other use, including landfills. And after the first farmer gives in to the lure of the greenback dollar, others follow either because they too seek a windfall profit or because they no longer can tolerate the annoyance of big business right next door. And so it mushrooms as more farmland feels the biting teeth of bulldozers.

We Americans also are guilty of believing that "out of sight is out of mind." We bury our sorrows, our guilts, our pasts in hopes that they won't come back to haunt us. But, when we start burying potentially lethal wastes, the ghosts we fear will be real ones and not just figments of our imaginations. Reality will be in the form of contaminated ground water and surface water, and we won't be able to wake up from this nightmare and have it disappear.

That is why the Narvon fight is not just a Lancaster County issue. As industry produces more hazardous wastes than it can handle profitably, there will be increased pressures on all farming areas to serve as a convenient disposal site. Farmers will have to defend themselves against these intruders who will offer enticing financial gains in order to dump their "garbage" in the country.

Industry must be forced to deal with the wastes it creates and bear the cost of rendering it harmless. Although there are crys from industry as to what this additional expense will do to the cost of manufactured products, current estimates show the average business spends only one-tenth of one percent of its cost of doing business on getting rid of wastes. Even if that cost escalated to six-tenths of one percent, it would be worth it.

As one East Earl township farmer said, "I'd rather pay for it up front now, than a few years down the road have my kids paying the price with their health."

DELIVERANCE!
October 10, 1982

Background Scripture: Exodus 11 through 12.
Devotional Reading: Exodus 12:37-42.

If you have never participated in a Jewish Seder—the celebration of the Passover in a Jewish home—you have missed, I believe, a most valuable and moving spiritual experience. On several occasions I have been invited to share in the Seder of one or more of my Jewish friends and I have deeply valued those experiences.

Perhaps it may seem to you a bit strange or even unfitting for a Christian to celebrate the Passover. I have never felt that it was anything but most appropriate, for the passion of our Lord was inextricably bound to the Passover. The Christian understanding of the experience of salvation is tied to the meaning of the Passover.

It Is The Lord's Passover

Yet, even beyond that, I believe that the Passover is for all God's children. True, it is a Jewish celebration, but, as Exodus makes it clear, "It is the Lord's passover."

The Jews have preserved this sacred celebration down through the centuries and we are all indebted to them for doing so. We need to join them in celebrating God's deliverance of his children from tyranny to oppression.

In this particular case, Egypt was the oppressor and the people of Israel were the oppressed. But just as God delivered the people of the Jews from tyranny, so God is always at work in the world to accomplish deliverance for the captives. When we speak of God as our Saviour, we need to remember that a Saviour is a Deliverer. A God who saves his Children is a God who liberates them.

So the story of the Passover is a specific example of God's liberation of a particular people at a precise moment in history. But the Jew today knows that Passover does not stop with ancient Egypt and the Israelites. It is also the story of God's continuing work to free the world of bondage, oppression, and injustice. Wherever that is happening, there is Passover.

When Your Children Ask...

Political freedom, thus, is, at least in the Judao-Christian tradition, a religious or spiritual issue. It was one of the most important perspectives of this country's struggle for and attainment of independence. God does not intend for us to be merely holy. He also intends for us to be free.

And perhaps even more pertinent, having secured for us our freedom, he intends for all his children to be delivered from bondage. One cannot be in harmony with that aspect of God's will and be indifferent about the freedom of other peoples. If we are for freedom, we must be for freedom for all.

Moses tells the people, "And when your children say to you, 'What do you mean by this service?' you shall say..." It is a message that must be passed on from one generation to another. It is a revelation from God to his people that must go on and on and on: the will of God for all who are oppressed is DELIVERANCE!

To Manage Horizontal Silos

Most of our permanent silos are filled, but we do have some livestock and dairy producers that need to store silage in temporary structures. In many cases this is a trench or a bunker silo, mostly above ground. In these cases, it is very important to keep out excess water and air from the silage mass. This will require tightening down the plastic cover week by week as the silage settles. Also, surface water should be drained away from the silage area. There are cases that the black plastic is flapping in the wind during the fall months. This will usually result in larger amounts of spoiled silage.

To Check Bulk Feed Bins

We have a lot of bulk feed bins on our farms today. And at this time of the year and through the winter months, a lot of operators are bothered with the problem of condensation which causes feed caking and mold growth. This condition can be improved by insulating the bins that are outside. The insulation reduces the condensation because it reduces the rapid temperature fluctuation.

The cold mornings along with warm noon temperatures and then cool nights will cause moisture to form on bulk bin walls. The feed caking on the walls would likely contain mold. This moldy feed can reduce feed consumption and affect production. Also, feed medications, particularly poultry feeds, may not be effective in the presence of mold.

It's always a good idea to thoroughly clean bulk feed bins regularly, especially during this period of rapidly changing temperatures. After cleaning out the bin, it should be sprayed with a mold inhibitor and allowed to dry. Calcium propionate solution may be used as the inhibitor at the rate of 2 ounces per gallon of water.

To Beware of Grazing Hazards

Dairymen who are grazing their milking herds in woodlots, or in pastures with oak trees, should be on the alert for fallen acorns. Our veterinary science people tell us that acorns are somewhat toxic to cattle and will dry up most cows for the rest of their lactation. We are aware of many oak trees in pastures, and in most years there will be a pretty good acorn crop.

If the cows start eating these acorns, then the milk flow will be reduced drastically. Either the cows should be removed from the area, or someone should pick up the acorns before the cows are turned out daily.

To Prepare for Cold Weather

The month of October is a good time to get ready for freezing weather. Water cooled motors should be treated with anti-freeze Organization is attempting to collect old membership dues from farmers in Pennsylvania. The NFO has taken legal action against these farmers.

In an effort to defend themselves, these farmers hired lawyers to represent them.

It's a legal dispute between the NFO and these farmers.

Some of these farmers have hired attorneys associated with the PFA's Legal Service Plan which provides professional legal services and legal assistance exclusively for members of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association.

The PFA Legal Service Plans represent the individual farmers who hired them — not PFA.

It's strictly an attorney-client relationship.

Setting an example

The Airville Advisory Council of the York County Farmers' Association supports Joyce Bupp's stand on the use of alcoholic beverages at fairs. (On Being a Farmwife, Sept. 25, 1982) First it sets a poor example for our youth. Underage youth have become involved in this practice, and this leads to trouble for all concerned.

Second are dairymen promoting and advertising alcoholic beverages? It certainly is poor advertising for the dairy industry. When a dairy princess is promoting milk in center ring and an exhibitor walks up to the show ring with a "Lite" bottle.

Advertise and promote your own product by drinking milk. Drink and advertise milk to the public and the milk surplus may soon be a thing of the past. Think about it.

Bessie D. Hutschenreuter
Airville, York County

Justifiable argument

I read the editorial re: farming the right-of-way (Off the Sounding Board, Sept. 25). You do have a justifiable argument if farmers in fact plow up to the pavement.

I don't recall seeing this situation in my visits to your community. I have often commented on your area to people in other states and I attribute much of the beauty to the manner in which the farmers maintain the fields along the roads.

In my area in Virginia and where I grew up in South Carolina also, the right-of-way along roads is not farmed, grows up in bushes and briars and eventually becomes so entangled that one driving down the road cannot see the fields.

Eventually gullies form and the fields shrink. Why? First the highway department does not properly slope and seed the right-of-way and thereafter maintain it. Secondly, the farmer leaves the responsibility to the highway department and continues to move away from the road.

With cooperation from the highway departments and the local landowners, all roadways could be beautiful as well as useful.

100-percent agreement

I read with much interest the editorial in the Sept. 25 issue of Lancaster Farming, "Time to clean up our act," and would like to commend you for your thoughts and also say that I agree with you 100 percent.

Being a township supervisor as well as a farmer, it is easy for me to see and understand each and every situation that you mentioned in the article.

Earlier this summer I talked with State Grange Master Charles Wismer about printing such an article in the Advocate (Grange newsletter) and also the president of the local Pennsylvania Farmers Association, but nothing came of either visit.

Thanking you once again for your thoughts.

This Well-Built Manure Tanker Spreads An Excellent Pattern On Your Fields

Because this well-built manure tanker from US Farm Systems of Pennsylvania shoots the discharge slurry up, and baffles the spread down, you get an even coverage pattern on your fields. Better than most makes and models, we think.

In addition, the advanced design allows you to do the job with very few moving parts on the spreader. Gravity settles the slurry into the fan. The fan blows the slurry over the top of the spreader in a 6" pipe and out the back. So simple you know the unit will be easy to maintain.

So, let this well-built manure tanker spreader an excellent pattern on your fields today. Write for special prices now in effect and model information to US Farm Systems of Pennsylvania, 4020 Blue Ball Road, Nottingham, PA 19362, or phone 301-398-2948.

PAMD questions higher standards milk

HARRISBURG — The current push at state and national levels to increase solids in retail fluid milk may backfire and not help farmers, according to a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers.

"For some time, there have been informal drives to raise the standards for whole, low-fat and skim milks by making it necessary to add skim powder," said Henry R. Geisinger, Executive Vice Preisdent of the Harrisburg-based dealer group. "Now there is national legislation being considered to make it mandatory."

Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, a Senator from California not running again, added the proposal to the Agriculture Appropriations Bill which will be considered when Congress returns from its election recess. This will increase the cost to the consumer and can bring reactions against other dairy programs.

"Adding the powder could raise the price of milk from 3 cents to 10 cents a gallon, depending on the product," Geisinger continued, "which could bring more sales resistance than now is being felt in these days of economic distress. This doesn't appear to be the time to make the move."

Farm groups pushing for the higher standards are using the argument it would "increase the use of nonfat dry milk by about 300 million pounds per year," said the dealer representative. There does not appear to be any real nutritional advantage. The purpose merely is to help unload the surplus caused by year after year of over-production on the dairy farms of this nation, including Pennsylvania.

"The taxpaying public already is aware of the millions of dollars worth of surplus butter, cheese and powder now stored in warehouses across the country at a high cost," Geisinger continued.

"There has been considerable reaction in the press about this as production continues to mount. If you now raise the price of fluid milk there may be moves to do away with support pricing, CCC purchases and the rest."

"The increase in price definitely will affect sales. Will the gains from unloading that extra powder overcome Class I losses to Pennsylvania farmers? Will producers with relatively low solid milk be eliminated to keep dealer costs down? All these factors must be considered.

"There already are imitation milk products being pushed around the state with claims they are as good as the real thing. This is not true but the budget-worried mother may go for them thinking it is bettr than that bottle of pop.

"The completion from highly advertised soft drinks already is hurting milk sales, despite the fact that "nature's most nearly perfect food" with all nutrients costs less than the bubbly sugar water," he said. "Why raise the price even higher? The publicity resulting from milk hearings will bring more reactions from the press and those who seek publicity by knocking milk prices.

"The argument has been heard that in California, where the product is sold, sales are much higher than the rest of the nation. Untrue. There are numerous federal order markets which have a higher per capita consumption than California."

Rather than taking this route, the dealer spokesman said, why not fight to continue the school milk program where appropriations have been cut? Here, our youth learn to drink a great product which also has healthful benefits. It also helps sales. Or, why not push for more milk powder in bread and other products rather than changing from the traditional and most satisfactory milk composition found in the product now sold.

A BALING BREAKTHROUGH

Krone Round Balers

A totally NEW concept in baling machinery, the Krone line of round balers features an endless chain conveyor without belts. Closed chamber reduces problems associated with conventional belt type balers. Less horsepower required for the Krone Round Baler's fewer moving parts means great energy savings. Produces weather resistant bales with hard outer wrap and medium density core for better curing. Available in two models for bale diameters of five or six feet.

See for yourself... A KMN representative will be glad to arrange a demonstration. Call, or write today to your distributor:

If you plan on baling cornstalks this year and don't cherish the idea of fighting problems with your old baler, ask your dealer for a demonstration with a KRONE BALER.

Feed pigs economically

NEWARK, Del. — Feed accounts for over 60 percent of the total cost of producing a hog. This is about average for a farrow-to-finish facility. Lower capital investment operations may invest even more of their total production in feed.

"Good nutritional programs aren't cheap, but they are an investment in good performance," says University of Delaware Extension livestock specialist Richard Fowler.

He says an effective nutritional program: is adjusted to meet the needs of different classes of swine; uses high quality ingredients; and reaches pigs in the same formulations developed on paper.

A pig's nutritional needs differ with its age and condition. Feed programs must be adjusted to meet these needs, Fowler says. A gestating sow, for example, requires a different diet than a finishing hog. Both need similar amounts of protein, but vitamin and mineral levels differ because a pregnant sow consumes only four or five pounds of diet, while a 200-pound finishing hog eats seven or eight.

Recent research at the University of Delaware's Georgetown swine unit indicates it costs less to produce gain on a 20-pound feeder pig with an 18 percent protein diet than with a cheaper 14 percent one.

Nutritional requirements are best met using high quality feedstuffs, Fowler says. Grain should be No. 2 or better. It should be free of mold, undamaged by heat or insects, have minimum foreign matter, and contain no more than 12 percent to 14 percent moisture.

"If you must use inferior or damaged grain," he says, "feed it to finishing hogs weighing 100 pounds or more. Don't feed moldy or damaged feed to your breeding herd or to young pigs."

Use vitamin-mineral premixes within three months of purchase. Some vitamins are damaged by prolonged contact with certain minerals, so, if possible, buy premix with the two ingredients packaged separately.

High protein feed ingredients differ in quality because of processing techniques and the condition of the raw product. Fowler says the urease test is an effective way to tell whether soybeans have been cooked enough to destroy the trypsin inhibitor present in the raw bean. Unfortunately, though, there's no quick, easy way to determine whether the bean has been overcooked.

"Avoid soybean meal that has many burned flakes," he says. "It may have lower nutritional value."

Feed swine diets within two weeks after they are mixed, he advises. "Imagine eating your favorite breakfast cereal after it has been out of the package several weeks. Too often we expect our hogs to perform effectively on feed that's old, stale and possibly oxidized. Keep feeders clean and dry."

In implementing a good swine nutrition program, it's also essential to get diets to the feeder as formulated. The National Research Council regularly updates and publishes the nutrient requirements for swine.

"We know the importance of using quality feedstuffs. The challenge is putting them together in a palatable, productive diet," the specialist says.

Nutritional problems on commercial hog farms often occur because feed formulations on paper don't match those in the feeder, although they're supposed to be identical. Fowler says there are several possible reasons for this discrepancy.

"The person doing the mixing sometimes gets the wrong information," he says. "Communication is a great thing, but we often fail to use it. Review your feed mixing instructions or formulation sheet. Are you putting in what the diet lists?"

If someone else is mixing on the farm, it may be worthwhile to check their procedure. Errors in weighing or mixing contribute to poor diets. New grinder-mixers have accurate scales attached. Models without scales probably depend on volume to determine weight. But does the volume of grain weigh as much as it's supposed to?

Using the wrong premix and distributing ingredients unevenly when adding them in small amounts are other causes of poor swine diets. Is the premix being used for the class of swine listed? When growing/finishing premixes are used for the breeding herd, vitamin and mineral deficiencies usually result. Add smaller quantity ingredients near the end of the mixing process and blend for a short time — usually five minutes is enough.

Efficient swine production depends heavily on well formulated, carefully mixed diets. Review mixing practices to be sure they're giving accurate results. Fowler advises sampling the diet periodically and sending it to a feed lab for analysis of at least protein, calcium and phosphorus.

State Grange first sale features 46 head

LANCASTER — "We thought there was a real demand for good working cattle in state herds," explained State Grange Master Charles Wismer at the start of the Grange's first Bred Heifer Sale.

Wismer characterized the endeavor as "not a big production sale and not a dealer sale," but a chance for farmers to buy some above average cattle and a chance for others to sell off some surplus.

The idea for the sale, said Wismer, was conceived last fall and Grange members canvassed the state for selections as early as May of '82.

"We've had great response and cooperation from members. I feel we have some good cattle here today," Wismer noted.

Most of the Holsteins sold were Grange consignments. Wismer reported that approximately 80 percent of the black and whites were registered. The majority of the field included young animals with a few 5 and 6-year-olds.

In fact, 6-year-old Ker-Min Fury Teresa-Twin, consigned by Ker-Min Farms, Fleetwood, topped the sale at $2,225. The 87-point cow, bred to Char Sam Elevation Pabst and sired by Moon-Glow Fury Tidy, was purchased by Ida Jane and Leroy Plance of Wellsboro.

The sale averaged $1,000 on 46 head for an unofficial gross of more than $54,000, according to auctioneer and Granger Everett Kreider.

Lebanon dairyman Steve Wenger paid $2,000 for a 3-year-old Jo-Dan BE Ivan daughter, consigned by Dean Baity of Tioga County. The black and white is bred to Emma-Dean Arlinda C. Maverick.

Wenger bought a bred heifer for $1,675, consigned by Harold and Janet Shearer. His purchase, Jan-Hal Lester Kim is sired by Creek Bluff Elevation Lester and is bred to Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini.

Wismer also engaged in a bit of bidding. The State Grange Master owned the last bid of $1,600 on Bradstead Alex Elo Elaine. Bred to Rosmere Fury Ivan, the 4-year-old was consigned by William Bradford of Lewistown. — DT

Ida Jane and Leroy Plance flank their recent Grange purchase, Ker-Min Fury Teresa. The 6-year-old Hosltien bred to Char Sam Elevation Pabst topped the sale with a $2,225 bid. Don Trimble is at halter.

Top Holstein brings $2,700

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG — The top-selling cow at last week's Franklin and Cumberland County Holstein Sale was a three year old consigned by Rodney H. Crider, Chambersburg. Putting a Good Plus-83 and an outstanding pedigree together, this cow caught the eye of Gary W. Thoman, Dallastown, who paid $2,700 for her.

Antrim Spring Apollo Ioa is sired by Hilltop Apollo Ivanhoe, a 1974 All-American 2 year old and son of Osborndale Ivanhoe. Ioa's maternal side shows a record of Excellent 90 with 17,233 pounds milk and 626 pounds fat in 305 days.

The second-high selling cow was consigned by John and Ed Brake, Mercersburg and once again sold to Gary W. Thoman for $2,550. The 3-year-old daughter of Lawcrest Marvex-Twin carries records of Good Plus-81 as a 2 year old and more than 17,000 pounds milk on the maternal side of her pedigree.

Fred Potteiger, Carlisle, had his eye on Coldsprings Gabriel Jasper, the third-highest price of the sale and first animal on the sale block. Potteiger bought Gabriel Jasper for $2,500. She was consigned by Eldon and Rhoda M. Baum, Abbottstown. Gabriel Jasper is a second-calf heifer classified as Good-78. She is the daughter of Coldsprings Gabriel and on her maternal side carries a record of 20,600 pounds milk and 696 pounds fat.

Forty-one animals from the two counties made up the sale list, bringing in a total of $58,460 for a sale average of $1,425.

State Grange sale highlights

Check your fields' natural drainageways

LEBANON — This fall while harvesting corn and soybeans, take a good, long look at the natural drainageways and draws in your fields. If there is erosion in these areas you should consider the need for grass waterways, says Tom Thomas, conservation technician.

Made with gently sloping sides, waterways can be crossed easily with tractors. Power lifts will raise and lower plows and discs when crossing grass waterways. It is easier to put up with this small inconvenience than it is to repair expensive equipment damaged from bouncing across gullies when working fields.

Whenever you use a grass waterway you want a dense permanent growth of grass that will carry a flow of water without erosion. The best location for a waterway is a draw or swale that is part of the natural drainage pattern. These natural depressions require a minimum of shaping. The waterway should be shaped to contain the flow from the heaviest rain expected about once in ten years. The size of a waterway is determined by soil type, land use and size of drainage areas.

Technical assistance involving the design, construction and seeding of grass waterways is available through the Soil Conservation.

Pro 'fair goer' visits Manheim

MANHEIM — The Manheim Farm Show had a special visitor on Thursday.

He was Loren W. Beasor, of Orchard Park, N.Y., who is a professional ag fair goer.

The Manheim Farm Show marked his 114th agricultural fair this summer.

Since mid-June, he's already logged some 23,000 miles of driving to and from ag fairs in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Canada.

And he's not done yet.

"I started in the early 1960's when my mother and father were still alive," he said.

"We went to 13 that year.

"And it just sorta has grown since then."

For example in 1975, he went to 25; to 65 in 1975 and 89 in 1976.

But 1982 is his best year yet.

After a tour of the exhibits and animals at Manheim — his 114th fair since June 19 — he was off to Unionville. And he wants to hit Dillsburg, too.

In Lancaster County, his only miss was Solanco. He's been at as many as five in one day.

Beasor is a retired carpenter for the Buffalo Raceway. But he still helps at maintenance and putting bleachers together for the Erie County Fairgrounds.

He just can't seem to get away from fairs.

Is his 1982 fair attendance a world record?

"I got in touch with Guiness, but they say that you need a competitor to set a record," he said.

So, are there any competitors out there?

County fairs this year, the two top ...s were swept by father and son teams.

The Kulp cows also had the two top udder placings in the competition Thursday.

The brothers have some 16 head between them. Both have participated in 4-H and FFA.

The Kulp dairy farm totals some 78 milkers and about 70 heifers.

In Brown Swiss competition, Kerry Boyd, R3 Ephrata, exhibited a string of animals and had all but one of the entries in competition.

There were only two Ayrshires, with Ed Bressler, R2, Manheim, sweeping.

In all, there were some 100 entries in the Holstein competition at Manheim, which boasted the largest overall livestock competition of all local fairs this year.

Top Holstein placings by judge James Shaw, of Oley, with 4-H and FFA in parantheses, include:

Donna Hess, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hess, R4 Manheim, was crowned Manheim Farm Show Queen on Monday night.

Last year, Donna served as alternate to the Lancaster County Poultry Queen. Her family has an 85,000-pullet operation.

He's the 'Doctor J' of sheep showing

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MANHEIM — He's the closest thing to being an actual extension of the animal he's showing.

It's almost as if he and the animal were one living being in the show ring.

He's 19-year-old Jim Stauffer, of 345 Weaver Road, who has won scores of champion rosettes and showmanship trophies over the past six years or so in Lancaster area sheep competition.

And Thursday night he collected another pair of top awards.

His 100-pound Suffolk ewe, entered as a sale lamb, won the grand championship of the large sheep show at the Manheim Farm Show.

And, Jim was an easy winner in the senior showmanship competition.

Stauffer's close affinity to the animals he's showing must have a positive effect on the judge in the ring. And judge, Lee Wagner, Dorset breeder and graduate of Delaware Valley College from Bethlehem, was no exception at Manheim.

Stauffer sets up his lambs with amazing speed. He has all four feet planted in perfect position before most showmen have the first spotted.

And he has little tricks he constantly employs to get the best from his lamb. He's always chucking it under the chin to get the head up and best body extension.

And if you watch closely you'll see him tossing little tufts of grass up in front of the lamb to get the utmost in perkiness just at the right moment.

With the lamb under complete control at all times, Stauffer moves with a smoothness and grace that rivals the motions of the animal itself.

He's the "Doctor J" of sheep showing in Lancaster County and he had his "double dunk" again Thursday night.

Reserve championship of the show went to 14-year-old Pam Yeagley with a big Hampshire wether, that previously had taken best of show at Elizabethtown Fair.

She's the daughter of Elvin and Jestena Yeagley, of R1 Elizabethjtown.

Stauffer and Pam seem to be trading off the grand championships at Manheim in recent years. Stauffer took it two years ago, again with a sale ewe, and Pam won it last year.

Stauffer, a sophomore at Penn State in ag business and economics, took a semester off for showing this year – his last in 4-H. He has a flock of 30 or 40 and will be back at State in December.

All told, he's accumulated some 30 grand or reserve rosettes and about 10 showmanship honors.

LEAF opposes Narvon landfill

NARVON — Last Friday the Lancaster Environmental Action Federation went on record in strong opposition to the proposed hazardous waste landfill at the Narvon clay mines.

The following is their statement:

The Lancaster Environmental Action Federation is an organization that was formed in 1972 by persons who wanted to improve the environment of Lancaster County and assure a high quality of life for county residents.

During the past ten years, LEAF members have been involved in environmental issues at the local, county and state levels. They have dealt with a wide variety of concerns including water quality, solid waste management and recycling, nuclear power plant siting and operation, farmland preservation, energy conservation, air pollution, preservation of open space, soil conservation and environmental education. Getting involved in the siting of the hazardous waste facility at Narvon in Eastern Lancaster County was a natural follow up to our past activities.

For the past year, members of LEAF's Board of Directors have taken part in Envirosafe Services Inc.'s Narvon Public Participation Committee which has been meeting with representatives of the company to study the proposed hazardous waste site at the Narvon Clay Mine. Board members who took part in the committee for all or part of the past year include Richard M. Brown (president), John Chute, Tom Johnston, and Robert Crousc. LEAF was represented directly by Richard Brown and John Chute (alternate).

During that time we have attempted to understand and evaluate the data provided to us by Envirosafe's consultants and employees who were studying the suitability of the Narvon Clay Mine site as a repository for hazardous waste materials.

After participating in the PPC for the past year and after careful consideration of available data, the Lancaster Environmental Action Federation has decided to strongly oppose the siting of a hazardous waste facility at Narvon in Eastern Lancaster County. Our opposition is based on the following points:

1. We believe much of the hazardous waste targeted for Narvon could be recycled or rendered harmless. The wastes are being buried in the ground simply because this is the least expensive means of disposal. We believe industry and government should redouble their efforts to encourage the reuse of these wastes which should be viewed as a valuable resource–not just something to throw away. If waste volumes can be reduced by recycling, then the need for landfill sites such as that proposed at Narvon would be greatly reduced.

2. We believe that Lancaster County, the most agriculturally productive non-irrigated county in the United States, is not the place for a hazardous waste landfill. There are many places in less populated areas where agriculture is not a major industry that would be suitable for such a facility.

Although the Narvon site has soils that meet the regulatory requirements for landfilling, it was not picked because of its unique geological qualities, but rather because of its proximity to generators of hazardous wastes. Also, the state of Pennsylvania had a better "regulatory climate."

3. Our specific objections to the Narvon site as a repository for hazardous wastes include the following:

a. The greatest threat from the proposed facility appears to be the pollution of surface and subsurface water supplies. In the short term, if the facility were designed and operated as indicated by information supplied by ESI, the impact on water resources should be minimal. However, after closure, the problems could become acute.

To illustrate our concerns, we quote from the Environmental Protection Agency's Supplementary Information concerning the regulation of hazardous wastes which appeared in the Federal Register, Vol. 46, No. 24, Thursday, Feb. 5, 1981, pp. 11126-11136.

"Many hazardous wastes placed in land disposal facilities will not degrade to a point where they are no longer hazardous, or will do so only very slowly...Moreover, current scientific knowledge about the degradation of hazardous wastes placed in land disposal facilities is imperfect. For these two reasons, it is necessary to assume, at this time at least, that hazardous wastes and hazardous constituents placed in a land disposal facility will remain hazardous for very long periods of time.

"There is good theoretical and impirical evidence that the hazardous constituents which are placed in land disposal facilities very likely will migrate from the facility into the broader environment. This may occur several years, even many decades, after placement of the waste in the facility, but data and scientific prediction indicate that, in most cases, even with the application of best available land disposal technology, it will occur eventually....

"....EPA is reasonably certain that hazardous constituents and by-products will migrate out of most facilities and migrate beyond either of the suggested containment areas at some time after the containment periods. Second, EPA is not certain that, once these hazardous containments migrate out of the facility, they can be readily and effectively intercepted and removed so that they do not migrate to points of water use.

"Finally, EPA doubts whether it can assure that the facility owner or operator will implement effective remedial measures whenever releases occur, particularly for an extended period of time or after the originally-established and funded post-closure period. In short, EPA believes that relying on containment during the operating and post-closure-care periods and on application of remedial measures thereafter will, in many cases, fail to provide long term human health and environmental protection."

We concur with this position stated by EPA in the Federal Register. Although ESI has expressed a willingness to create an annuity to provide funding for post closure monitoring and maintenance in perpetuity, we question whether any amount of funds would be sufficient to correct the problem and to reimburse nearby property owners for damages incurred should a breach of the containment area take place.

b. Since a breach of this landfill will eventually occur, placing it at the headwaters of the Conestoga River is the worst possible siting of a hazardous waste facility. The 2,500 farmers who have invested their entire personal assets in the farms of this region have too much to lose from the adverse publicity of having a hazardous waste site in their watershed. Many farms have between $500,000 and $1 million invested in land, machinery, buildings and stock. Also, there is a fledgling vegetable co-op just starting which could be devastated by adverse publicity such as that which occurred after the accident at TMI.

The residents of the Conestoga Watershed who depend on surface or ground water for drinking could be faced with the possility of having to buy water or find other sources if their supplies become contaminated.

c. Access to the site by way of Narvon Road is not acceptable. This road is steep, narrow and can not accommodate the predicted truck traffic patterns for this facility. Even if the road is upgraded, the constant stream of heavy truck traffic carrying hazardous wastes will pose a constant danger to local residents.

The additional traffic generated on Roujte 322 will present a real problem for farm and buggy traffic. An increase of 27% in truck traffic on an already heavily traveled highway is considerable.

d. Because of the continued state of flux of the regulations covering the design and management of hazardous waste disposal sites and because of the changing political and economic climate, we question the abilities and intentions of appropriate state (Department of Environmental Resources (DER) and federal (EPA) agencies to monitor the operation and closure of this facility.

4. As in any undertaking of this magnitude, the greatest impact will be on the local residents. The following are items of concern to the many people in the area near this proposed facility that we feel must be addressed by all agencies and individuals involved in the permitting process.

a. Property values

b. Air pollution

c. Surface water runoff and erosion :

d. The proposed facility's demand on local water supplies

e. The potential for contamination of nearby wells and springs

5. We have reservations about the results of the consultants' studies and information supplied by ESI. Because of the nature and structure of the Public Participation Committee, access to and evaluation of independent sources of information was limited and there was no corroborating data from outside consultants or the staffs of the DER or the EPA. Although members of the committee studied all available date and put forth substantial effort in doing so, we did not have enough background information or expertise to accurately evaluate the data provided. Since most of the information we examined was provided by ESI and its consultants, we believe a potential for bias exists.

6. We believe ESI exhibited a lack of concern in its dealings with the citizens of the Narvon area and the Public Participation Committee. The following are a list of events that disturb us:

a. John Chute, a resident of East Earl, joined the LEAF Board of Directors in January, 1982 and was elected as LEAF's alternate to the PPC. Mr. Chute attended and participated in all the meetings from March 10 (#8) until August 19 (#15) except one. Yet, during that time, he did not receive minutes or notices of the meetings on a regular basis, nor copies of any of the materials marked "confidential" which were made available to all other committee members.

LEAF's purpose in encouraging John to attend the PPC meeting was to provide much needed input from residents of the Narvon area. Until that time, there had been no representative on the PPC who lived in the area of the proposed hazardous waste landfill.

Although some of these ommissions might have been due to lack of communication or simply oversights, we believe there was a pattern of deliberately excluding John from the workings of the committee.

b. At the May 20, 1982 meeting, the ESI representative, with the concurrence of at least one member of the committee tried to pressure the committee into

World trade roundup

WASHINGTON, DC — The Foreign Agriculture Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported the following recent developments in world agriculture and trade last Wednesday:

Grain and Feed

Argentina recently signed a trade agreement with Cuba to supply 100,000 tons of corn annually during 1982-85. The agreement also includes annual minimum shipments of soybean meal, dry beans, tallow and nonfat dry milk. Reportedly no credit arrangements are included and sales will be based on prevailing international market prices. Argentina exported about 100,000 tons of corn to Cuba incalendar 1981.

Austria is likely to export nearly 600,000 tons of wheat this season, double any previous level, as a result of expectations of a near-record grain outturn. East Germany and Yugoslavia may import the bulk of excess Austrian supplies. Austrian domestic prices are well above current world prices, indicating government subsidies on Austrian wheat exports this season may reach about $35 million.

Mushroom growers ask foreign import quotas

KENNET SQUARE — Following a split-decision 2-2 vote, the U.S. International Trade Commission recently recommended a 21 million pound quota be put on imported mushrooms from China. As of Sept. 30, President Reagan has 60 days to negotiate an orderly marketing agreement with China, and other supplying countries such as Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Korea, impose a tariff or to take no action, reports Jack Kooker, executive director of the American Mushroom Institute, headquartered here.

"The president can now replace the increased duties proclaimed by President Carter with quantitative limitations under an orderly marketing agreement," Kooker stated. "Such an agreement should use the 78 million pound base year recommended by Commissioner Moore in 1980.

"Taiwan has already asked the president to suspend the present increased duties and negotiate an orderly marketing agreement with the principle supplying countries. And the Korean Agriculture Department has stated there can be no improvement in their exports to the United States because of continuing People's Republic of China dumping which is expected to continue unless the U.S. sets up an import quota for each export country."

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture reports the U.S. and European Community account for 38 and 28 percent of world canned mushroom imports, respectively. Where the E.C. limits its imports to one-third of its market, imports to the U.S. account for more than 50 percent of the domestic market.

"Unless the Chinese mushroom cloud — the yellow peril — which hangs over the U.S. market is discharged soon by an orderly marketing agreement, its export lightning will destroy the Taiwanese and Korean share of the U.S. market and materially affect any chances of the U.S. (mushroom) industry adjusting to this extremely serious situation," emphasized Kooker.

Since 1979, China has rapidly established itself as the dominant exporter of mushrooms, the AMI director explained. In 1979, Chinese exports were only three percent of total U.S. imports. In the first six months of 1982, Chinese imports plus imports from its satellites Hong Kong and Macao accounted for 80 percent of the imports.

"A marketing agreement (under Section 203 of the Trade Act of 1974) limiting imports to 40 percent

Joe Versagli, Sr., center, president of the American Mushroom Institute and a mushroom grower from Landenberg, Chester County, was all smiles last Wednesday as he and AMI's executive director, Jack Kooker, presented U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block with a basket of Pennsylvania mushrooms. That same day, AMI delivered 1,100 pounds of mushrooms to members of Congress, all donated by Keystone state growers

Berks dairyman picks mushroom career

BY SHEILA MILLER

KENNETT SQUARE — The American Mushroom Institute, the 27-year-old organization that represents the nation's 30 mushroom-growing states, is headquartered here in a remodeled brick home along busy Route 1, just 30 minutes from Philadelphia.

Serving as executive director to this mushroom organization which boasts 250 members out of a total 585 growers nationwide is former Berks County dairyman Jack Kooker.

Kooker, who left his 22-year career as a dairy farmer in Blandon, accepted the role as spokesman for AMI two years ago, and stepped into a job that calls him to Washington D.C. at least twice a week and finds him jetting all the way to California to meet with mushroom growers there.

Although the difference between raising mushrooms and milking 100 registered Holsteins would seem to be as different as black and white, Kooker did not come to the job and its unending challenges unprepared.

After having made the decision to leave dairying, Kooker pursued a master's degree in political science from Penn State at the local Berks Campus. While attending evening classes for four years, Kooker spent his days working for a Temple mushroom operation owned by Nick and Anthony Maggiaro.

"I got my exposure to the mushroom industry through working at Winter Garden Mushroom Farm," Kooker says, adding he did everything from picking mushrooms to driving trucks.

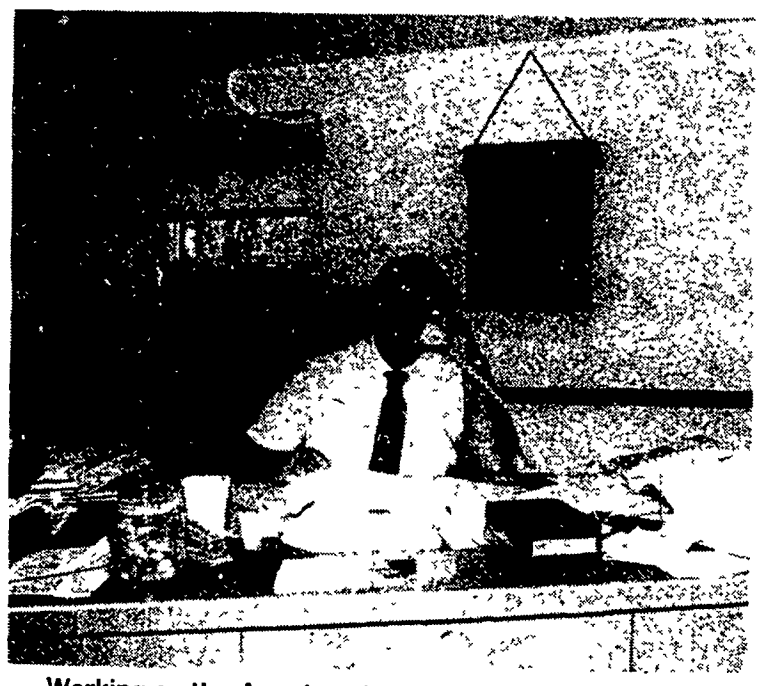
During the same period, Kooker devoted a great deal of his time serving as the Berks County president to the county's Farmers' Association. Now, when lobbying for the mushroom industry, Kooker says he works under the umbrella of various agricultural organizations, including Farm Bureau, Grange, and Farmers' Union.

While he was dairying in Berks County, Kooker also served as chairman of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Advisory Council and chaired two of the three state milk referendums. His experience in conducting these referendums has given him the background for carrying out a similar market promotion question within the mushroom industry, (See related story).

Kooker, who says he has tried to model himself after the late Jerry Litton, a legislator, lobbyist and cattleman who was killed in a plane crash, comments his motivation revolves around representing all of agriculture well. "I know how important agriculture is, not only to Pennsylvania and the nation, but also the world," he says.

One thing Kooker doesn't like is the word "industry" and its link to mushrooms. "I prefer to call it mushroom agriculture. Somehow the word industry gives people the connotation that mushrooms aren't a vital part of agriculture," he explains.

Helping Jack with the AMI office work are Tina McLenna, left, secretary-receptionist; Pat Hash, seated, bookkeeper; and Alma Rigler, assistant executive director.



Working as the American Mushroom Institute's executive director keeps Jack Kooker, a former Berks County dairy farmer, hopping. Answering questions from national newspaper and magazine reporters is an everyday occurance here at the AMI's national headquarters in Kennett Square.

Putting semantics aside and going to statistics, no one can argue with figures that show Pennsylvania is the leading state in mushroom production, harvesting 273 million pounds this year. In the U.S., mushroom production reached 517 million pounds, valued at $419 million. And figures released by crop reporting agencies estimate production will continue at about the same level next year, with growers using 141 million square feet to raise their "underground" crop.

To help pay for the services they receive in promoting and protecting their special agricultural commodity, mushroom growers pay AMI a yearly dues of one cent per square foot of production. And Kooker quickly points out the fact that battling foreign imports which threaten to hurt U.S. mushroom agriculture takes thousands of dollars and producer support. Helping Kooker and the AMI board of directors in this ongoing fight are three full-time employees: Alma Rigler, assistant executive director of AMI; Pat Hash, bookkeeper; and Tina McLenna, secretary-receptionist.

Pa. Christmas tree growers face Va. gypsy moth quarantine "stop-sign"

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell has urged Pennsylvania Christmas tree growers to contact the Agriculture Department's regional offices as soon as possible to arrange for inspections of trees and nursery stock which will be marketed in or transported through Virginia.

The Virginia Department of Agriculture has imposed a quarantine on Christmas trees, nursery stock, firewood and other outdoor items originated from gypsy moth infested areas, and considers the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to be infested.

Hallowell said the Department was providing this free inspection service to Christmas tree growers to help preserve the important interstate markets to the south. Pennsylvania nurserymen are already being certified for entry into Virginia through the state's nursery inspection program.

"Pennsylvania is among the top five states in the nation in production of Christmas trees and nursery products," he said. "Christmas tree cutting and shipping will begin within the next several weeks, and the entire state nursery industry regularly ships products to Virginia."

The Agriculture Department's Bureau of Plant Industry will, upon request from growers, make arrangements for field inspection of trees bound for Virginia before they are cut. Certificates of Inspection stating that the trees are apparently free from gypsy moth will be made available to those growers who are not infested.

"The Virginia Department of Agriculture has notified us that any trees or nursery stock entering their state must have a certificate of inspection," Hallowell said. "Trees not carrying a certificate will be placed under seizure according to Virginia officials."

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's seven regional offices and their telephone numbers are: Meadville, 814 336-6890; Williamsport, 717-327-3550; Tunkhannock, 717-836-2181; Gibsonia, 412 443-1585; Altoona, 814 946-7315; Summerdale, 717 787-3400; and Lansdale, 215 368-3000.

Hunting licenses on sale

HARRISBURG — New Pennsylvania hunting and trapping licenses are now on sale from county treasurers and issuing agents. Except for an increase in non-resident fees several years ago, the cost of Pennsylvania hunting licenses have remained stable since 1973. Resident licenses sell for $8.25; junior and senior residents $5.25; non-residents $60.50; archery stamp $2.20; and the muzzleloader stamp at $3.25.

This year, all first-time hunters must have hunter education training, or produce evidence they've hunted in Pennsylvania or another state in a prior year. Persons applying for resident licenses must "prove" residency through a motor vehicle registration card; a receipt showing payment of Pennsylvania income tax, or receipts evidencing payment of taxes required of Pennsylvania residents; or some other "positive" means of verifying residency. A Pennsylvania "driver's license" is not sufficient, since many non-residents illegally maintain a Pennsylvania "driver's license" after moving to another state.

The 1982-83 Hunting and Trapping Digest is supplied with each license. The 56-page booklet contains information on seasons and bag limits, rules and regulations, maps and dates for special regulation areas and numerous other tips and items of interest to sportsmen. Hunters should be certain to get their digest when they purchase a license and familiarize themselves with its contents.

Farm Bureau, Block discuss federal marketing orders

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farm Bureau Federation leaders met today with Agriculture Secretary John Block and gained assurances that federal marketing orders will be administered by his department without interference from other federal agencies.

Elton Smith, vice president of the federation, and Henry Voss, an AFBF board member, conferred with Block because their states produce a majority of the fruits and vegetables affected by federal marketing orders. Smith is president of the Michigan Farm Bureau and Voss is president of the California Farm Bureau Federation.

"We were very concerned that recent actions by the Office of Management and Budget may have set a precedent for the operation of the orders," Voss said, referring to the recent decision by OMB to disallow the use of a reserve pool for the 1982 processing cherry crop. Smith pointed out that the decision cost the nation's cherry producers $10 million, with no benefit to anyone including consumers.

"Secretary Block, however, told us that he discussed the matter with Vice President Bush and the problem has been straightened out," Smith said. "From now on, USDA will have full authority over these programs, which serve as orderly marketing tools, providing consumers an adequate supply of high-quality produce at reasonable prices. This is surely a victory for farmers and Farm Bureau."

Voss said that they urged Block to issue a policy statement on the future operation of marketing orders and that the secretary agreed. "It is vital that the rules for these programs be consistent so producers know how they are going to market their crops," he said.

Authorized by the Agriculture Marketing Act of 1937, federal marketing orders are controlled and financed by producers and industry, and serve to provide stability in production, prices, and supply. There are currently 48 market orders, covering some 34 commodities in 37 states, with a total annual farm value of $5.2 billion.

Morton Buildings Do Double-Duty

BUY AND BUILD NOW — BE READY FOR HARVEST

A Morton Machine Shed with bulkheads installed is the most innovative idea in government approved flat grain storage. The sidewall bulkheads are 6' high designed to withstand pressures with grain peaked to trusses. The sliding door bulkheads withstand grain pressures when in place, yet are easily removed for access to building by equipment and machinery. Regular grain storage bins cannot be used for machine storage when empty, but your Morton Machine Shed can . . . it does Double-Duty!

TYPICAL EXAMPLES OF BUILDING CAPACITIES: (With 12'6" Sidewalls)
42' x 72' holds 18,600 Bu. +
48' x 81' holds 27,050 Bu. +

(Grain height at sidewall 8' — Capacities will vary depending on moisture content, test weight and other variables.)

agreeing to vote yes or no on the siting of the hazardous waste landfill at Narvon. LEAF's position was that the committee was part of an independent review process and that it was not the committee's purpose to approve or disapprove of the site. Although it was quite obvious that ESI wanted the committee to approve the site, the committee members declined to do so.

c. At the PPC's final meeting, members hammered out the wording of the Summary Report. After that meeting and before the news conference, ESI representatives tried unsuccessfully to water down the report so as to cast ESI in a more favorable light and to alter the wording of the Report's findings on Narvon Road to allow ESI to use the road temporarily to haul hazardous wastes until it would be upgraded to more acceptable levels.

The PPC Summary Report clearly states its position:

"The Committee, ESI's consultants and ESI all agree that Narvon Road, in its present configuration, is not capable of handling the traffic which this facility will generate without imposing unacceptable inconveniences and risks upon other users and residents along the road. Narvon Road will have to be rebuilt and upgraded or an alternate access from Route 322 provided before the facility is operated."

d. Delisting–Members of the PPC learned of the delisting efforts of ESI through newspaper articles. The PPC believed this showed poor judgment of the part of ESI management.

e. All along, ESI officials have maintained that the Narvon site will be for inorganics only. However, from July to October 1980, ESI had a remporary permit at their Lanchester facility to process BASF Polyglycol wastes (organic material). After three months, DER determined thatthe ESI process would not work with this substance (significant leachate occurred) and the permit was terminated. During meeting #5, Brian Bennett stated "that ESI could not say that it would not take organics, it all depends on what the waste is."

According to DER records, almost 9% of the wastes accepted by ESI at its Lanchester facility contain measurable amounts of organic compounds which may not lend themselves to being processed by ESI methods. We question the reliability of ESI's statements concerning the wastes they would be accepting at Narvon.

After careful consideration of all available data, we have concluded that the Narvon Clay Mine is not the place for a hazardous waste landfill. We recognize the need for safe disposal of hazardous waste materials, but we feel that the proposed facility presents too much of a danger to the agricultural economic base of the region and to the health and safety of county residents to be placed at the headwaters of the Conestoga River.

Mushroom growers

of the U.S. consumption of mushrooms is a reasonable and fair contribution for the mushroom industry to make to the operations of U.S. trade policy," said Kooker.

According to the AMI director, these continually increasing quantities of imported canned mushrooms have hurt U.S. mushroom growers considerably — causing 25 percent of the growers to go out of business and causing eight of 29 canneries in the U.S. to fold.

Earlier this summer, in a report to the president, the ITC said, "It is our view that the domestic mushroom industry continues to suffer serious harm from import competition." Imports of canned mushrooms from China increased from 17 thousand pounds in 1978 to 14.8 million pounds in 1980, principally because China was granted lower duties under a trade agreement effective Feb. 1, 1980. In 1981, China doubled its exports to 27.4 million pounds by pricing its exports to the U.S. 17 to 37 percent lower than prices charged by Korea and Taiwan and under selling domestic mushrooms by 17 cents per pound.

Kooker explained that in 1980, the U.S. mushroom industry petitioned the president and pursued import relief from China. Carter responded by placing a tariff and quantitative limitations on mushroom imports. Duties were increased by 20 percent that year, dropped to 15 percent last year, and to 10 percent this year — the final year of import relief, Kooker said.

But, in order to stimulate trade, China was given special consideration and was allowed to export mushrooms duty-free to the U.S. under its "most favored nation status." In effect, Kooker said, the U.S. financed the growing and processing of mushrooms in China.

"Mushroom growers in the U.S. had accepted Carter's increased duties as a deterrent — a chance to pull ourselves up by our boot straps through increased efficiency in growing and through alternative markets," Kooker said, citing the trend for the U.S. mushroom growers to produce for the fresh market. "But, the duty acted as no deterrent to China."

With the economic hardships inflicted on U.S. mushroom growers by competition from imports, Kooker noted there was no money for growers to invest in developing fresh markets. "The industry realizes it is something that is necessary. Growers realize the need. But at the same time they're asking: 'Where are we going to get the money?'"

Unable to compete with foreign imports in the U.S. market, and with domestic mushroom canneries folding, growers here in the states have begun "dumping" mushrooms into the fresh market and as a result are depressing prices by roughly 20 cents a pound. To avoid further price reduction, Kooker stressed the need to increase per capita consumption of mushrooms by developing new markets and changing the public's thinking. "We have to get the consumer to think of mushrooms not only as a garnish but as a full side vegetable," he said.

In order to achieve the needed research and promotion to keep the U.S. mushroom industry healthy, Kooker said AMI is "pursuing a questionaire of grower interest in a marketing order."

Earlier this year Sen. John Heinz and Rep. Richard Schulze introduced legislation in both sides of Congress which would amend the Agriculture Agreement Act of 1937 to include mushrooms in marketing orders and to allow paid advertising. The legislation remains in both the Senate and House Agriculture committees.

The referendum would call for a progressive grower contribution up to a maximum of one cent per pound over a three-year period. To pass, the referendum would need two-thirds of the growers' approvals. Once passed, the checkoff would be mandatory, Kooker explained, and everyone would pay. The roughly $2.5 million that would be contributed by the growers for promotion and research would be administered by a 24 person board representative of production, he added. Large companies that carry out brand advertising of mushrooms would be given 50 percent credit on their checkoff share.

Why should growers vote "yes" on the proposed referendum? According to Kooker, it will provide the avenues for increased demand through more advertising dollars. Currently Americans consume only 2.5 pounds of mushrooms each year, compared with 7 pounds a year in Canada and 7.7 pounds in Europe.

"Our per capita consumption could double with investment," said Kooker, adding mushroom growers are "Rhodes scholars" in production but "school dropouts" when it comes to promotion and marketing.

Kooker noted much work has to be done in educating produce managers on the proper way to handle mushrooms to maintain their high quality from farm to consumer.

The future of the mushroom industry hinges on the efforts growers are willing to put into current legislative events, Kooker stated, while urging farmers and growers to contact their Congressmen and enlist their support for the orderly marketing agreement. He also urged support of the proposed referendum to help build sales of fresh mushrooms.

Without the referendum "the market will build because of growers going out. Survivors will pick up what the others lose," Kooker concluded.

Use Devrinol® now and hit spring weeds when they're down.

Selective herbicide

The mulch you use on strawberries this fall has weed seeds and volunteer grain. Left unchecked, they'll germinate to cause problems next spring. Once these seeds sprout they cannot be controlled by residual herbicides. But Devrinol herbicide, applied now—before you mulch—will stop weed germination in the spring. Use Devrinol preceding rain or snow and prior to ground freeze, then apply mulch. You won't have to worry about weeding, or weed competition, all the way to picking time.

Cooperative Poultry Diagnostic Lab opens doors

BY SHEILA MILLER

KENNETT SQUARE — On Tuesday, the University of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture officially opened their new Cooperative Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory facilities here at New Bolton Center with an "open house."

And, that's exactly what visitors to the new laboratory, located appropriately along "Byrd" Road, came to see — an old home with windows and doors ajar in wide-open welcome for all who dropped by to visit the state's newest facility for poultry diagnostic work, teaching and research. The stuccoed stone house, which now holds the most modern facilities for necropsy examination, bacteriology, serology, histopathology, and virology, was the former residence of the veterinary school's farm manager.

Before moving to their new headquarters, the seven-member staff of the poultry diagnostic laboratory shared two small rooms in another campus building, explained Dr. Robert Eckroade who has headed the lab for the past six years. "We were always bumping into one another," he recalled.

Now, the newly remodeled facilities offer the poultry staffers room to "stretch their wings." Eckroade has his own office, complete with carpeting and fireplace, in which he displays his collection of poultry paintings and ceramic statues. "I don't feel bad about having a nice office like this," he commented. "I'm here 11 hours a day."

The old home's upstairs bedrooms now are used for offices and laboratory rooms. Downstairs there are more laboratory facilities providing much needed space for the two full-time technicians, one full-time secretary, a part-time caretaker, and a resident in avian medicine (a graduate veterinarian).

Eckroade, who is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute (bachelor's degree), University of Georgia (veterinary degree), and University of Wisconsin (master's and doctoral degrees), explained the laboratory examines more than 5,000 birds a year.

"Through recommendations to poultry farmers, servicemen, veterinarians, and pet bird owners, we are involved in the health care of several million birds every year," he said. These diagnostic services are supported in part by an annual grant from PDA's Bureau of Animal Industry.

"Although the major portion of our work involves the large commercial poultry operations, we welcome cases from small backyard flocks, hobby farmers, and pet bird owners," Eckroade noted, adding their work with pet bird populations allows them to monitor what diseases are going through these types of birds which might affect commercial flocks.

Poultry producers who suspect there is trouble in their flock — such as mortality, birds not laying eggs or not gaining weight, lameness — can have the laboratory's assistance in pinpointing the health problem. Eckroade said the cost per case is $10 — "a nominal fee considering it might cost the lab $70 to carry out all the tests."

He also noted he and his staff members will teach servicemen the techniques of post-mortem examinations, free of charge. "We can't possibly do all the necropsy work here at the laboratory that needs to be done in the poultry industry," Eckroade offered in explanation why he is willing to teach others how to perform simple diagnostic work.

In reviewing their work during the past year, Eckroade said there have been "no unique disease problems" but noted an increased reoccurance of Marek's disease although not in "epidemic proportions."

Eckroade suggested that farmers who wish to send or bring birds to the laboratory for examination should "pack fresh, dead birds in ice or bring them in while they're still alive." He said that farmers are asked to call the office before bringing the case birds to assure the laboratory can handle them that day.

"We ask the farmers to call us back that day or the following morning to get the test results," he said. Preliminary reports are available within 24 hours.

In addition to its diagnostic services, the New Bolton Cooperative Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory trains veterinary students in avian medicine. The University of Pennsylvania is one of only four veterinary schools in the United States which offers advanced poultry medicine and pathology training programs for graduate veterinarians.

The Cooperative Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory has a well-developed poultry disease research program. Twelve colony houses were acquired with poultry industry support to house experimental birds.

Current research projects include development of an automated ELISA (enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay) flock profiling test system, and studies on the feasibility of eradication of infectious Bursal disease from poultry houses. These studies are supported by grants from USDA, PDA and the poultry industry.

Dr. Robert Eckroade, head of the Cooperative Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory for the past six years, surrounds himself with poultry paraphernalia in his new office. The remodeled farmhouse which is now lab headquarters welcomed the public this week as the University of Pennsylvania and the Pa. Dept. of Agriculture held their official open house.

Research associate Betsey Frey demonstrates the ELISA computer which has been in use at the diagnostic laboratory since April. "With one serum sample, we can show how a bird stands with eight diseases," she explains, noting the computer "reads" 96 samples in 60 seconds and can detect antidotes within four days of exposure.

Dr. Linda Silverman, V.M.D., is the resident in poultry pathology working at the lab. Here she discusses the process of egg development with Dr. L. Dwight Schwartz and wife Wilma who were visiting from Penn State where Schwartz is a professor of Extension veterinary science.

Penn State offers sheep seminar

UNIVERSITY PARK — The practical application of genetics, selection and breeding of sheep for optimum production will be stressed during this year's Sheep Breeding and Production Conference, November 12-13 at Penn State. Activities both days will take place in the J. O. Keller Conference Center.

Joe Whiteman, professor of sheep breeding and selecion at Oklahoma State University, will be the keynote speaker November 12. His talk will focus on selection criteria for improving lamb and wool production.

"This year's sheep conference should be of interest to those producers interested in getting the greatest return from their lamb and wool productin," says Clair Engle, Penn State Extension sheep specialist and conference chairman.

In addition to Whiteman's presentation, demonstrations will be held on grading market lambs and evaluating carcasses. Specialists will also discuss merchandizing lamb and wool directly to consumers and demonstrate the use of microcomputers in sheep production.

Preregistration for the conference is encouraged, says Dr. Engle. Information is available from the Conference and Short Course Office, 306 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, or by calling (area code 814) 865-8301.

The champion cow-calf pair was consigned by Pleasant Knoll Farm, Frederick, Md. Bill and Pat Pleasants sold their Polled Hereford pair to Ann Corcorhan of Potomac, Md. for $1,735.

FREDERICK, Md. — The Maryland Polled Hereford Association held their 12th Annual Red, White & Blue Sale of Quality Females last Saturday here at the fairgrounds. The sale grossed $53,605 on 46 lots to average $492.

Topping the sale at $17,500 was a March 1981 daughter of Graystone Hurrah out of an Enforcer dam selling bred to "Hotline", Canadian Agribition champion. She sold to Tamsey Farms of Easton, Md. and was consigned by Falklands Farm of Schellsburg, Pa. She was Champion Senior Heifer of the sale show held earlier in the day.

High selling cow-calf pair at $2,200 was lot 36, a consignment of Huckleberry Hall Farm, Smithsburg, Md. She sold to John and Linda Worthington, Clear Spring, MD., with a heifer calf at side by HHF Enforcer 57L and rebred to the same bull.

The champion cow-calf pair was consigned by Pleasant Knoll Farms, Frederick, Md. and sold with a bull calf at side by FLF Enf. 9031 to Ann Corcoran, Potomac, Md. for $1,735.

A January 1982 daughter of Graystone Hurrah was Junior Calf Champion and sold to John Wilkins, Shepherdstown, W. Va. for $1,725. She was a consignment from Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, Pa.

The Champion Pen was consigned by Suzanne Schmidt, Monkton, Md.

The top steer calf consigned by Jack Shanks, Mocksville, N.C., sold for $1,550 to Judy Heflich of Bellemeade, N.J. Three certificates and semen on Graystone Engraver were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rosenberry, Hagerstown, Md. to benefit the Maryland Polled Hereford Queen Fund; these were purchased by Mr. Eaton of Farmersville, N.Y. for $175 per certificate.

Spring Bottom Farm of Fairfield, Adams County consigned calf champion heifer, also a Hurrah daughter. She sold for $1,745 to John Wilkins of Shepherdstown, W.Va. At halter is Dave Wise, herdsman.

Senate passes CFTC reauthorization

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate recently passed the Futures Trading Act of 1982, H.R. 5447, reauthorizing the Commodity Exchange Act and the Commodities Futures Trading Commission for a period of two years.

Senator Jesse Helms, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the legislation was particularly important in that "it affords Congress an opportunity to review the Act and the operations of the CFTC, in light of the dramatic changes that have taken place in the futures industry since 1978." Changes were last made in the Futures Trading Act in 1978.

"There has been a tremendous amount of growth in futures trading in the last few years," said Helms. "This is especially true in the area of financial instruments. The public has become increasingly involved in futures markets, both as individual customers and through professionally managed commodity pools."

The bill codifies the CFTC's portion of the jurisdictional agreement made earlier this year between the CFTC and the Securities Exchange Commission. The bill authorizes the states to play an increased role in the prosecution of commodity fraud, which limits the amount of time the CFTC may take to review new contract proposals and contract market rules. It also removes the statuto y ban on the sale of agricultural commodity options, provides for judicial review of CFTC emergency actions, and authorizes the agency to restructure its reparations program.

By a vote of 27-66, the Senate rejected an amendment which would have instituted user fees for future transactions. The Senate did, however, adopt an amendment to assure the sanctity of agricultural commodity export contracts, except in times of war or national emergency.

In other action last week, the Senate adopted the following legislation:

• H.R. 6142, authorizing the Commodity Credit Corporation to convert some of its surplus stocks of grain into fuel alcohol. The fuel would be used primarily by the government for its vehicles or industrial use, although some could be sold commercially.

• H.R. 2035, authorizing certain animal health technicians of the Department of Agriculture who patrol the U.S.-Mexican border to carry firearms for self-protection. These technicians, commonly known as "tick riders," are charged with preventing the illegal entry of animals into the U.S., thus protecting U.S. livestock from dangerous diseases and parasites.

An amendment to the bill also was passed to require imported table grapes to meet the same standards for grade, size, quality and maturity as those placed on domestic grapes under Federal marketing orders. The House of Representatives subsequently agreed to the bill, as amended, clearing the measure for the President.

• H.R. 6164, authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to implement the Agreement on the International Carriage of Perishable Foodstuffs and on the Special Equipment to be Used for Such Carriage, known as the ATP. The bill calls for the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a program for the voluntary inspection, testing and certification of special transportation equipment used by U.S. companies to transport perishable foodstuffs abroad.

An amendment to the bill was adopted to authorize the President to appoint an additional Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. The effect of the amendment is to convert the present USDA position of Assistant Secretary for Administration from a career service position to a Presidential appointment.

• H.R. 6865, amending the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA), which is designed to suppress unfair and fraudulent practices in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables by establishing a code of fair trading in the marketplace, and aid in the enforcement of contracts for marketing these commodities. The bill requires the Secretary of Agriculture to accept the payment of monetary penalties for misrepresentation violations which relate to mark, label and stencil, provided they are not flagrant violations. The bill also requires U.S. residents asserting a claim assigned by a nonresident to post a bond as required if the claim were asserted in the name of the nonresident.

• H.R. 6422 and H.R. 3881, directing the Secretary of Agriculture to release on behalf of the Federal Government a reversionary interest in tracts of land in Connecticut and Arkansas, respectively.

The Senate also confirmed the nomination of Fowler C. West to be a Commissioner of the Commodities Futures Trading Commission. West is a former Staff Director of the House Agriculture Committee and a professional staff member of that committee.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett

Yes, you can make more money

Some farmers spend more to produce a unit of their product than others. This is a fact I have gleaned from more than 25 years of working with farm families on farm financial problems. I am convinced that many farmers are making inadequate use of their resources or do not recognize the need to change.

Some ideas

Last week I discussed feeding efficiency. This is the biggest area for change for dairy and livestock farmers. When I see where one dairyman sells twice as much for each dollar of feed as another dairyman, it is a convincing statistic.

Ventilation

Winter and summer ventilation is essential for all types of livestock and poultry.

—Use multiple fans plus adequate inlets for winter ventilation.

—Open things up, use circulating fans, block or whitewash windows on the afternoon sun (west) side of a building.

—Remember that ventilation has a number of jobs: moisture control; fly control; draft reduction; controlled air movement as well as temperature control.

—Do not put winter ventilation fans where they draw warm, moist, germladen air from adult animals to baby animals unless your intent is to kill the babies.

Raising calves

—Use colostrum as soon after birth as possible.

—Dip the naval in iodine.

—Treat for internal and external parasites on a regular basis.

—Provide clean, dry, draft-free living and feeding areas.

—Keep different sized animals separately.

Milking system

—Use somatic cell count as a management tool.

—Keep to a stimulation time of 1 to 2 minutes (time from washing to machine on) and a machine on time of 4 to 6 minutes per cow.

—Don't try to handle too many machines.

—Keep bedding dry and clean.

—Treat or sell problem cows.

—Have adequate and uniform vacuum. Check the regulator on a regular basis.

SILAGE MANAGEMENT BOOSTS MILK YIELDS FOR LANCASTER COUNTY DAIRYMAN

Most dairy farmers, and even some nutritionists, feel that corn silage is corn silage — an important source of roughage and energy but little more than that.

Ivan Shirk knows better.

Like most farmers across the U.S. who are trying to cope with today's tight economy, Shirk is constantly looking for ways to increase the income from his 45-cow dairy operation. By refining his silage management practices, the Lancaster County dairyman found he could capitalize on the maximum nutritional value of his corn silage and make it an integral component of his feed ration.

In a recent 127-day trial, Shirk compared two approaches to silage management. One approach yielded a high quality silage, increasing milk production by 6.9 percent over the trial period. The result was an additional net profit per cow of $52.51, calculated on the basis of $13/cwt for 3.5 percent milk.

Trial Carefully Monitored

Shirk chopped his silage to half-inch lengths when the corn was at the mid- to full-dent stage. Moisture level at harvest was about 66 percent.

Chopping at 66 percent moisture reduces field losses. Research shows when moisture level of the corn falls below 60 percent, field losses may range as high as 16 percent or more due to leaf and ear drop and downed stalks.

Chopping at the proper moisture and length also enhances the crucial fermentation process of ensiling.

Shirk simultaneously filled two 16'x60' concrete stave silos by alternating wagon loads of corn silage.

Silage going into one silo was treated at the blower with an inoculant from Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. The inoculant is a live bacterial product which helps ensure rapid fermentation and greater preservation of the ensiled nutrients. It was applied at a rate of one pound per ton of forage.

Corn silage in the other silo was not treated.

Shirk's Holstein cows were paired, with one member of each pair assigned to one of two groups. One group received untreated corn silage while the other received inoculated corn silage. The silage was about one-third of the balanced dairy ration, which also included alfalfa hay, supplemental grain mix and soybean meal.

Laboratory analysis of samples from both silos showed quality differences between the untreated and inoculated silages. Lactic acid production was 5.8 percent greater in the inoculated silage. Available protein also was higher.

In addition, dry matter losses were 44 percent less in the inoculated silage. The net result of inoculation was that more silage of higher quality was available to feed out.

Cows fed untreated silage produced an average of 44.7 pounds of milk per day. Cows fed the higher quality, inoculated silage produced an average of 47.8 pounds of milk per day — an advantage of 3.1 pounds per cow.

Stated another way, cows fed the higher quality silage produced an average of 393.7 pounds more milk per cow during the trial period than those fed the untreated silage.

"When I started to feed the treated silage I noticed a big difference over the untreated silage," said Shirk. "The cows ate the treated silage much better."

"The smell of the treated silage was much better, too," Shirk added.

Good management of silage can help ensure that more of the nutrients that go into the silo will be available in the silage that's fed out of the silo. Corn silage can supply more than just roughage and energy — it also can contribute nutritive value as an integral part of the total dairy ration.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Federal Order 2
August price announced

ry farmers who supplied plants regulated under the York-New Jersey marketing s during August will be paid e basis of a uniform price of per hundredweight (29.2 per quart).

rket Administrator Thomas lson stated the uniform farm per hundredweight was in July 1982 and $13.68 in st 1981. The uniform price is a etwide weighted average of alue of farm milk used for and manufactured dairy ucts.

e seasonal incentive fund ned a total of $3,232,670.14, or per hundredweight, to the farmers' uniform price for st. This fund was generated ducing the uniform price paid to producers during the high-production spring months.

A total of 17,428 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 898,910,655 pounds of milk during August 1982. This was an increase of only 0.1 percent (less than one million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $122,468,504.92. This included differentials required to be paid to farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers used 356,711,015 pounds of milk for Class I; 39.7 percent of the total. For August 1982, handlers paid $14.67 per hundredweight (31.5 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.84 a year ago.

The balance, 60.3 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk, handlers paid $12.54 per hundreweight.

The uniform price is base on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For August 1982, a differential of 17.0 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Farm Women's Day

The proclamation, in part, states that: "The Society of Farm Women was formed to continue the fine farming customs and dedication to quality exhibited by the Commonwealth's first family farmers. By sponsoring activities in their communities, these women foster a deeper appreciation for the farm and rural life of today and seek to uphold the dignity and purpose of farming, while teaching the responsibility which lies in working the soil and enhancing the charm of the real country home."

Numerous societies throughout the state organization are making plans to celebrate their official day, some joining as a county group for breakfast or brunch fellowship meals. Brief programs will renew members' awareness of the goals and purposes of the Society of Farm Women.

"We want to keep these gatherings symbolic of what Farm Women is all about–small informal groups, stressing that sometimes the simple things are those that mean the most," stated Mrs. Baughman.

It was on October 14, 1914 that the first society was founded, organized by Mrs. Flora Black, in Somerset County. Society of Farm Women leaders hope to continue the Oct. 14 Farm Women's Day as an annual celebration to their organization, which stresses appreciation for farm living and involvement in one's community.

At 35th conservation district conference

Assn. honors president, conservationist of year

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

HARRISBURG — Robert K. Mowrer of Lancaster County was named Conservationist of the Year, Tuesday evening, at the 35th joint annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc., and the State Conservation Commission, here at the Host Inn.

Mowrer was joined in the spotlight by several other outstanding conservation-related individuals, including new president of the Association of Conservation District Directors Alex Smith of Greensburg, and Lancaster County Commissioner James Huber, named County Commissioner of the Year.

Though the individuals were honored at an awards ceremony Tuesday as part of the three-day conference, Smith moved into the presidency earlier offering participants the opportunity to meet with him and discuss changes for the upcoming year.

One change the new president, a native of Centre County, hopes to make in the new year is "instituting more special committees. I feel a lot of legwork being done by leaders and directors could be done by the members of these committees. I would also like to initiate more thorough reporting at national as well as local meetings. It does cost a lot to go to these meetings and I would like everyone to get as much from them as they can." Smith was referring in part to the national conference, this year scheduled to be in Louisiana in February 1983.

In previous years, Smith served on the public relations committee for the state association before moving to the position of secretary three times and then first vice president this past year.

Smith's background includes farming until 1961, a bachelor's and master's degree in education, and a teaching job for the past 19 years in vocational agriculture at the New Stanton school district.

The new president takes over the position from George Wolff who served the 1981-82 term.

At the awards banquet, the Bradford Conservation District received a plaque for first place in director attendance, boasting an impressive 94 percent. The Lancaster District came in second with a close 91.7 percent. Third place went to the York District at 86.9 percent.

For placing second in director attendance and second in the Goodyear awards, the Lancaster Conservation District was honored at the awards banquet, Tuesday evening, at the 35th annual conference of the Pa. Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. and the State Conservation Commission. Pictured are members James Huber, county commissioner who also received the County Commissioner of the Year award; Tim Breneisen; Tom Johnston; Amos Funk; and Aaron Stauffer. Presenting the award is Paul Schwartz, executive secretary of the state conservation commission.

Mowrer, designated the Conservationist of the Year, has been active in 208 water quality projects and was instrumental in getting the Rural Clean Water Project approved for the Conestoga Watershed.

In 1968, Mowrer was appointed as an urban director to the Lancaster District and is involved in State Water Plan, Soil Stewardship, erosion and sedimentation control and environmental education. Due primarily to his efforts, a Lancaster County Youth Conservation School was organized in 1978 and has now graduated over 75 people.

The honor of Conservation Farmer of the Year went to William Gregory of Carbon County. His Cloverdale Farms has been in the family for three generations. The Gregorys have been leaders in Carbon County in installing conservation practices on both their farmland and on land they lease. Conservation plans have been developed and implemented on 560 acres of farmland (294 acres cropland) owned by the Gregorys. This winner helped organize the Carbon Conservation District when it was established in 1947 and was a member of the first District board.

Ernest C. Aharrah of Clarion County received the Conservation Educator of the Year award. Aharrah has been a director with the Clarion District for 12 years, having served as chairman, vice chairman and secretary. As an environmental educator at Clairon State College for the past 26 years, Aharrah has developed an ecology and conservation travel-study program which has won various awards. He also was instrumental in the founding of the Penn Soil Resource Conservation and Development Project, and is a member of both the Pennsylvania and American Council for Research in Mined-Land Reclamation.

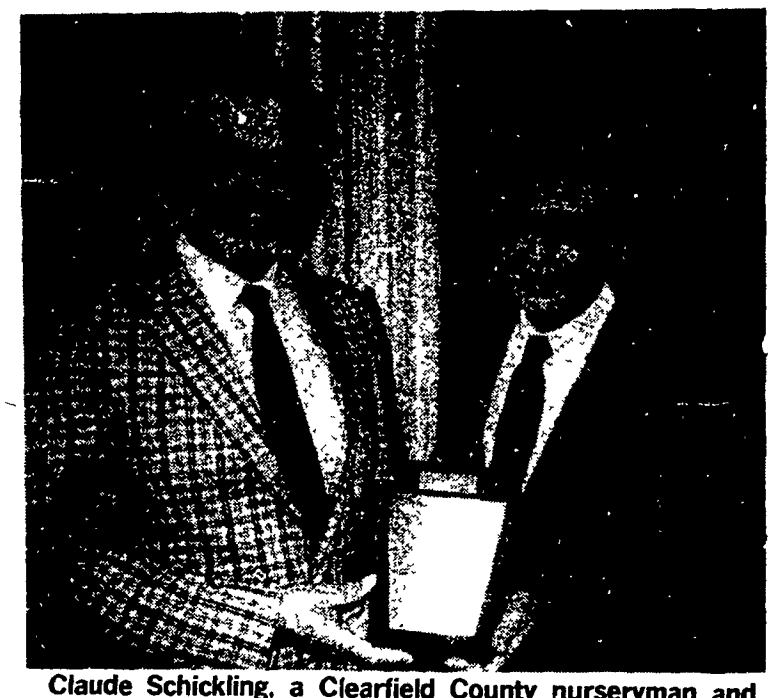
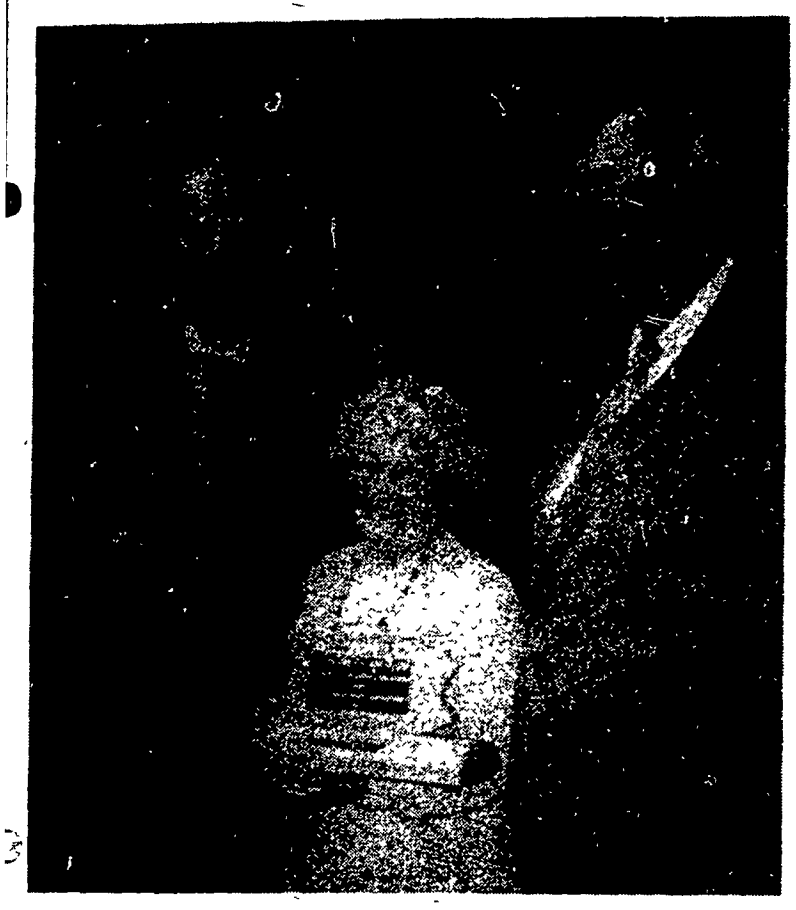
George Wolff gives a congratulatory and hearty handshake to Alex Smith for taking over his now past position as president of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, Inc. Smith hails from Greensburg, Pa.

George Wolff, left, awards this plaque to Robert Mowrer of Lancaster County for being named Conservationist of the Year. Mowrer was instrumental in getting a Rural Clean Water Project approved for the Conestoga Watershed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory, right, are awarded the Conservation Farmer of the Year plaque for the conservation practices they applied on both their Cloverdale Farms and the land they lease. Presenting the award is Dick Rossman, first vice president.



Claude Schickling, a Clearfield County nurseryman and member of the Clearfield District Board, receives the Watershed Man of the Year award from Dick Rossman, left.



Mr. and Mrs. Robert Karn of Bradford County receive the Maurice K. Goddard Forestry award from Goddard, the former secretary of DER. The Karns have planted nearly 70,000 trees in areas that were not producing other crops.

Greenway Association, hails from Berks County. The Association serves as a citizen's organization representing those who live in the Schuylkill River Basin, an area draining ten counties. Establishing a linear park or "greenway" along the river is the Association's goal. Toward this end, they have worked with local and county governments, urging the retention of public lands and including among their objective the enhancement of the scenic quality while promoting public recreational enjoyment in conjunction with present and future commerical, agricultural, residential, industrial and transportational uses.

Honored as Watershed Man of the Year was Claude Schickling of Clearfield County, a nurseryman by profession and a member of the Clearfield District Board. Having served as chairman and vice chairman, he was instrumental in the formation of the Little Clearfield Creek Watershed Association. Most of his work has been with coal companies operating in the watershed, local sportsmens' clubs and the new Millport Recreation Assn.

The Little Sewickley Creek Watershed Assn. in Allegheny County won the Watershed of the Year award. The Watershed includes all of the land drained by the creek and its tributaries — approximately 9 1/2 miles. The urban-located Association is sponsoring a detailed survey of the watershed, evaluating and cataloguing the geology, soils, topography, hydrology and vegetation in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Karn of Bradford County won the Maurice K. Goddard Froestry award for the effort they have applied to their own property which includes 70,000 trees planted in areas that were not producing other crops.

This year's Goodyear Awards went to the Dauphin, Lancaster and Northumberland Conservation Districts.

Other highlights of the conference include a Keynote address by DER Secretary Peter S. Duncan, a panel discussion on sewage sludge, a legislative session on "The Outlook for Conservation Districts," and computer utilization.

Eastern's purchase

Eastern delegates and the 15-member Board of directors deemed the amended dairy price support program "discriminatory and adverse to dairy farmers and not in the public interest."

However, USDA dairy division director Ed Coughlin was on hand to explain why the program did not discriminate.

"Congress felt that a deduction from the sales of milk by all producers was the most equitable means of attaining some control over the current dairy surplus problem," Coughlin said.

"One of the primary comments on the deduction program that I keep hearing from milk producers is, 'Why should I be included, I don't contribute to the surplus,' " he noted.

"I don't recall any region raising objections to nationwide increases in dairy price support levels during the latter half of the 1970s," he said.

Coughlin explained that at one time the nation's fluid and manufacturing sectors were two separate groups.

"But that is no longer the case. Today, we have a single unified dairy industry."

The dairy division chief admitted that several farmers probably will boost milk output to offset the 50-cent deduction.

"If this is the position that farmers take and milk supply-demand situation is not brought back into a more favorable balance, we could very well see further changes in the price support program.

"In fact, if the currrent high level of dairy surplus continues, it could well jeopardize the whole price support program.

"Dairy farm bankruptcies will not necessarily get supply back in line with demand. Reducing the milking herd by one million cows will do the job," Coughlin emphasized.

He explained his department has been assigned responsiblilty for the program's administration because it is already involved in the marketing process for 68 percent of the nation's milk through 49 Federal Orders.

Coughlin outlined the major features for implementing the dairy collection plan:

- The responsibility to make and submit the deduction to the CCC will be on the person who actually makes payment to individual dairy farmers for their milk.
- Those responsible for making the deduction will be required to file a brief report on the milk volumes subject to the deduction.
- Payments to CCC are to be made at the time final payments are made each month to producers.

Tin type gallery offers treasures of yesteryear

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

NEWBURG — Patricia Wenger's Tin Type Gallery at Newburg is a true photographic reproduction of the past. But making it more than a mere image, Patricia has reproduced the fine quality of handcrafts of yesteryear for today.

As the name Tin Type implies, Patricia is a collector of tin type photographs as well as Civil War relics, quilts, useful antiques and much more. But predominately the Tin Type Gallery is noted for Patricia's bandboxes and porcelain dolls.

Today, we know these bandboxes as the all-purpose dull gray cardboard box. Nevertheless, Patricia's handmade reproduction bandboxes can make one wonder why they ever disappeared from the marketplace.

Patricia first saw the unique 18th century bandboxes at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum in Lancaster County where a lady was demonstrating how to construct the old-time utility box of the home.

Patricia said she was inspired by the demonstration at the museum and shortly after began making her own. She makes her boxes in the same manner as the 18th century homemaker. Using white poster board, she cuts the box sides, top and bottom, in one of four shapes; round, oval, hexagon and the most popular the heart shape. The next step and the most unusual feature about the boxes is that the top lid and the bottom of the box is hand sewn. Patricia sews her boxes together with crochet cotton, which is her only deviation from the original pattern.

All 18th century boxes were sewn together with linen thread, which is a hard commodity to come by today. This made Patricia turn to the crochet cotton, the next best alternative.

Once the boxes are sewn together, Patricia covers them with authentic looking wallpaper that is available at numerous wallcovering businesses. Patricia explained that by authentic she means wallpaper that adhers to the styles and colors of the 18th century, Williamsburg colors, Victorian prints, country florals, etc. During the 18th century the homemaker covered her box with wallpaper too; cheap wallpaper which came from France.

And like the authentic boxes, Patricia lines the inside of the boxes with newspaper from the 18th century. She said she scrounges around flea markets and auctions for the dated newspaper and usually has no trouble finding it.

Patricia's business has grown rapidly since she first opened the Tin Type Gallery three years ago. She remarked, "I just can't make enough of the reproduction bandboxes to supply all the demand." She feels that her success with the bandboxes has been because of their usefulness. "They are a utility antique reproduction. People have a unique furnishing that can be used for storage and can be displayed anywhere in the home as a piece of decoration," she commented.

And, that is exactly what the homemaker of the 18th century used the bandboxes for. They first appeared on the home-furnishing scene when women needed a sturdy case to protect the gentlemen's collars, or 'bands's as they were commonly known. The women began making the 'bandboxes' in a variety of sizes and shapes to accommodate the men's and their own stiff ruff collars. And soon the bandboxes became a storage container for numerous other items during that period. The small and round boxes became known as 'trinket' boxes holding small ornaments such as rings, lace, ribbons, spools of thread.

Patricia Wenger of Newburg enjoys owning and operating the Tin Type Gallery because it gives her opportunity to make some of the merchandise herself. On the bureau are several bandboxes she made.

Medium sized boxes held jewelry, gloves, even artificial flowers.

One particular shape box, the heart-shaped box, carried an unusual occupant. During the 18th century when women got to the theatre they took off their huge hats and took out a heart-shaped box. It was the custom to outdo each other as to who had the most beautiful heart box, creating quite a popularity for this shape box. This particular heart-shaped box usually measured 6"x7"x2½" deep.

Patricia's reproduction porcelain doll started out as did her other well-known handcraft - as a hobby. She said she merely enjoyed reproducing the porcelain antiques and after a few craft shows with the dolls, they were a smashing success with doll collectors and antique enthusiasts alike.

Patricia constructs the entire doll from start to finish. She remarked, "It is like making ceramics." First she pours the liqiud porcelain into the molds that have been made from antique porcelain dolls usually dating back to the 18th century. She buys the reproduction molds from companies specializing in mold making. Then, once the mold is set she removes the doll and it is ready for painting.

This is one of Patricia's handmade procelain dolls, from head to toe. The fabric for the clothing is old; either purchased at an auction or flea market. Patricia trys to make each doll as authentic as possible.

Next the doll's face is painted, trying to make the doll look as real as possible. And Patricia said, "That the hardest part." Fortunately, the paint can be removed as often as needed before the doll is fired in the kiln. But once it is fired nothing can be changed. Patricia has become so involved in doll making for her business that she has built a kiln in her workshop for easy access.

Once out of the kiln, the doll is ready for the final touches, hair and clothing. Patricia sews the clothing from old material collected and bought at antique sales and auctions which she uses to produce the period clothing from the Colonial, Edwarian and Victorian eras.

Being more of a collector's item than the bandboxes, Patricia's porcelain dolls are usually specialy ordered by individuals requesting a certain size and garment style.

Her reproduction dolls have travelled as far as Texas, and one even left the United States to reside with its owner in Germany.

Since Patricia left her job as a secretary three years ago to fully devote all her time to her business, everything has blossomed three-fold. Not only is she attending at least eight craft shows a year; the Tin Type Gallery now has a booming mail order business.

Patricia said she supplies numerous boutiques all along the east coast with her reproduction bandboxes and porcelain dolls.

She remarked, She never believed her favorite hobbies could turn into a full-time successful business in just three short years; it is like a dream.

Homestead Notes

Here, Patricia works at filling an order for her bandboxes. She covers the outside with wallpaper and the inside with old newspaper she finds at auctions. Then she sews the top lid and bottom together with white crochet cotton.

Prepare for spring

During the fall, gardeners should be involved in a number of activities that can make their springtime more enjoyable and productive.

In the garden, both vegetable and flower, preparing the soil now will save time in the spring when the soil will be in prime condition and ready to plant. Gardeners should have their soil tested and add the recommended amounts of lime and fertilizer. Use a fertilizer high in phosphorous. Avoid those high in nitrogen, which may leach out of the root zone before it is needed in the spring. Also, add organic matter, such as peat moss or compost.

The lime, fertilizer, and organic matter should then be incorporated by spreading or rototilling the soil. This, along with the freezing and thawing process, and early spring rains breaks up the soil and thoroughly mixes the lime and the fertilizer.

In landscape beds, the soil should be tested and the needed nutrients added (remember some plants such as rhododendron and azalea require a low pH level). Gardners should remove dead annual flowers planted in spring along with any other debris that may have fallen or blown into the beds. Do any light pruning to remove dead or diseased limbs and branches. Also, plant bulbs or other perennial flowers.

Finally, gardeners should mulch with organic matter such as shredded hardwood bark or wood chips to help moderate soil temperatures, control weeds and conserve soil moisture. Watering too, is very important, keep it up until the ground freezes. Plants need a good water balance going into winter, especially shallow rooted evergreens like rhododendron, azalea, and hemlock.

High schoolers admit they don't eat well

LANCASTER — High school seniors admittedly don't eat well, and they don't know enough about nutrition.

Those are just two of the findings in a comprehensive study of nutrition attitudes and knowledge in 6th and 12th grade students, elementary and secondary teachers, food service directors, and high school principals and administrators in private and public schools conducted by two University of Missouri-Columbia home economics education researchers.

Of all the groups surveyed by Betty Martin and Joan Quilling, the high school seniors seem to have the most inconsistent diets.

"Generally, they were not getting adequate nutrients, didn't follow a planned meal program and did not consistently eat breakfast," Quilling said. "About 42 percent didn't eat the school lunch."

When quizzed about nutrition, good service directors, principals and other school administrators scored about the same, getting 84 percent of the questions right. Elementary and secondary school teachers weren't far behind with 78 percent accuracy.

But the seniors gave right answers only 59 percent of the time, just a little ahead of the sixth graders who were 54.7 percent accurate.

"While many people may have expected what our research showed, the study is one of the first attempts in the state of Missouri to determine the attitudes and knowledge of nutrition of people in the school system," said Quilling. The research was funded by NET, the federally funded Nutrition Education Training Program.

"Most of the students in the study, particularly the high school seniors, were aware they weren't eating as well as they should," Martin said. "In fact 60 percent of the high school seniors we surveyed said they were not getting a sufficient diet."

"They seem to be victims of a fast-paced society, always eating on the run," Quilling said. "Also, for many of these students, both parents work outside the home which may sometimes mean the students must fend for themselves at mealtime.

"That's unfortunate, because there's plenty of research to show that students who eat a good diet, particularly at breakfast, tend to do better in school."

Quilling and Martin surveyed 443 sixth grade students, 650 twelfth grade students, 25 principals/administrators, 28 food service directors, and 452 sixth and twelfth grade teachers. All the data were collected in 28 private and public school districts around the state of Missouri that expressed an interest in nutrition education.

Each group was tested in six goal areas: food and nutrients, eating habits and patterns; utilization of food; consumer skills; food handling and storage; and food ecology. The sixth graders scored highest on food ecology, which includes knowledge of world food distribution.

creative cooking IDEAS

Maple syrup

LANCASTER — It's a moist, forest-scented morning in camp or cabin and the flapjacks are bubbling atop a hissing burner. You add boiling water to a sweet brown powder and instantly it becomes a pure, natural maple syrup.

Until recently this would have been a dream, but now a Vermont firm has perfected a method for drying maple syrup in a form that stays fresh and granular indefinitely on the shelf or in your pack. No more sticky, heavy cans and bottles; no more imitation maple syrups; no refrigeration is needed.

All natural nutrients and the unique flavor of maple syrup are retained; only the water is removed. You're left with a powder that can be reconstituted, sprinkled dry over hot or cold cereal, stirred into coffee or tea, scooped into recipes in place of cane sugar. The dehydrate was developed at a U.S. Forest Service maple research center and is now made under license. Like the pure maple syrup it's made from, it has a tenth the sodium of honey, as much calcium as milk, and no chemicals or preservatives.

You'll see Pure Maple Granules in several catalogues and in gourmet, health food, and camp supply stores. Or write to Vermont Country Maple Inc., Box 53 J, Jericho Center, VT 05465.

Petroleum company predicts positive heating season

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Robert J. Kutil, president of Agway Petroleum Corporation headquartered in Syracuse, New York, states that barring major disruptions in the Middle East, there shoud be adequate supplies of fuel oil with slight monthly increases throughout the heating season, running from mid-September to mid-March.

Prices at the wholesale level have been strengthening during the past few weeks. Retail price increases will follow, he says.

"The Northeast is very dependent on heating oil. Even minor disruptions affect the petroleum market substantially and very quickly," Kutil says. "If we happen to get a major disruption, surpluses can disappear in a thirty to sixty day period."

Kutil says that while as much as 40% of crude oil used in the United States comes from Middle East, the fact that crude is available from Mexico, the North Sea, and the Alaskan North Slope has helped hold down the prices OPEC can command.

Kutil emphasizes that while new technology is available, homeowners can still save substantially on their home heating bills by having their oil burners checked, adjusted, and if necessary, updated.

According industry figures, probably 80% of the oil burners in the Northeast are obsolete. Twenty-year-old oil heating systems can be modernized without switching energy sources to gas, wood, or anything else. An efficiency check of the burner or an energy audit of the house, can save tremendously on the fuel bill.

"Right now, natural gas is cheaper than heating oil," Kutil says. "But with the increases in natural gas prices that are coming, together with the cost of conversion, home-owners need to think seriously before converting to gas. De-control of natural gas is coming rapidly. This will allow the price to go up substantially. Recently, a number of utilities have announced increases."

Made by the Van Wert Manufacturing Company with over 40-years experience in quality heating equipment, the Simplex Multitherm is designed to give you maximum flexibility. As an add-on to existing systems, it adds inexpensive wood and coal capabilities to your oil or gas units. For new or replacement systems, it provides its own backup fuel by switching automatically from solid fuel to fossil fuel. It's virtually today's most perfect energy machine that assures you dependability of fuel supply.

- Cast iron and steel construction
- Full cast iron shaker grates
- Automatic, U.L. listed controls
- Rated for hot water or low pressure steam systems
- ASME approved—U.S. made—with confidence
- Built-in domestic hot water coil
- 3-Pass Boiler Design for Greater Efficiency
- Two quality units. The combination multi-fuel, and the wood-coal unit for independent or tie-in use with existing system

October is pork month!

October has been designated Pork Month, and it's no wonder because pork is so delicious and so versatile.

But perhaps the best news on pork is that it is a nutrient dense food, meaning it's high in nutrients for the calories consumed.

Pork adapts well to the cuisines of different cultures. In Mexico, pork is an important ingredient in cooking as in Tostadas with Pork, included on this page.

But you may enjoy an American dish instead; so try Pork Chops and Potatoes also on this page. There are two pleasant surprises in this dish of scalloped potatoes. The first is that you can eliminate making the traditional white sauce by using a can of Cheddar cheese soup with milk. The second is a spicy, tangy accent provided with a bit of Blue cheese. Thinly sliced onions enhance the flavor of both potatoes and pork chops.

PORK CHOP AND POTATOES

6 pork chops, 1/2-inch thick
2 T. flour
1 t. salt
1 can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
1 c. milk
1/3 c. crumbled Blue cheese
6 med. baking potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
1 1/2 c. thinly sliced onion
2 T. flour
1 t. salt
1/8 t. pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Trim fat from chops; fry trimmings. Combine 2 T. flour and 1 t. salt; coat chops. Brown chops well on both sides in pork fat in a large skillet. Remove from skillet; set aside. Drain off fat. Add soup to skillet; gradually stir in milk. Heat to boiling point over medium heat; remove from heat and stir in Blue cheese. Arrange half of the potatoes and half of the onions in buttered, 3-quart, rectangular baking dish. Combine 2 T. flour, 1 t. salt and pepper; sprinkle half of flour mixture over potatoes and onion. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Pour cheese sauce over all. Arrange chops on top; cover casserole with foil. Bake, covered, 1 hour. Uncover and continue baking 30 to 45 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender.

PARK BARBECUE SANDWICHES

15 to 18 thin slices pork roast
1 c. catsup
1 c. water
1/2 c. finely chopped onion
1/4 c. cider vinegar
2 T. light brown sugar
1 t. paprika
3/4 t. liquid smoke, or to taste
1/4 t. celery seed
6 to 8 drops hot pepper sauce
5 to 6 toasted hamburger buns or hard rolls cut in half butter, softened

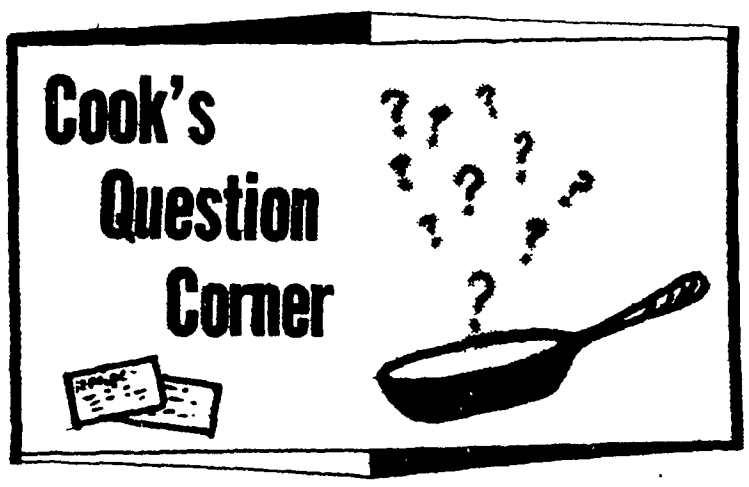
Combine catsup, water, onion, vinegar, brown sugar, paprika, liquid smoke, celery seed and hot pepper sauce in saucepan. Bring to simmering stage; simmer about 15 minutes to blend flavors and thicken slightly. Heat pork slices in barbecue sauce in skillet over low heat; turning slices once. Spread cut surfaces of buns or rolls lightly with butter.

Place heated pork slices on bottom halves of buns or rolls. Add barbecue sauce to taste and cover with bun or roll tops.

If your family has been asking for more meat dishes, you can satisfy their desire with a Pork Chop 'n Potato Scallop accented with cheese and milk. All of these foods are on the plentiful list to give the best price break for the food dollar.



QUESTION - I am looking for recipes to use honey combs. Does anyone have recipes for making candy with it?

SPICY CRUSTED HAM

1 boneless cooked, smoked half ham
1/3 c. light brown sugar
1/4 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1/4 t. dry mustard
1/4 t. allspice
1/4 t. black pepper
1/3 c. light or dark corn syrup whole cloves, optional

Place ham, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is in center of thickest part of ham. Cover ham face with aluminum foil to keep it moist. Bake in 325 degree oven as directed on package label or until meat thermometer registers 140 degrees. It will take about 2 hours for a 6 to 8 pound half ham. While ham is baking, prepare topping. Combine brown sugar, bread crumbs, mustard, allspice and pepper; mix well. Bring corn syrup to a boil; set aside. Thirty minutes before end of baking time stud with whole cloves, if desired; brush top and sides of ham with syrup. Sprinkle with about 1/3 of the crumb mixture. Bake 10 minutes. Drizzle with about 1/2 of the remaining syrup and sprinkle with 1/2 of the remaining crumbs. Bake 10 minutes longer. Repeat to use remaining ingredients.

ORANGE SHERRY PORK ROAST

3 to 4 pound boneless pork loin roast
3 c. orange juice
1 1/2 c. honey
1/4 c. cooking sherry

Insert rotisserie rod lengthwise through center of roast; balance roast; secure with rotisserie prongs. Insert meat thermometer at an angle so tip is in center of roast but not touching rod. Place on rotisserie.

Mix together thoroughly 2 1/2 c. of the orange juice, 1 cup of the honey, and the 1/4 c. cooking sherry. While cooking, inject the orange juice mixture into the meat. Cook meat slowly 2 to 2 1/2 hours till meat thermometer registers 170 degrees. Approximately 1/2 hour before roast is finished, mix together the remaining 1/2 c. orange juice and 1/2 c. honey. Brush mixture on roast.

MOCK HAM LOAF

1 lb. hamburger
1/2 lb. hot dogs, ground
1 c. bread crumbs
1 egg
1/2 t. salt
1/2 c. milk or tomato juice

Mix well, form into loaf and put in baking dish.

Top with 3/4 t. brown sugar, 1 T. vinegar, 1 t. mustard, 1/2 c. water.

Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until done.

Mrs. Paul Brubaker, Myerstown

SLOPPY-JOE PORK

1 large onion, brown in shortening
Add:
1 1/2 c. broth or water
1 c. catsup
1 to 2 t. Worchestershire sauce
1 T. brown sugar
1 t. salt
1 t. vinegar
1/2 t. celery salt
1 t. chili powder
5 to 6 c. chopped pork roast

Simmer for 20 minutes. Italian bread crumbs may be added for extra flavor at the end, or to soak up excess juices.

NOTHING RUNS LIKE A DEERE

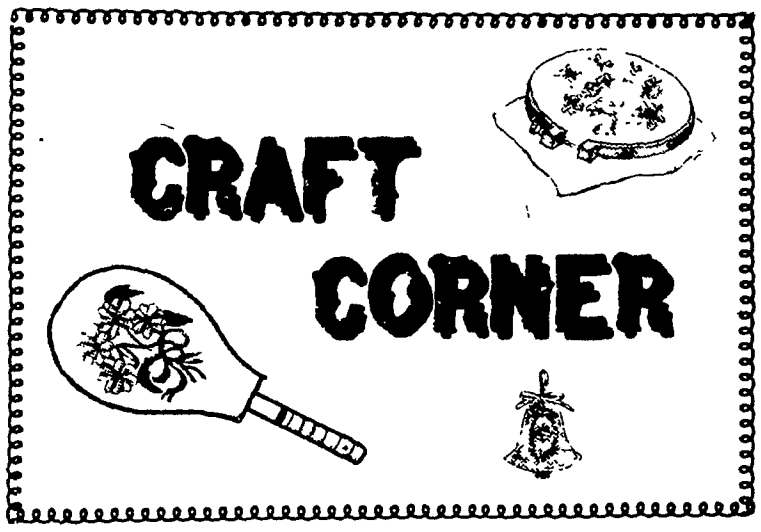
JOHN DEERE OFFERS SPECIAL END-OF-SEASON FINANCING...

BUY NOW AND SAVE $$$

If you buy a new John Deere lawn tractor or new lawn and garden tractor before March 1, 1983, with a normal down-payment, you'll have no monthly payments to make until April 1, 1983.* And to save you money, finance charges will not begin until March 1, 1983.

So if you buy now you can save two ways: First, on end-of-season price reductions; and, second, on the John Deere end-of-year finance offer.

Stop in soon while we still have a good selection of models and attachments available: 8- to 16-hp lawn tractors and 10- to 20-hp lawn and garden tractors. Some models have hydrostatic drive.



'Bean size' bonsai

Growing bonsai or dwarfed trees is an art in Japan. The trees are raised, shaped and trained to grow in tiny pots. The objective: a miniature version of the original tree.

According to "Bonsai Miniatures — Quick & Easy," published by Charles E. Tuttle Co., the guiding principle in bonsai is "learn from the tree." It's not necessary to follow every traditional rule, says the book. With an understanding of planting and plant care, anyone can enjoy a bonsai garden.

The book is a miniature itself, filled with notes and color photographs of bonsai by Zeko Nakamuro, a Zen Buddish acolyte as a child, a comedian in Japanese TV and movies today, and a bonsai master.

Nakamura's bonsai are all between 2 and 4 inches high. The category is the smallest in bonsai, known as "mame" or "bean size" bonsai.

Although you can enjoy your bonsai from the moment you plant it, a finished bonsai is the result of years of patience and attention.

Here is one, simplified way you can begin:

FINDING THE PLANT

1. Carefully dig up a small wild plant from its natural growing place. Take care not to damage any fibrous roots, but remove the taproot. Leave soil on the roots.

2. Wrap plant in moistened moss or newspaper. Gently carry plant home in a plastic bag.

PREPARATION

1. Choose a container, slightly larger than the usual bonsai container.

2. Leave fine roots, but prune long roots to fit plant into the container.

3. Leave interesting branches, and cut away all others.

PLANTING

1. Place fine copper wire mesh over drainage hole in pot.

2. Spread coarse, granular soil over the mesh.

3. Place tree in the pot.

4. Place roots carefully. Cover with fine soil, taking care to make soil firm enough to hold tree in place.

5. Clean excess soil from pot.

6. Water plant.

CARE

1. For the first week, keep pot in half-shade. Spray with water as needed.

2. Place pot in the sun for half a day, for four or five days.

3. Move pot to a permanent place in the sunlight.

4. Water plant as needed; in summer, as much as five to seven times a day; in winter, once a day or every other day.

5. Fertilize as needed.

SAUSAGE AND SQUASH BAKE

4 acorn squash
1 lb. bulk pork sausage
1 c. chopped celery
1/4 c. chopped onion
1/4 c. chopped green pepper
1 1/2 c. shredded Provolone cheese
1/2 c. grated Parmesan cheese butter
salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Halve and seed squash; place cut side down in shallow baking pan. Add 1/2 inch water to pan and bake 35 to 45 minutes or until tender. Brown sausage well; pour off drippings. Stir in celery, onion, green pepper, Provolone and Parmesan cheese. Turn squash cut side up; dot with butter. Salt and pepper insides of squash. Fill with sausage mixture. Bake 15 additional minutes.

TOSTADAS WITH PORK

1 lb. ground lean pork
1 c. chopped onion
1 jar taco sauce
1 t. salt
1/2 t. chili powder
1/4 c. sliced pitted ripe olives cooking oil
4 corn or flour tortillas
3 to 4 c. shredded lettuce
1/2 c. shredded Monterey jack or Cheddar cheese
1 medium-size tomato, cut in thin wedges
1/2 c. dairy sour cream
additional taco sauce

In skillet, lightly brown ground pork and onion. Add taco sauce, salt and chili powder; cover and cook over low heat 15 minutes or until pork is done and flavors blended. Stir in ripe olives. Heat about 1/8 inch oil in skillet over medium high heat. Fry tortillas, one at a time, turning frequently until crisp, slightly puffed and lightly browned. Drain on paper towels. For each tostadas place a crisp tortilla on a plate. Top with layer of lettuce, then hot pork mixture. Sprinkle with cheese, if used. Garnish with tomato wedges and dollup of sour cream. Serve with additional taco sauce, if desired.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Do you realize this is the first Saturday night we've been out alone together in ages?" I remarked to the farmer as we headed up the road last weekend.

Overhead, the clear sky was darkening to dusk, stars faintly twinkling in the deep blueness. From the western horizon, the setting sun cast a brilliant crimson glow across the peaceful evening.

Romantic, you might even say.

Except that on the passenger side of the family car sat the farmer, a cold, bloodied washcloth cradling his left little finger.

"That's going to take stitches," was my earlier opinion of the two-inch gaping split that sliced down the side of the finger. "Maybe," he countered, but gave little argument about the inevitable need for medical needlework.

But first, the cows had to be tied in their stalls and fed, then the milking started. Arrangements were made for Glenn to stay even later after his already long day in the field to help milk.

Wouldn't you know, Bambi chose this time to deliver her calf. Bad enough that she presented us a big bull, but did it have to come upside down?

Still oozing blood after two hours of barn chores, the wound showed no signs of miraculously healing so he could finish the remaining work at hand.

"Sure, just wait to go have it stiched when you have time," wryly observed his mom, with a horrified look at the finger when she dropped by on an errand.

Eventually, calf delivered, the day's grease and barn dirt somewhat dispersed by a quick shower, he meandered through York Hospital's emergency entrance.

"Mashed finger between a cow's head and a pipe," dutifully typed the records computer operator. With a grin, she added, "I like to make 'em laugh when they read these."

During our relatively brief wait, a rapid succession of sprained and broken arms and ankles, one obviously pregnant lady, a baseball player sporting a cut above his eye and four ambulances bearing an elderly fall victim and car accident cases swelled the thin ranks of the waiting room.

Each in turn received prompt, professional attention in spite of the paperwork involved in such medical care and the sudden crowd that had assembled.

Waiting his turn, the farmer made an observation: "Everyone should see this now and then. It makes you aware and thankful of the care that's available."

One X-ray, a thorough washing with germicidal cleasing solution, several stitches and a couple of precautionary injections later, we exited the now-calmer emergency center to return home, the evening lit with a romantic full moon.

Looking back, maybe I just should have called the vet. He does the exact same kind of stitching. And it might have been easier to get him up here to the farm, than to slow down the farmer long enough to go for repairs.

In a flash of useless hindsight, if I'd known this was the kind of Saturday night date I could expect from a farmer, I'd never have agreed to go steady.

Kid's Korner

Farewell, Mr. Blacksmith

Kids, here is the fourth part to our story about a real ol' time blacksmith The story was written by a blacksmith living in the 1900's in Indiana

Blacksmiths were innovators in methods and tooling. However, in our shop we also designed and built equipment. Much of this was gladly accepted. Engineers came many miles not only to see our work but to observe and study it in use. When a product you designed is broadly accepted, where ever it is, or whoever it servces, it is always yours, your very own.

With Mama, experimental work was challenging and interesting. She may have had the most creative, engineering mind that ever served this earth. The benefits of our blacksmith shop could not be honestly evaluated without including her. It was not necessary for Mama to come to the shop because we communicated by drawing pictures and making sketches. Since I can remember, she and I enjoyed making sketches for each other. She was much more skilled at this than I ever became. She believed you could accomplish more if you were unconcerned about recognition or compensation. The odds are your Mama can make you look extremely good if you give her the slightest chance.

Farmers would often drop off plowshares to be pointed and be told when they would be complete. For shoeing a team, they would stay until the team was shod. Sometimes there were two to five teams to be shod that day. It took at least two hours for one man to shoe a team properly, and the better part of the day for two men to set four wagon wheel tires. We often had an audience with no place for them to go, so they would visit until their work was complete.

Every smith was exposed to gossip. It would be awful if as many women confided, bragged and lied like some men. Maybe our Supreme Court should consist of all women. The smith heard so many lies that he became expert in distinguishing the truth. It is like a solid or glancing blow with a hammer. The sound has a different ring.

The smith knew who moved into the Jones' place, where they came from, how many horses they had and their condition, how many children they had and what year of school they were in. He knew who would be the next township trustee and what the job would cost him. He knew more about the community than all four ministers in town. He was listening while they were preaching.

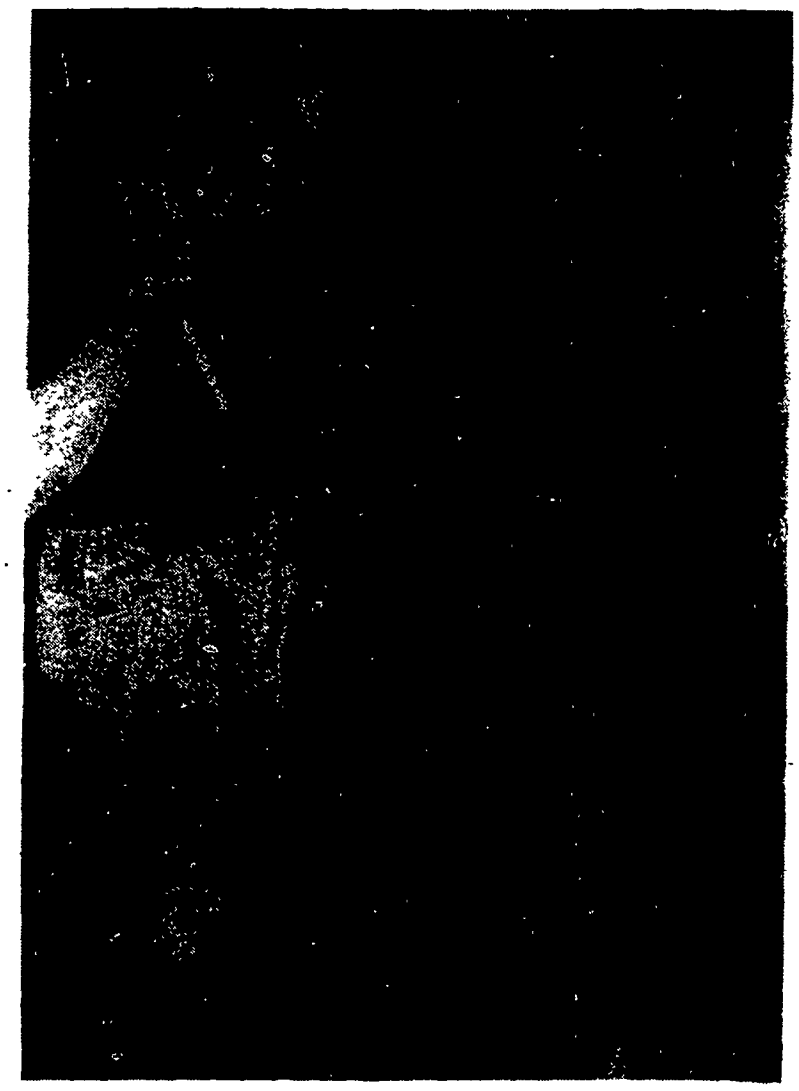
The horse on the left in a team is called the near horse, the horse on the right is called the far, or off horse. They are never referred to as left or right. In horse language Haw means angle to the left. Gee means angle to the right. A horse can be completely reversed in direction by repeating the proper word.

Many colts were broken to harness at age two instead of the conventional age three because the farmer needed the extra horsepower. The two-year-old seldom had enough maturity to compete with the older horses and the strain and heat induced a gradual loss of sight which often resulted in permanent blindness by age five. Some horses went blind later because of overwork, but asking too much too soon was the major cause of blindness in draft horses. About one in four was blind.

A blind horse teamed with a seeing horse will step up, step down, and go around just like he could see. When they are in the pasture, chances are the seeing horse will continue to see for his blind teammate. A deaf horse will start, stop, speed up or slow down as directed when teamed with a hearing horse. When they are in the pasture, chances are the hearing horse will continue to hear for his deaf teammate. We had a large black mare that was blind and other horses ignored her in the pasture. She appeared extremely awkward until a small pony started looking after her. After that she seemed perfectly normal. In many ways the communication and compassion between horses is better than that between humans.

A blind mare in the pasture during latter months of pregnancy can appear to be the most awkward forlorn animal you will ever see, but two or three days after her seeing colt is born you would have to be a close observer to recognize her as abnormal in any way. As long as this colt lives, when he is put in a pasture with other horses and one is blind, he will help this blind horse.

The performance of a blind or deaf horse when teamed with a sound horse can be so perfect that an observer would never notice the handicap. The team's communication is uncanny. Once, the near mare was blind on a mule team that pulled a cart to deliver rock to the crusher in a rock quarry. The only people who knew this were those that had been apprised of it. It would be both unthinkable and impossible to use a blind team for this job.



This ol' time blacksmith only appears to fit this description because at age 89, George Winters of R1 Palmyra is a modern-day smithy, still hammering at the anvil.

Chester judging team wins at Virginia State Fair

WEST CHESTER — Just a week after their win at the Big E in Massachusetts, the Pennsylvania 4-H livestock judging team from Chester County captured the Eastern U.S. 4-H Livestock Judging Contest high team award at the Virginia State Fair in Richmond.

The team, consisting of Chester County 4-H members Nelson Beam, Elverson; Don Cairns, Sadsburyville, Eileen Fairbnairn, West Chester, and Bill MacCauley, Atglen, not only was high team overall but was high team in beef cattle and sheep judging and third high team in swine. Nine teams from as far west as Indiana and as far south as Georgia participated.

Don Cairns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cairns, Angus breeders in Chester County, was high individual overall beating teammate Nelson Beam by one point in his reasons score and teammate Eileen Fairbairn who placed third overall by two points. The next closest team was the Virginia Team which was 34 points behind.

Nelson Beam had another good day placing fourth in beef judging, and fifth in swine judging. Eileen Fiarbairn was second high individual in sheep judging and Bill MacCauley was eleventh high individual overall. The team is coached by Cheryl Moran, county agricultural agent, Ted Teaford and Bill Fairbairn. The team is preparing for the Keystone Livestock Judging Contest and the Nationals in Louisville, Kentucky this November.

Md. State Grange to hear national lecturer

HAGERSTOWN — The 108th session of the Maryland State Grange will be held October 14-16 at the Sheraton Inn, Frederick.

She has sure-fire way to pick hog champ

MANHEIM — How do you go about picking a potential champion market hog when it's just a wee, little feeder pig yet?

Everyone – present and past 4-H'ers and FFA'ers alike –probably has their own little system and check list to follow.

Hog finishers who do it for a living probably go into it a little deeper.

And breeders, like Mark Nestleroth, of R5 Manheim, pay close attention to things like blood lines and other ancestral factors.

But take note, pop, and all you others, too, – there's an easier way to do it. Here's the advice of nine-year-old Beth Nestleroth, who showed the grand champion at the Manheim Fair Monday night in only her second outing in the show ring and her first fair competition in Lancaster County.

"I liked the way he looked," Beth said.

"I like the red, spotted pigs."

And that little red, spotted feeder she picked when she could probably hold it in her arms grew into a tall, long, lean barrow that ended up weighing nearly four times more than she does.

Judge Larry Arnold commented:

"He's super lean for his weight and when you find a hog like that there's only one way to go."

The championship circle at Manheim was a Dutch Valley Farms affair all the way, too. In addition to the grand champion that came out of the heavyweights, Chris Chapman had the mediumweight champion that went on to the show's reserve grand championship and older sister, Liz, had the lightweight champion.

And the Chapman sisters couldn't have been happier if they had won themselves. Both embraced the diminutive Beth as her Duroc-Yorkshire-Landrace cross was picked.

It was only the second competition for Beth, who had her debut in the recent 4-H Roundup.

Book learnin', training pay off

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MANHEIM — Take note all you FFA'ers out there – all that book learning and classroom instruction does pay off.

At least it did for 15-year-old Jan Waltz, of the Manheim FFA Chapter Tuesday night, when his 1200-pound Angus-Chianina cross won the grand championship of the steer competition at the Manheim Farm Show.

In addition, the second-year FFA member had the lightweight 4-H champ and finished first in the senior showing competition.

Just as it was a busy night for the youthful FFA'er, his first year in the Future Farmers of America last year was an eventful one, too.

At the conclusion of his greenhand year, Jan finished second in the state livestock judging competition at Penn State in June and will be going to Kansas City in about a month for the national competition. He's chaplain of the Manheim chapter, too.

He explains that a combination of three years of 4-H showing, reading books and his FFA training all contributed to his increasing knowledge of what it takes to produce a good beef animal.

And he has the practical background, too. His parents, Ardith and Nancy Waltz, finish steers on their Manheim R6 farm.

His coal-black champion, named J.R. because he's a bit stubborn, came from the Keystone Cattle Service operation of Cliff and Lynn Orley at Lebanon.

The grand champion baby beef is out of an Angus dam sired by the three-quarter Chianina bull, Silver Dollar.

The show's reserve champion and champion of the 4-H competition was shown by another Manheim Central sophomore, Kelly Rohrer, 15, daughter of Yvonne Rohrer, R5 Manheim.

Also, an Angus-Chianina cross, it tipped the scales at just 25 pounds less than the grand champ. It came from Marlee Farms in Maryland.

Judge Bill Holloway, of York County, admitted it was a tight competition between the two but picked the FFA animal over the 4-H because of its heavier muscling, thicker top and heavier loin.

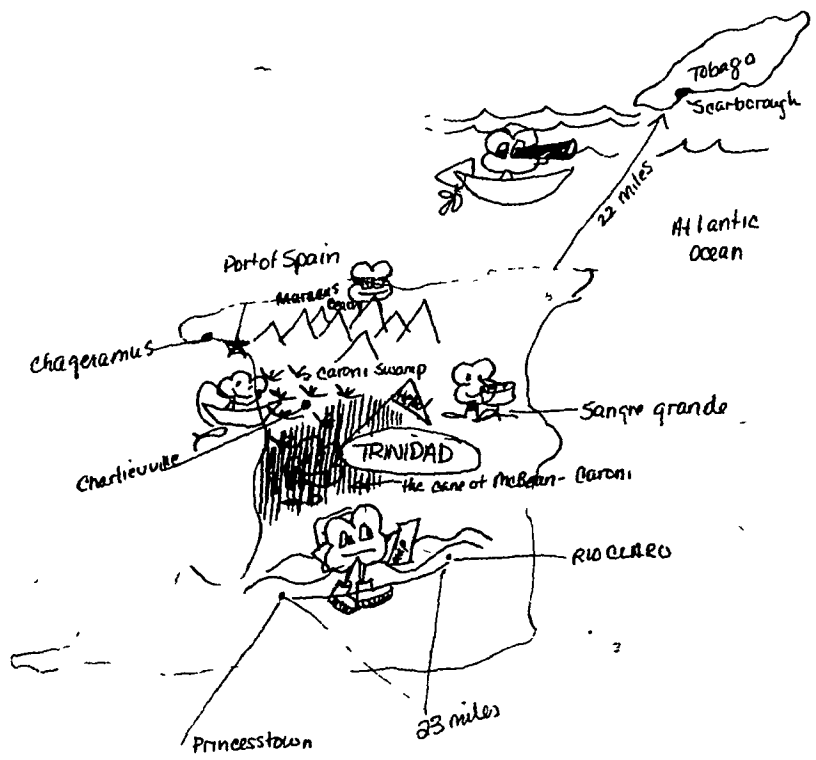
IFYE shares experiences in Trinidad

LANCASTER — Rebecca Ruhl, Pinkerton Road, Mount Joy, is representing Lancaster County in the Internaitonal 4-H Youth Exchange program this year. She is spending six months visiting the island countries of Trinidad-Tobago, and living and working with farm families there. She was written the following report of her activities thus far, from her host country.



Here, Becky secured the help of the 4-H mascot Cris Clover to help her draw a map of Trinidad and Tobago. Apparently Becky found lots to do in Trinidad as shown by her boating, hiking, sightseeing, swimming, and camping Clovers.

Greetings from Trinidad and Tobago, birthplace of the PAN, or steel drum. The PAN, as it is affectionately termed, is a 45-gallon oil drum, beaten and hammered to produce a sweet sound filled with depth and rishness.

So far, my stay in Trinidad has been one of many beautiful experiences for both eye and ear. I had never heard the steeldrum before coming here but in my first month I have become a lover of the PAN.

My education started on the first night of my stay as we were driving through the capital city of Port-of-Spain. After trying our first coconuts right from the tree, a sort of ritual one must go through when arriving in Trinidad, we stopped and listened as we heard a steelband practicing in one of the roadside "panyards." What a sound! I knew my ear needed more of it!

The development of the PAN is a tribute to man's ingenuity and is one the newest and only refined musical instrument of the 20th century. It is an instrument rising out of the burden of slavery of the Trinidadian people. It's roots are in the mixed African-Indian slaved culture of Trinidad history.

The era of the development of the steeldrum begins with the emancipation of the black slaves in 1943 and a type of music known as "tamboo-bamboo" which was actually the beating of different lengths of bamboo pieces. Drumming continued to bottles and cans in the 1930s and eventually to the 45-gallon steeldrum in the 1940s.

There are various legends as to who was actually the first to beat a steeldrum instead of bamboo and bottles, but the date usually given for the changeover is 1939.

Expermentation with the new instrument continued and many new bands were formed around Port-of-Spain to make music for the annual "Carnival" celebration in February.

With the outbreak of World War II in 1939, carnival was banned for security reasons and the drummer set out of experiment on his own with the pan. This created a huge pent-up reservoir of musical energy. When victory finally came on May 6, 1945, a huge music-filled march was led through Port-of-Spain with biscuit tins, pans and even garbage cans. Through the years, the steeldrum has been refined enough to be able to capture the best in classical music as well as calypso.

At my home in Sangre Grande I listened to the sound of the PAN in a civic center where the members of the Sangre Grande Cordettes had been practicing for an upcoming festival. I was able to meet the talented arranger-conductor of the band and he has become a good friend.

I gradually became totally engrossed in the music and made many a trip to the "panyard" to hear the Cordettes practice. The "panyard" is a unique place in itself. The outdoor practice hall of a steelband doubles as a basketball court, a place to pitch marbles and a center for sharing the news of the town.

Most member of the band work in other jobs during the day and play pan at night. Practice usually beings at 8 p.m. and sometimes runs late into the night. Being an IFYE has enabled me to see both sides of the live of these musicians, their homelife and their "pan life."

The Sangre Grande band has 35 members, all male, ranging in age from 15-60. None have formal music training and very few can read music. Yet from their drums come the perfectly orchestrated pieces of Rossini and Dvorak. They also play their own Trinidad-based calypso.

From the crowds that gather to watch, and from the faces of the players themselves, it's very easy to see how much these Trinidadians love their music.

I attended a festival with the Cordettes and got an inside view. After each pan received an intense tuning, we loaded the drums and were on our way. In performance the band members' faces, hands and whole bodies come alive as they communicate to their audience.

So far the music of the Cordettes is just one of the beautiful experiences of my stay in Trinidad.

There are, no doubt, many more to come!

Farmers to receive deficiency payments after Dec. 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced a payment schedule under which eligible farmers will receive deficiency payments on 1982 crops and advance deficiency and diversion payments on 1983 crops.

Block said as soon as possible after Dec. 1, eligible wheat and barley producers will receive all their deficiency payments due under the 1982-crop programs, and eligible corn, upland cotton, grain sorghum and rice farmers will receive 70 percent of the 1982-crop deficiency payments due them.

The remainder of the 1982-crop deficiency payments will be paid in early February to cotton and rice producers, while the final corn and grain sorghum payments will be made after April 1, Block said.

Producers of wheat and feed grains may request 50 percent of the projected 1983 deficiency payments and 50 percent of the 1983 diversion payments at the time they sign up, Block said. Sign up will be held Oct. 1, 1982 through March 31, 1983.

The deficiency payments rate equals the difference between the target price and the higher of the national average loan rate or the five-month weighted average market price received by farmers.

Block said advance diversion payment for wheat will be $1.35 per bushel times the farm yield times five percent of the farm base.

The advance deficiency payment will be 32.5 cents per bushel times the farm yield times the acres intended to be planted.

Advance payments also will be offered to farmers when they sign up in the 1983 feed grain, cotton and rice programs.

Diversion payments are compensation for land taken out of production in addition to any acreage reduction requirement.

CATALOGS ARE COMING!

Thanksgiving used to be the signal to begin Christmas sales and promotions but this year retailers re not even waiting until after Halloween. In case you haven't noticed, mail-order catalogs are already appearing in mailboxes and are being advertised widely. They promise hassle-free shopping for speciality items and low cost buying to stretch your Christmas dollar.

You can save time and possibly money buying through mail-order catalogs, but only with careful planning. Mail-order buying can be a little too easy and you end up with more gifts, the wrong gifts, and more bills than you need. Here's some advice on how to cope with these catalogs:

—Before you order, ask yourself if you are buying something you really need. Is your selection a planned purchase within your budget or are you buying on impulse?

—Before you fill out the order slip, be sure you have all the information you need — size, color, packing charge, shipping instructions.

—Once you've completed the order form, check it again for clarity and legibility. Be sure you haven't used confusing abbreviations, and that your numbers and words are readable. Do a double check on the amount you agree to pay.

—Never send cash. Use a money order, check, or credit card number. Before you mail your order and payment, make a photocopy for your own reference.

—If the wrong item is sent to you or arrives damaged, return it with a copy of your copy to verify your original order. Return both by insured parcel post, United Parcel Service or some other carrier that gives you a receipt and requires the recipient acknowledge the package by a signature. Always keep receipts until the transaction is complete.

—Be sure you understand the company policy on returns – some allow them under certain circumstances, others don't at all.

—Most mail-order houses guarantee delivery within a specific amount of time and you must not assume they'll arrive sooner. If time is getting short, order from catalog houses that have toll-free phone numbers and that will charge items to your credit card.

—Keep a list of things you've ordered by phone or by mail, the company you've ordered from and a running total of the cost. If you've allocated a certain amount for Christmas spending, don't fool yourself that mail-order expenses don't count. They may not appear on your credit card statement for another month or two — but paying later may be harder than paying now.

Pa. gets RAMP funds

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Eight states including Pennsylvania, will share $13,251,000 in supplemental federal funds during fiscal year 1982 to help people reclaim non-federal land damaged by coal mining.

Peter C. Myers, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, said last week the funds are from supplemental appropriations provided under the Rural Abandoned Mine Program administered by the secretary of agriculture.

Congress authorized the program in the Surface Mine Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. The purpose was to provide individuals with cost sharing and technical assistance in their efforts to reclaim non federal land disturbed by coal mining operations.

Coal mining states to receive the funds, and the amounts, are: [illegible] $125,000; [illegible] $1,062,000; Kentucky, $1,611,000; Ohio $1,570,000; Oklahoma, $985,000; Pennsylvania, $4,254,000; [illegible] Virginia, $2,664,000; and Wyoming $69,000.

Myers said the money will finance 45 high priority reclamation projects that were planned by the soil conservation agency last fiscal year but could not be contracted due to lack of funds. He said the funds will help reduce the backlog of 30 reclamation projects that his agency has in various stages of completion.

The federal government's share of reclamation ranges from 25 to 100 percent, depending on the acreage to be reclaimed, the proposed use and whether the benefits are mostly private or public. Each landowner may receive funds for reclaiming up to 320 acres. The contracts cover a 5- to-10 year period.

Licensing helps hunters protect dogs

HARRISBURG — The advent of small game season is nearing and Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell is reminding hunters "a license is a good way to protect the hunter's companion."

Regular small game season is scheduled to begin Oct. 30, with squirrel and grouse season beginning Oct. 16. as more hunters enter the fields each year, the number of lost dogs increases.

"With a license, we have the means to trace a dog's owner," says Hallowell. "If a hunter finds a stray dog, he should check the license and then contact the County Treasurer's Office."

License fees are only $1.20 for males and spayed females, and $2.20 for unspayed female dogs. They are still available in the County Treasurer's Office in the Courthouse.

Unless absolutely necessary, hunters should be careful to avoid wounding or killing a dog which is chasing game. The hunter is liable for damages unless the dog was endangering life. If a hunter kills a dog he must report it to a game protector or the owner within five days.

Hallowell added, "Hunters can avoid problems by understanding the basic dog owner's responsibilities."

Personalities 'pull' at Lancaster Harvest Festival

Lancaster County Dairy Princess LuAnn Brenneman milked her way to a Challenge Round Championship when she squared off with the Harvest Festival milking champ, Wilson McElhinny, chairman of the board, Hamilton Bank.

Mayor Art Morris applies some non-political pressure to an obliging bovine. Morris went on to win his round with a whopping 20 ounces of the white stuff. Penn Manor FFA'er Tanya Green provides some reassurance to the cow.

LANCASTER — Last Friday and Saturday, downtown Lancaster had all the sights and sounds of the county's agri-industries.

A ewe with two lambs, a couple market hogs and a few head of Holsteins had pedestrians lined-up three-deep on Penn Square.

The country had moved in for a couple days thanks to the second annual Downtown Harvest Festival, sponsored by the Agriculture Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

"This is really a county-wide effort," explained committee chairman John Barley. The intent of the two-day festival, he said, is to provide focus on Lancaster County products to the non-farming public.

While the number of exhibitions and pieces of machinery grew so did the attendance, especially among the school-age crowd.

The festival attracted more than 1,100 school children who filed in Lancaster County Commissioner Jean Mowery offers a few encouraging words to her milking contest partner, while Michelle Dean of Lampeter-Strasburg looks on.

Commonwealth Bank's Agri-Loan chief Bob Bucher has his omlet creations surveyed by Lancaster County Poultry Princess Darlene Musser.

Of course no contest is complete without highly respected officials. Lancaster County agents Jay Irwin, left, and Glenn Shirk, check for uniform weights on the milking pails.

The Harvest Festival attracted more than 1,100 school children, who seemed to keep PenSupreme dippers, Joe Gray, left, and Rodney Spangler busy all day. Gray estimated that more than 600 free ice cream cones were passed out by noon.

class by class. Everyone, however, young or old, was treated to free ice cream cones, chicken, hot dogs, Lancaster County grown potato chips and much more.

Lunchtime on Friday not only offered free food but enjoyable entertainment as well. Several personalities, including the mayor, county commissioners, TV and radio personalities and bank representatives found themselves at the flanks of a few cooperating cows for a milking contest.

Hamilton Bank's chairman of the board, Wilson McElhinny finished at the top with 21 ounces of milk. Mayor Art Morris followed closely with 20 ounces. County Commissioner Jim Huber and WGAL anchor man Keith Martin finished in the championship round with nine and eight ounces, respectively.

McElhinny, however, had to withstand one more test. He squared off in a challenge round with Lancaster County Dairy Princess LuAnn Brenneman, no stranger to the milk pail.

It was indeed a close race to the finish, but experience held out over enthusiasm and Brenneman can now add one more notch to her crown. — DT.

Save tomatoes from frost

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — With the first killing frost probably less than two weeks away, it's time for home gardeners to make plans for indoor ripening of green tomatoes.

By following the suggested procedure, you can keep fresh tomatoes well into December, says Ethel M. Dutky, Extension plant pathologist in the botany department of the University of Maryland.

Select only sound, full-sized fruit, free of wounds and spots. Be sure that you harvest green tomatoes before they are hit by a hard frost.

If you've been following a regular spray schedule through the summer months, using recommended fungicides, your tomatoes should keep well throughout the indoor ripening process. These recommended fungicides include zineb and chlorothalonil.

But, if you've been lax on your fungicide spraying in the last month or so, you can reduce post-harvest rots by soaking your green tomatoes in a diluted chlorine bleach solution immediately after harvest.

Use a mixture containing one part of bleach to 20 parts of water. This is equal to about three-fourths of a cup of bleach in one gallon of water.

Soak tomatoes in the diluted bleach solution for 10 or 15 minutes. Then rinse and dry them carefully; spread them out on a flat surface, and store in a cool, well-ventilated basement or closet to ripen.

Winter squash, pumpkins and gourds will be less prone to rot if given the same treatment before storage, Dutky commented

She recommends that ripening produce be inspected regularly. Any fruits that show signs of rot or other damage should be discarded. Keep in mind that green peppers seldom ripen well indoors and should be used promptly after harvest.

PDA announces apple recipe contest

HARRISBURG — If you think you have a unique, tasty, yet simple apple recipe, you may want to share it with your fellow Pennsylvanians and at the same time try for one of several cash prizes.

Prices in the 1983 Pennsylvania Apple Recipe Contest, to be held at the Hershey Convention Center, include a $200 first prize, $150 second prize, $100 third prize, $75 fourth prize and $50 prizes to six runners-up. The contest is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board in cooperation with the Pennsylvania State Horticultural Association.

Pennsylvania apples must be an ingredient in each recipe. Judging will be based on ease of preparation, economy, appeal, taste and appearance.

The contest is open to all Pennsylvania residents. You may enter by sending your name, address, phone number, recipe name and the recipe to: Apple Recipe Contest, Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board, Pa. Dept. of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

All entries submitted must be scratch recipes and should list the name, all ingredients, the quantity of each ingredient and step-by-step mixing and cooking instructions. Only one entry per contestant is allowed and it must be postmarked no later than December 31.

Ten finalists selected from submitted entries must appear at the Hershey Convention Center with completed, prepared recipes to be eligible for final judging. Judging will take place during the annual meeting of the State Horticultural Association in February, 1983. Finalists will be reimbursed for round-trip mileage and will be treated to a complimentary luncheon.

All recipes become the property of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board for publicity and other purposes. Winning entries will be published in an apple recipe booklet.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This morning, for some reason, I can't seem to find a central theme on which to write this article.

So when I hear my husband start to fill the old milk cans and big white plastic containers with water for the 14 heifers in the upper pasture, I volunteer to do the job so that he is free to scrape the stables. After all, wouldn't you think that standing for 30 minutes with a green hose in one hand would give you lots of time to think?

The only problem is that my thoughts are scattered—where should I plant those extra iris plants? Should I mow the yard today or hope that Cindy will do it when she comes home this weekend? Must I pick Kentucky Wonder beans today or would tomorrow be better?

As I walk in to the house, I notice the red leaves of poison ivy on the trees in the fence row and the walnut leaves laying in the front yard and I realize that the house plants must be potted very soon. They look so pretty and healthy there in the garden that I dread to disturb them, but I know cool nights will not help them.

On my way to the kitchen, I gather a bouquet of dahlias as I planted some 30 clumps in the spring. This fall I don't intend to bring them all in and if anyone wants them, they are certainly welcome to them.

Next on my list of things to do is pick the two-inch cucumbers that I preserve as sweet spiced pickles. It might seem late for them but what I have now is a "second" garden that was planted the end of June after I removed the fences from the sugar peas. Yesterday, I picked a bushel of squash and eight big green and white pumpkins.

Sometimes I wish that I could stay out of my garden long enough to bake some cookies, as the apple-raisin cake that I made is almost eaten. But if I make them, then I will be nibbling on them and that I don't need.

Four cuttings best for alfalfa

COLUMBIA, MO — For best alfalfa production in the long run, go with four cuttings a year, University of Missouri-Columbia scientists reported this week.

"We've found that four cuttings before Sept. 15 give the best overall compromise between yield, quality and persistence," said C.J. (Jerry) Nelson.

"First cuttings should be made when cuttings are in late bud to first flower. The remaining time up to Sept. 15 should be divided into nearly equal increments to indicate when the second or third cutting should be made. And the fourth should be taken before Sept. 15 to allow regrowth to occur and to give the plants time to harden properly for winter."

UMC scientists have been conducting alfalfa management trials at the Southwest Center, Mt. Vernon, Mo., since 1973. In their experiments, the first and second harvests were made for hay at a normal time when plants reached first flower. Then some plots were harvested every two weeks, some every four weeks and some every six weeks until Sept. 15. The six weeks' treatment closely resembles the normal four-cut system.

"The plots cut every two weeks during summer showed signs of weakened plants early in the study," Nelson said. "Plants gradually died until less than one per square foot remained in 1978, so that cutting program had to be discontinued.

"At the end of 1981, the four-week program had two plants per square foot and the six-week treatment had 2.3 plants per square foot. We normally expect forage yields to be reduced when plant density of alfalfa decreases to less then 3 plants per square foot."

In 1981, average yeilds on the four-week treatments were 4.5 tons an acre while those on the six-week treatment (four-cutting program) were 5.5 tons an acre.

"In April of this year, we dug roots from the plots, then cut them off six inches below ground. Root weights were similar for the four- and six-week treatments.

"But when we looked at stems, we found that the average weight was nearly double for the six-week treatment compared to the four-week treatment. This suggests that cutting more frequently decreases yield by decreasing stem vigor much more than by decreasing stem number."

Nelson said that in earlier research he found that about 65 to 70 percent of the total seasonal yield occurred in the first two cuttings of alfalfa, mainly because water and high temperatures decreased growth during July and August. In fact, he said, yields were often less than a half a ton per acre for the third and fourth cuttings, making it uneconomical to harvest them.

USDA lowers FmHA's interest rates

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Interest rates on most loan programs at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration went down Oct. 1, reported Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block.

Block said the reductions, which were as much as a full percentage point for farm operating loans and market rate community facilities loans, reflect progress in the nation's drive to roll back inflationary interest rates.

Reductions will apply to farm, community and rural housing loans made by the rural credit agency.

The reductions are a result of legislation that calls for the USDA agency's interest rates to parallel those in other key sectors of the money market.

"We are able to lower our interest rates because the cost of money to the U.S. Treasury has been down in recent months and the average yield for municipal bonds also has been lower," said Charles W. Shuman, Farmers Home administrator.

In farmer programs, the interest rate for farm operating loans is reduced from 14.25 percent to 13.25 percent. For long-term farm loans, such as farm ownership, soil and water, recreation, grazing associations, irrigation and drainage and Indian land acquisition, the rate declines from 13.25 percent to 13 percent.

For limited resource borrowers, operating loan rates drop from 11.25 percent to 10.25 percent and farm ownership loans move downward slightly, from 6.625 percent to 6.5 percent.

In the emergency loan program, the rate drops from 17 percent to 16.25 percent on actual loss loans for disasters occurring after Oct. 1 to applicants who can obtain credit from other sources but choose to borrow from the agency. For borrowers unable to obtain credit from other lenders, actual loss loans will continue to be made at 8 percent. For borrowers eligible for continued annual production loans, the rate goes down from 16 percent to 15.5 percent.

Under the agency's housing programs, the interest rate drops from 13.5 percent to 13.125 percent for single family housing, rural rental housing and housing site loans.

The rate for housing loans to above-moderate-income borrowers (and moderate-income borrowers who can afford Housing and Urban Development Department rates) was lowered from 15 percent to 14 percent on Sept. 20.

For community facility and water and waste disposal loans, the full interest rate drops from 11.625 to 10.625 percent. This rate is based on current market yields for municipal obligations. The intermediate rate, for communities of moderately less than average means, declines from 8.375 percent to 7.875 percent. The rate for lower-income communities remains unchanged at 5 percent.

Shuman said the intermediate rate recently introduced by the USDA agency "will keep credit resources alive for many communities that need public facility improvements to create job opportunities or maintain present employment."

Guaranteed loans for business and industrial development continue to be negotiated between borrowers and lenders. Loans made by Farmers Home for small scale biomass energy projects will be made at 13 percent instead of the previous rate of 13.25 percent.

Farmers Home Administration is the rural credit agency of the US. Department of Agriculture. It makes a wide variety of loans and grants and provides technical assistance to help improve economic and living conditions in rural America.

Services of the agency are delivered through a system of nearly 2,000 county offices, 300 district offices and 46 state offices covering rural areas throughout the nation.

Cut conservation costs

HARRISBURG — Soil loss by erosion costs agricultural producers money, reminds Joel Myers of the Soil Conservation Service in Dauphin County. Myers says both direct and indirect losses are involved.

Direct losses, he explains, include the value of the lost soil as well as lost spray materials, lime, fertilizer and organic matter. A 15-ton soil loss, average for land farmed in continuous row crops, results in a loss of $75 when calculating the loss of $5 per ton, stresses Myers. Estimates also show that $22 worth of spray materials, lime, fertilizer and organic matter are lost, for a total of $97.

Indirect losses include the reduction of yields due to losses of spray materials and fertilizer.

"The loss of potential production by the reduction in depth of top soil, in many instances shallow, has already reduced soil depth," add Myers.

Myers notes "common" conservation practices help retain rainfall and increase soil moisture, specifically contouring, stripcropping, terraces, crop residue utilization, winter cover crops and conservation tillage.

"At a time when conservation is so badly needed, it is unfortunate that farm income is down and government assistance is also being reduced," says Myers. He pledges one of the 1983 goals of SCS is to accomplish more conservation work at less total cost. "This means utilizing such equipment as the new terrace plow, farm tractors and plows, and other equipment, while making the best use of the currently available heavy earth moving equipment," Myers says.

U.S. ag commodities sell to Mexico

DECATUR, Ga. — Following several meeting between United Egg Producers and the commodity Credit Corporation, $1 billionin guarantees under CCC's Export Credit Guarantee program (GSM-102) to U.S. exporters have been authorized for sales of U.S. agricultural commodities to Mexico.

$19.8 million of the newly authorized guarantees are now available for shell eggs in cases. Other commodity guarantees include: $450 million for sales of feed grains (barley, corn, sorghum, and oats); $75 million for wheat: $247 million for oilseeds (cottonseed, soybeans, peanuts and sunflowerseed); $38.4 million for tallow $8.5 million for vegetable oils (cottonseed, soybean, peanut, and sunflowerseed); $61.5 million for protein meals (cottonseed, soybean, and sunflowerseed); and $19.8 million for shell eggs in cases. The remaining $99.8 million will be designated later.

Three-year coverage will be available, provided that all sales are registered and shipments completed by Sept. 30, 1983.

These new guarantees are in addition to the $65 million authorized earlier to Mexico for sales of feed grains (barley, corn, sorghum and oats) and for vegetable oils (cottonseed, soybean, peanut, and sunflowerseed).

To be eligible for guarantees, U.S. exporters must submit an application along with a guarantee fee to CCC before export is completed. The guarantors will be Banco International, S.A., and Banco Nacional de Comercio Exterior, S.A. and/or other eligible banks.

The guarantee rates include a charge to provide for per annum interest rate coverage of up to 8 [illegible] anteed value. Exporters may apply for a guaranteed value up to a maximum of 98 percent of the port value.

Based on seminnual repayments of principal, plus accrued interest, the fee rate is 15.6 cents per $100 for six months; 23.4 cents per $100 for one year; 39.3 cents per $100 for two years; and 56.5 cents per $100 for three years.

Based on equal annual repayments of principal, plus accrued interest, the fee rate is 32.9 cents per $100 for one year; 50.1 cents per $100 for two years; and 69.2 cents per $100 for three years.

York Rabbit Club holds election

YORK — The York County 4-H Rabbit Club met recently to elect the following officers: president, Steve Knisely; vice president, Dawn Knisely; secretary, treasurer, Robin Langley; historian, Julie Godfrey; newsreporter, Chad Stine; membership, Dawn Knisely.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 27 and will include a Halloween party.

Whichway club elects officers

SPRINGTOWN — The Whichway 4-H Club met Monday, Sept. 27 to elect the following officers: president, Andrew Sutton; vice president, Bryce Keller; secretary, Kathy Ehlman; treasurer, Blaine Keller; news reporter, Briana Keller.

The club is planning a Halloween party and hayride on Oct. 15 at the Hottle farm at 7:30 p.m. Anyone over the age of 8 is invited.

The next meeting is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 1 at the Springfield Elementary School.

Pa. Grange State Session coming Oct. 25-28

HARISBURG — Pennsylvania Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates have been invited to address the 110th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Grange in Harrisburg, Oct. 25-28, at the Scottish Rite Cathedral.

Governor Dick Thornburgh, who has made his mark on agriculture by signing 30 important agricultural bills into law during his term of office, has been invited to address the Grange's Annual Meeting Banquet on Oct. 26. Thornburgh has appeared at two previous Grange conventions, as a gubernatorial candidate in 1979, and as governor in 1981.

In keeping with its commitment to nonpartisanship, the State Grange also has invited Allen Ertel, Democratic candidate for governor, to speak to members on Oct. 27.

In addition, the following state officials have agreed to speak at the Grange Session: Penrose Hallowell, Pa. Secretary of Agriculture; Peter Duncan, Pa. Secretary of Environmental Resources; Rep. Sam Hayes, House Majority Leader; and Sen. Edward Helfrick, chairman of the State Agriculture Committee.

Highlighting the 110th Session will be election of State Grange officers, a state talent contest, and finals in many state craft contests. Both the talent show and craft displays will be open to the general public (time to be announced).

Since the Grange is also a farm fraternity, the State session is the site for the presentation of the Sixth Degree or state level of achievement to its members.

The Grange has 43,000 members in 55 Pennsylvania counties and 450,000 members nationwide.

Penn's Agri-Women promote Agri-Learn

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — Agricultural education in the classroom and animal rights were featured program topics when members of Penn's Agri-Women gathered, September 30, for their annual meeting at the downtown Holiday Inn, here.

In keeping with a key goal of their national affiliate, PAW members are working closely with other farm groups in helping to introduce agriculture education into public school curriculums. Among the materials being incorporated is Agri-Learn Unlimited, an agriculture curriculum study for the fourth grade, written by former York County vo-ag instructor Bill Fleet.

Fleet gave a brief background of the development of Agri-Learn, and urged PAW members to make placing the material in inner-city and urban schools a priority goal. He also stressed the need to keep such efforts aimed at local school, implemented by the actions of local school district residents, rather than force the ag-education issue with a mandate.

Agri-Learn is split into nine chapters, dealing with such issues as life on the farm, the various types of agriculture production, comparisons of "then and now" farming, the variables of farming, career opportunities, and field trip ideas.

Each chapter includes established objectives, and activities for students tie in with other studies, such as math and reading. Attractive black-and-white line illustrations lend themselves to easy reproduction, while adding visual interest to the series.

Another education is chaired by Wendy Kellog, who heads the Mercer County's Farmers Association's local ag studies project. Mercer County's program includes studies at several elementary levels, with a kindergarten series in planning. Local resource people serve as classroom speakers on various types of farming enterprises.

Additional information on ag education efforts, and the Agri-Learn program is available from Gail McPherson, R1, New Park, PA.

Agri-Learn Unlimited, a curriculum study of agriculture aimed at the fourth grade level, is designed with activities geared to a broad range of teaching subjects, including social studies, match and reading.

Agri-Women member Pat Sueck, Airville, gave an update on the animal welfare movement. She predicted continued pressure on both national and state lawmakers for the passage of regulations aimed at curtailing modern agriculture animal production methods.

During the annual business session, outgoing president Gail McPherson reviewed activities of her tenure then turned over the leadership reigns to Judy Cihylik, Treichlers. Joyce Hershey of Cochranville, was elected vice president, and treasurer is Ethel Gross, Manchester.

Judy Cihylik, left, is the new president of Penn's Agri-Women. Center is Joyce Hershey, elected to the office of vice president, and Ethel Gross will handle treasurer duties.

Serving The Industry For Over 20 Years

For Todd Warner, York Fair exhibiting was the first leg of a journey west. Named for Fair's outstanding FFA exhibitor, Warner receives an expense-paid trip from the fair board to the November national FFA convention in Kansas City.

Warner is York Fair's outstanding FFA exhibitor

YORK — Todd Warner, R1, New Park was named the York Fair's outstanding FFA exhibitor for 1982.

Along with a plaque of recognition, Warner receives an expense-paid trip from the Fair Board to attend the National Future Farmers of America convention in Kansas City during the week of Nov. 8.

Eighteen-year-old Warner, son of James and Norma Warner, is a senior at Kennard Dale High School. Selected by his vo-ag advisors to participate in the supervised occupational training, Warner spends his work training hours assisting with the Warner family's dairy heifer care, turkey production, and field work with potatoes, hay, corn and small grains.

Although his father is in a family dairying partnership, Todd and his parents recently finished construction of their own milking barn where the FFA'er hopes to run his own partnership herd in the future. He now helps milk and feed a small herd being acquired for his own eventual full-time care.

Through the FFA chapter competition, Warner's won numerous local, county and regional awards in project books, tractor, small engine, dairy showing and judging. He was a member of the Kennard-Dale chapter's parliamentary procedure team competing at 1981 state competition.

A strong supporter of the community's fire fighters, Warner is an active volunteer with the Eureka Stewartstown Fire Company, and a member of the Hopewell Fish and Game Sportsmens Association.

Wenger honored as Outstanding Young Man

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — David M. Wenger, of Myerstown, Lebanon County, has been selected among the Outstanding Young Men of America for 1982.

Wenger was named to the national listing of outstanding young ment for his civic and professional contributions and achievements, including his diversified accomplishments in the Future Farmers of America.

Last year, Wenger was honored at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City as the Eastern Region Star Agribusinessman — one of only four FFA'ers to be so honored. He also received his American Farmer Degree — the highest in FFA — at the convention.

Wenger is a member of the family's farm equipment business at Myerstown and travels widely to handle used machinery purchases at auctions throughout the country.

The Outstanding Young Men of American Program, which is endorsed by the United State Jaycees, recognizes the achievements and abilities of men between the ages of 21 and 36.

The honorees are selected from nominations received from senators, congressmen, governors, mayors, state legislators, university and college presidents and deans, as well as various civic groups.

The criteria for selection include voluntary service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation.

Hoffman's aerial show is Montgomery County's first

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

PENNSBURG — Fact: Contour tillage can reduce soil losses by 50 percent.

Fact: Contour stripping can reduce soil losses by 75 percent.

Fact: Three to four tons of corn or sorghum residue or two tons of small grain residue will reduce soil erosion up to 95 percent.

These and more conservation guidelines for land with a three to eight percent slope are included in a research paper written by Joseph Turelle, former Chief Agronomist with the Soil Conservation Service.

It is also a well-known fact (at least to inhabitants of Montgomery County) that farmland in Montgomery County is dwindling due to urban pressure. A current land survey reveals that only 40 percent of the county's land is used for agriculture.

"We don't have that much land that we can lose," understated Wilson Hoffman, a Montgomery County grain and livestock farmer.

"Wilson uses his resources wisely. He makes his decisions based on the best available information," said Steve Hill, Montgomery County soil conservationist, who was on hand to witness the first aerial seeding of a small grain in the county.

Hoffman recently elected to seed about 125 acres of rye over a standing corn crop, which is no small item when the corn plants average 8 to 10 feet high.

"In a standing crop, its hard to plant a cover crop," Hill explained. "But with a helicopter, a farmer can overseed a fast-growing winter grass, which can come on in the fall and be there in the critical erosion period."

Wilson Hoffman and son Steve, background left, wait with their truckload of rye seed while pilot Victor Gray, in helicopter, and an Ag-Rotor technician make a few adjustments on the whirly-bird's seed spreader before take-off.

Gray pilots the helicopter skyward with a bucket of rye seed in tow. The pilot was able to seed four acres per trip.

Next spring, Hoffman's field will hold an estimated three to four tons of rye and corn stubble residue to battle soil erosion, retain moisture and maximize effects of pesticides and herbicides.

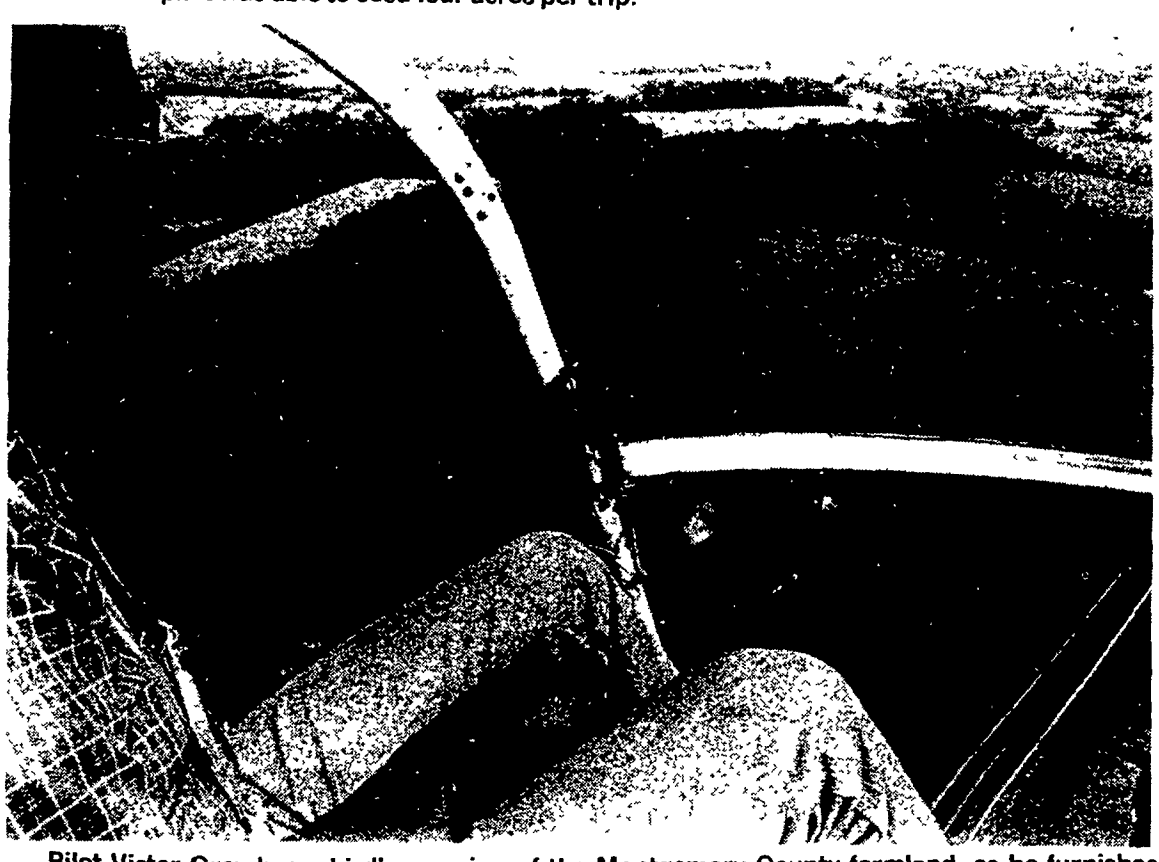
"After a rainstorm of less than one inch, there is almost zero percent run-off in a no-till system with a cover crop," Hill noted.

Hoffman, a staunch supporter of conservation practices, including no-till, joined forces with ASCS to cost-share about 50 percent the expense of seeding his fields.

"It wouldn't be a bad idea to seed everything, but I'm just going to do it to the ground I feel needs it the most," Hoffman said.

A helicopter, pilot and technicians, provided by Ag-Rotors, Inc., from Adams County, arrived on Monday and met Hoffman and his son Steve, 20, at a local airport-combination-golf course. It almost seemed ironic that the very spot Hoffman joined the aerial group that was going to help him conserve his precious farmland was once a dairy farm.

The chopper, which can hold up to 1,200 pounds returns for another load. The helicopter crew, according to pilot Gray, has traveled the entire northeastern coast to spray for gypsy moths, apply fertilizers and carry out cover crop seedings.



Pilot Victor Gray has a bird's eye view of the Montgomery County farmland, as he furnishes farmer Wilson Hoffman's fields with a much needed rye cover crop.

Hoffman and his conservation cortege next proceeded to a 40-acre field outside Pennsburg. Helicopter pilot Victor Gray maintained a seeding rate of two bushels per acre or approximately 20 acres per hour.

The land Hoffman designated for seeding is owned by the Philadelphia Suburban Water Company and is 125 of 600 acres Hoffman leases. The majority of the land seeded rests near the county's Green Lane Reservoir. The entire corn crop, when combined in a couple weeks, is a result of no-till planting.

"Cost-wise, no-till isn't any cheaper than conventional tillage but it does save time," said Hoffman.

His 40-acre soybean crop has also benifitted from no-tillage.

"For the last two years the yield has been better. A lot of times, we'll double crop with wheat or barley so as not to disturb the moisture," he added.

The Montgomery County farmer has been working the land for the last 24 years. Raised on a dairy farm, Hoffman opted for a grain and livestock operation.

Up until last year he fed between 1,000 and 1,200 steers a year. But due to the "economics of steer prices," Hoffman said, he swit-

Delaware 4-H horse show names winners

Scott Torgerson of Felton emerged with top honors in the western pleasure horse division at the state horse show.

NEWARK, Del. — The 17th annual State of Delaware 4-H Horse Show was held on Sunday, Sept. 19, at Dr. W.L. Mroz's Red Gate Farm near Dover. The show was open to 4-H members between the ages of 9 and 19.

Champion in the western pleasure horse division was Scott Torgerson, Felton. Nikki White, also of Felton, was reserve champion.

Dale Jarman, Hartly, was champion in the western pony division. Reserve champion was Steve Sterling, Smyrna.

In the English pleasure horse division, the championship went to Leslie Tyler of Newark. Reserve champion was Dana Banks, Frankford.

Melanie Wilson, Dover, was champion in the English pleasure pony division. Heather Nennstiehl, Bridgeville, was reserve champion.

Dana Banks took the championship in the hunter horse division. No reserve champion was named.

Karen Horeis, Felton, took the ched to a grade dairy heifer enterprise.

Approximately 275 Holstein heifers enter the Hoffman operation at 16-months of age. Hoffman sells the animals about eight months later as springers.

His grain business reflects Hoffman's concern for preservation of resources. Currently working with a Reading fertilizer company, Hoffman has a few fields of wheat involved in a growth inhibitor trial.

The wheat, planted under normal conditions, is treated with a growth retardent to keep the stalk shorter but stronger. Hence, at combining time, the wheat will stand more erect and be picked up by the combine rather than being missed because the heavy heads have caused a droop.

Hoffman explained his first experimental crop will be harvested in the spring of 1983 and is expecting yields up to 80 bushels per acre.

And while Montgomery County's SC Steve Hill applauded the efforts Hoffman has made to conservation through his "innovative practices," Hoffman wasted little time in returning the complement.

"I have to give credit to the SCS. They're doing a tremendous job for the farmer as a whole," replied Hoffman.

There's no telling how long the remaining 40 percent of Montgomery County farmland can survive urban pressures.

It's bad enough, Steve Hill pointed out, that most of the soil is of a highly erodable nature. That's two strikes against the southeastern Pa. county.

"Farming is not always rewarding," states Wilson Hoffman. "You just have to like it."

"I'd surely like to see it continue because that's my livelihood."

Montgomery County, in some ag circles, may have the unenviable distinction of containing erodable land bordered by Philadelphia to the south and Allentown to the north. But, just ask any soil conservationist who'll tell you that farmers like Wilson Hoffman would be a blessing anywhere.

Meat Packers endorse "Keystone Pride" slogan

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell has announced that the "Keystone Pride" slogan has been approved for use with the Pennsylvania Agriculture logo in promotional and sales effort. Hallowell said the new combined logo and slogan were designed for use by food processors with out-of-state sales.

Hallowell also announced that the Pennsylvania Meat Packers Association, meeting recently in State College, had endorsed the Keystone Pride logo. Several members of the association already have started procedures to incorporate the logo on their labels, cartons and advertising.

The Keystone Pride slogan was used by the state's agricultural industries during a month-long promotion of Pennsylvania food products in August. Consumer acceptance of the slogan led to expansion of its use.

The Keystone Pride logo uses the basic format of the three-year-old Pennsylvania Agriculture — "We're Growing Better" campaign, with the outline of the Commonwealth surrounding the capital letters "PA." However, the Keystone Pride slogan replaces "We're Growing Better" beneath the state.

Hallowell explained that a member of the Meat Packers Association had presented the initial idea for an alternate logo.

"Many larger firms in the state had expressed a desire to identify their products with Pennsylvania, but because their marketing was on a regional or national basis, they declined," Hallowell explained. "Marketing surveys had shown negative consumer reaction in other states. By using the 'Keystone Pride' slogan, these firms can now associate themselves with Pennsylvania's largest industry and identify their products' origin as Pennsylania in a more subtle manner."

Hallowell said that the "Keystone Pride" logo gives Pennsylvania food processors an opportunity to share in the successes of firms already using the logo to promote sales of Pennsylvania food products.

According to Hallowell, almost 200 Pennsylvania firms are using the "Pennsylvania Agriculture — We're Growing Better" logo to promote their products. As Pennsylvania-based regional and national firms become aware of the Keystone Pride logo, it should become more visable on grocery store shelves.

Hallowell said the requirements for firms wishing to use the Keystone Pride logo will remain the same. They must produce a top quality agricultural product which contains all or a portion of raw food products produced or grown in Pennsylvania.

"I urge consumers to look for both the "We're Growing Better" and the "Keystone Pride" logos on food products in the coming months," Hallowell said. "Purchasing these Pennsylvania products will help boost farm income while generating an increase in sales throughout our agricultural industries."

Additional information on the use of these Pennsylvania Agriculture logos may be obtained through the Bureau of Markets, Pa. Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110; telephone 717/787-6902.

Bloomsburg Fair tags dairy, livestock champs

BLOOMSBURG — Columbia County recently bustled with excitement and competition as one of the state's largest expositions — the Bloomsburg Fair — invited visitors back for another successful season.

In the dairy competiton, some new as well as familiar faces made the trip to the winner's circle, this year.

Kirk Lehman of Bloomsburg collected Reserve Champion black and white honors, while Ritter Ridge Farms of Muncy stood in the winner's circle with their grand champion bull.

Additional 4-H Holstein winners included Corey Wolff of Millville, who collected 4-H Grand Champion Holstein honors. Darin Holdren of Millville and Ray Wolfe of Milton exhibited to senior champion and reserve senior champion Holstein ribbons, respectively.

Columbia and Luzerne Counties Holstein Club earned first place in county herd competition and were followed by Northumberland-Montour, second, and Schuykill County, third.

Bedford County dairyman Sam Diehl made a clean sweep in the Ayrshire division and walked off with all champion honors. Marilyn Kiess of Jersey Shore swept all 4-H Ayrshire honors.

Mildred Seeds, Downingtown finished the Jersey classes with almost all champion honors.

Marjorie Baker of Meshoppen collected a rosette for her reserve grand champion bull. Winning 4-H'ers included Timothy Berger of Muncy who exhibited the grand and junior champs and Earnest Der of Cogan Station who exhibited the reserve junior champion.

Wendy Kriebel of Benton exhibited the grand champion Guernsey, while Marla Snyder of Millville finished with Reserve Grand Champion honors. Tamaqua breeder Carl Miller exhibited the grand champion Guernsey bull. In 4-H Guernsey competition, Kriebel, Bonny Wolfe of Sunbury, Susan Moslack, Danville and Marla Snyder of Millville scored big wins.

David Feidt of Elizabethville repeated his 1981 Bloomsburg track record with a Grand Champion and Reserve Grand Champion win in the Brown Swiss competition. Russel Miller of Tamaqua scored with his grand champion Brown Swiss bull. Sunbury 4-H'ers Arthur Wolfe and Christy Ross along with Clark Duncan of Millville earned champion titles.

In market steer competition, Turbotville youngster John Hartman claimed the Grand Champion title. Ann Haladay of Catawissa followed with reserve grand champion.

Dairy goat exhibitors vied for the blue ribbon as well. Debbie Smeltzer of Bellefonte swept all honors in the La Mancha competition.

Another Centre Countian David Harpster of Boalsburg notched a Reserve Grand Champion Alpine win while David Birks of Sayre walked of with Grand Champion honors.

In Nubian classes, Todd and Sally Rehig exhibited all champions. Likewise, Kimberly Birks of Sayre swept the Saanen division.

Anthony and Danny Harter of Bellefonte collected all titles in the Toggenburg contest.

Kenny Moore of Rome, finished the sheep breeding classes with champion wins in Cheviot, Dorset, Hampshire, Shropshire, and Rambouillet classes.

Emil Mellot of Needsmore walked off with champion titles in Corriedale. Southdown Champion honors were earned by Ronald Miller of Everett. Lynn Berger of Kunkletown and Amy DeHart of Milton finished the day with Champion Suffolk Ram and Ewe titles, respectively.

The 4-H market lamb contest ended with Todd Loudenslager of Dalmatia receiving the Grand Champion ribbon while Kurt Brown of Klingerstown followed as reserve grand champion.

Armond Stackhouse of Orangeville exhibited his Cheviots to 4-H Champion honors. Beaver Springs 4-H'ers Michael and Sandra Troxell swept the Hampshire and Shropshire division, respectively.

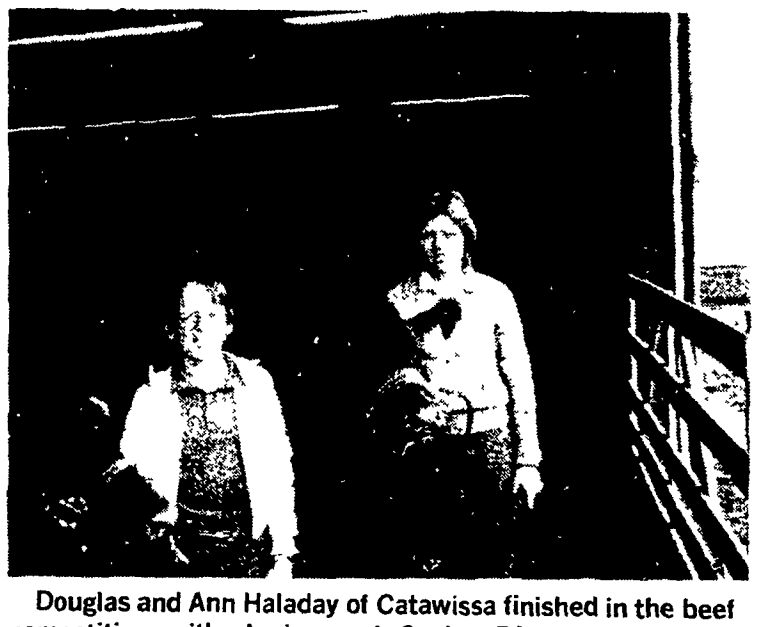
Lo-Pine Ivy Edith, who stood as the 1981 Bloomsburg Fair Reserve Champion Holstein, came back this year and notched a Grand Champion victory for owners Frank and Jan Jurbala of Orangeville. The aged cow is sired by Ster Ivy Telstar.

Airy-Ka Van Thelma topped her 4-year-old class and moved into the Reserve Grand Champion spot at this year's Bloomsburg Fair. The Rosemere Fury Ivan daughter is joined by owners Kirk Lehman at halter and Melvin Lehman with rosette and trophy.

Mark and David Basset of Sunbury walked off with all champion titles in the 4-H Southdown and Suffolk Classes. In Dorset competition, champions were exhibited by: Kurt and Kyle Brown; Jimmie Kodlick, Beaver Springs; Miriam Meiser, Mt. Pleasant; and Duane Basset.

Jimmie Kodlick was named Junior Champion Showman while Michael Troxell earned the Senior Champion Showman title.

Wendy Kriebel of Benton is at the halter of her Bloomsburg Fair Guernsey champ, K-Dale Maverick Lilac. The senior 2-year-old is sired by Olympic View B Maverick.



Douglas and Ann Haladay of Catawissa finished in the beef competition with Junior and Senior Division Champion Showmanship titles, respectively.

Hallowell outlines apple cider requirements

HARRISBURG — Now that fall is here and the making of apple cider has begun, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell is reminding consumers that Pennsylvania processors provide a pure and wholesome product.

Hallowell siad, "Pennsylvania is a national leader in the production of apples and apple products. Apple production this year is expected to reach 570 million pounds, up from last year's 400 million pound crop.

"Certain requirements set by the agriculture department must be met by Pennsylvania apple cider processors to assure that consummers know what they are getting," he said.

Hallowell reminded processors that in order to be called cider, their product must contain only unfermented jiuce squeezed from apples or other fruit. The juice may be filtered or clarified but it cannot be adulterated with water.

Fruit used in the manufacture of cider must be inspected, with rotten fruit removed and damaged fruit either thoroughly trimmed or removed. Surface dirt and spray residues must also be removed by thorough brushing or washing.

only water suitable for drinking may be used in the cider making process. Water from other than public sources must be tested annually with results kept on file at the processing plant.

Other sanitation regulations require that pressing and filling areas be adequately screened with doors equipped with self-closing devices to keep the areas free of insects, rodents, birds or other animals.

Pomace, or apple residue, must be removed daily disposed of properly. Clothing worn during the pressing and filling process must be washed after each daily operation and sanitized immediately before reuse.

Glass containers may be reused but they first must be thoroughly washed, rinsed and sanitized. New glass containers must be treated to avoid the possibility of contaminating the product. Plastic containers may be used only once and new closures must be on reusable containers.

Preservatives recognized as safe and vitamin C may be used in cider but their presence must be indicated on the label. Artificial flavors or colors may also be added if their presence is declared on the label by the use of the word, "imitation."

Other information required on the label includes the name of the product, the name and address of the processor or the distributor with a code to identify the processor. Net contents must also be indicated in either fluid ounces, pints, quarts or gallons.

For futher information, contact the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

HESSTON — The PRIME LINE

Miss Apple Queen USA reigns from Ohio

BY DEBBIE KOONTZ

GETTYSBURG — Twenty-year-old Karen Dodd, a horticulture student at Ohio State University, became the 1982-83 Miss Apple Queen USA, Saturday night, at the annual harvest fesitval.

The new queen hails from Amherst, Ohio — a state which sent the national queen to the competition in 1976 and a first and second runner-up two other years.

First runner-up honors went to Alice Elaine Butler, daughter of fruit growers in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Michigan sent the second runner-up to the contest this year in the form of Michele Lynn Parker, daughter of the Parker fruit growing family of Millington. Michigan also can brag of a national queen, from 1979.

The new queen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dodd, surpassed a bevy of nine other young state queens to capture the national title.

The Dodd family runs an operation of 85 acres — mostly apples, but some other fruits, according to Mrs. Dodd.

Karen plans an apple-oriented career and may return to the home orchards upon graduation despite having four brothers who also enjoy orchard work.

Karen's interests, in addition to apples, are cooking, sewing (she was a 4-H member for 10 years in the sewing project), junior leadership, camp counseling and sports.

On hand to crown the new queen at the "Apple Harvest Ball" was last year's winner, Sandra Kay Williams from Arkansas.

The crowning ended a week of judging activites and apple fun — including apple bobbing, visits to apple packing plants, and special luncheons and dinners.

Other states represented at the pageant were: Arkansas, Delaware, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania (Jean Ann Mobilia from Erie County), and Virginia.

This bevy of beauties posed for the cameras before their pageant at a luncheon at the Host Inn in Harrisburg last Friday. Miss Ohio, buried in the second row, second from right, moved to the front of the line Saturday night when she won the title of Miss Apple Queen USA. Other contestants and past queen are, l to r, Alice Elaine Butler, first runner-up, from West Virginia; Susan Jill Gardenhour, Maryland; Sandra Kay Williams, last year's national queen, from Arkansas; Jean Ann Mobilia, Pennsylvania; Jannette Moore, western New York; Dana Kay Dugger, Arkansas; Linda Beth Megonigal, Delaware; Lesa Rene Seay, North Carolina; Danita Ann Crumbeller, Virginia; Karen Dodd, Ohio and new queen; and Michele Lynn Parker, Michigan, second runner-up.

SPRING GROVE — The Thomasville 4-H club held its meeting Tuesday, Sept. 28 at the 4-H Center near Bair to elect officers.

The following were elected: president, Mike Welsh; vice president, Michelle Lehigh; treasurer, Sue Eisenhart; assistant treasurer, Robert Haskins; news reporter, Steve Eisenhart; assistant news reporter, Ron Horn; song and game leader, Jenelle Boyer; assistant song and game leader, Jon Haskins; historian, Ellen Bentzel; assistant historian, Darren Smallwood.

The next meeting will be a hayride on Oct. 26.

USDA adopts final rule on grain inspection

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is adopting as final a rule which exempts all grain shipped by rail and truck to Canada and Mexico from official inspection and weighing.

Federal Grain Inspection Service Administrator Kenneth A. Gilles said the rule has been in effect as an interim rule for about one year. The rule clarifies the fact that official grain inspection and weighing services will still be available to exporters requesting the services, he said.

"Exporters have generally shown satisfaction with the interim exemption and oppose changes," Gilles said. "We haven't received any complaints regarding quality or quantity of grain shipped under the exemption since it went into effect."

The final rule was published in the Sept. 29 Federal Register. More information is available from Lewis Lebakken, Jr., Regulations and Directives Management, USDA, FGIS, room 1636-S, Washington, D.C. 20250. Phone: 202/382-0231.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Fast Acting

Last month, the President signed into law the new dairy price support program passed by Congress the week before so it's certain now what cuts are scheduled for milk prices when the new marketing year starts in October.

The best way to explain the program is to view it in two parts - the direct price support program and the assessments to be made separately from price supports at the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Price Supports

The support price will stay the same at $13.10 for the next two years starting October 1, 1982 and October 1, 1983. For the third year starting October 1, 1984 the price will be determined by the percent of parity that $13.10 represented on October 1, 1983. Estimates at 60 percent of parity vary from $14.00 to $14.60 but it's risky to project accurately that far ahead.

Discretionary Assessments

In addition, the new legislation allows the Secretary to make an assessment of 50 cents on every hundredweight of milk to be paid by producers. This money would go to Commodity Credit Corporation to lower the cost of buying and storing manufactured dairy products.

This assessment will start October 1, 1982 for all milk producers no matter how they sell their milk or in what markets. Collection methods will be explained later but this assessment will not be refundable. This assessment will stop when projected annual CCC purchases of dairy products fall below five billion pounds of milk equivalent per year.

The second 50 cent assessment will start April 1, 1983 if the Secretary has established a program to refund all or part of it to farmers who reduced their production during a base period. Here the Secretary has two choices.

For the base period he could use one year from October 1, 1981 or the average of two years starting October 1, 1980. The refunds would apply only to the second 50 cent assessment and would be made according to each farmer's cut in production below the base period but not to exceed a reduction equivalent to the ratio between total national production and the surplus production.

In other words, if the national surplus is estimated to be 10 percent of the total milk supply then producers can get refunds only up to a maximum of 10 percent reduction from the base period. This second assessment ends when CCC purchases fall below 7.5 billion pounds of milk equivalent per year.

Nuts and Bolts

And that's it, except for working out the nuts and bolts on collecting the first 50 cent assessment that starts October 1st. USDA is doing this now and it appears that the deduction will be made by the person, business or organization that pays the farmer. In other words, if the producer is now being paid directly by a proprietary handler he would deduct the 50 cents. If the milk is purchased by the handler through a third party or a cooperative then the deduction is made there.

It is expected that all the money collected will go to the Market Administrator of the Chicago Federal Order and he will send it to the Commodity Credit Corporation.Collections will be made for all milk whether or not it's part of a Federal Order pool. However, federal market order auditors will be checking to be sure all the money is being collected and sent to CCC. Presumably, handlers regulated by state marketing orders will follow the same procedure and be checked by state auditors.

Assuming an annual national production of 130 billion pounds of milk the 50 cent deduction should give CCC $650 million a year. Last marketing year they spent nearly $2 billion on the dairy price support program and purchased about 13 billion pounds of milk equivalent as butter, powder and cheese.

Collection of the second 50 cent deduction starting in April will probably be handled the same way but procedures for returning the refunds to qualifying farmers is less certain at this writing. Still to be decided, also, is the base period. The Secretary has the choice between using one year starting October 1, 1981 or two years starting October 1, 1980.

Effects

Maintaining the $13.10 support price for the next two years means there will be no change in the CCC purchase prices for butter, powder and cheese so there will be no reduction in the retail price. It also will cause no change in the average manufacturing grade milk price or in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series so your class prices in federal orders would not be affected by this.

This doesn't mean that the M-W and class prices won't change but only that it won't be caused directly by the new price support program. The direct affects of the 50 cent assessments are easier to predict for individual farmers. It means an income loss of 50 cents a hundred times your production.

Then, if the second 50 cent assessment is made April 1 it will be $1 a hundred with an opportunity to recover all or part of the second assessment if you drop your production below the base period.

Whether or not the program will work to lower national milk production is uncertain. It seems likely that some farmers who can't stand the first assessment will stop producing milk altogether. Others who have the resources and management may increase production. The net effect is difficult to predict but opposition to the program has already surfaced.

Order 2 Pool

Looking ahead to October is important but I am sure you are also interested in your prices for August. In Order 2 the uniform price for August milk deliveries to regulated handlers was $13.59 for 3.5 milk at the 201-210 mile zone. That's 43 cents more than July but 9 cents less than last August. Most of that 43 cent increase over July was a 35 cent payback from the Louisville Plan fund that you didn't have last month.

The remaining 7 cents came from a 9 cent increase in the Class II price over July and an increase of 1.2 percent in the Class I utilization. Production was down just over 2 percent or 24 million pounds from July and Class I sales stayed the same.

FEEDING FOR MORE PROFIT

A total mixed ration (TMR) can help increase milk production—and profits—without adding a single cow to your herd. Agway can help you put a TMR to work on your farm with system components like these.

Grain dust explosions are constant danger

NEWARK, Del. — Mill managers and grain elevator operators are becoming more keenly interested in dust control and fire prevention.

University of Delaware Extension safety specialist Ronald Jester points out that since the rash of dust explosions a few years ago, operators are more aware of potential hazards. Dust explosions can cause extensive damage to facilities, and often take lives as well. Farmers with milling and grain storage operations also have cause for concern, he adds.

Since dust, oxygen, and a source of ignition must be present to create an explosion, Jester says prevention involves removing one of these elements. Eliminating either the dust or the source of ignition is the obvious way to reduce the hazard.

Jester suggests the following guidelines for minimizing the chance of a grain dust explosion in your facilities:

* Maintain a good housekeeping program. Prevent dust buildup on equipment, pipes, floors, and around grinders.

* Be sure dust-tight equipment is really dust-tight. Keep spouts and positive-pressure air ducts in good repair to prevent the escape of dust. Attend immediately to leaks in grinding equipment and fans.

* Dust-control systems will help reduce pressure buildup inside equipment, and keep dust from being forced into the mill.

* Prevent ignition by removing foreign materials from incoming ingredients. Magnets are commonly installed in spouts leading to processing or grinding equipment.

* Lubricate bearings according to manufacturers' recommendations to prevent overheating.

* Align belt drives properly. Misalignment can create friction and build up sufficient heat to generate a fire.

* Check tension on bucket elevators. Inspect periodically to insure proper operation.

* Enforce the non smoking rule in mill and grain facilities.

* Install dust-tight lights and explosion-proof plug-in receptacles.

*Practice welding safety in the mill. This includes shutting down machinery, cleaning work areas, covering combustible materials with flame-proof tarpaulins, and having a fire extinquisher available.

* Be sure wiring conforms to the National Electrical Code.

* To reduce buildup of static electricity, make positive metal connections between pieces of equipment and the ground.

It isn't easy to plan, supervise, and conduct fire-prevention programs and practices, says Jester. In fact some managers and employees may have a negative approach to fire prevention. They feel that because they've never had an explosion in their plant, they never will.

Nothing could be further from the truth, warns the Extension safety specialist. Unless proper precautions are taken, there will be an ever-increasing danger of an explosion or fire.

Maintenance tips for diversions

LANCASTER — A diversion intercepts or diverts water from areas where it is in excess and conveys it to sites when it can be used or disposed of safely.

A diversion will provide many years of dependable service if a few simple maintenance items are carried out.

Vegetative Filler Strips- Maintain an adequate vegetative filler strip above the channel to reduce high sediment accumulation in the diversion channel or outlets.

Vegetative Cover- Keep a good vegetative cover in the channel and on the supporting berm or ridge. This will reduce scouring or gullies in the channel and rilling on the side slopes.

Maintain plant vigor and growth by: checking lime requirements every 3-5 years. Apply lime as needed; fertilize according to a soils test.

Outlets- The diversion outlet is the most susceptible to erosion damage. Repairs should be made promptly to prevent extensive gulleying. Rip-rap or grade stabilization structures can be constructed to control erosion at the outlet when vegetation proves inadequate.

Cleanliness related to reproductive health

UNIVERSITY PARK — Uterine infections in dairy herds can be costly to dairyproducers. These infections often result in extended calving intervals, high veterinary costs, extra breeding expenses, and reduced milk production.

The exact cause of the infections is not always apparent. Michael L.O'Connor, Penn State Extension dairy specialist, says some factors, however, may be contributing to these problems.

Stress may be a significant factor in some herds. This stress may be caused by overcrowding and poor ventilation, difficult calvings, retained placentas, overconditioning, or nutritional deficiencies.

"Secondly, microorganisms may increase dramatically within a cow's reproductive tract due to a dirty environment during calving or unsanitary breeding practices during artificial insemination," he adds.

Uterine infections also may be a problem in dairy herds where natural service is used. A bull may be infected or be spreading a disease from an infected cow to healthy ones.

O'Connor offers a six-point plan for reducing uterine infections:

- Have all cows examined by a veterinarian 20 to 40 days after calving. This will identify problem cows so treatment can be administered before the first service.
- Treat only those animals diagnosed as infected or showing abnormal discharge. Research has indicated that routine treatment of every cow at freshening is not beneficial in reducing the number of repeat breeders or the incidence of retained placenta.
- Provide a clean, dry calving area for all cows and heifers. Cattle are susceptible to infection at this time.
- Make sure inseminating equipment is clean and a clean entry is made into the reproductive tract at the time of breeding.
- Avoid nutritional deficiencies — especially protein, vitamins A and E, and selenium. Poor water quality may also contribute to infections.
- Do not use natural service on infected cows.
- Consult your veterinarian to develop better cleanliness procedures for preventing health problems.

Artificial diet feeds bees

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Ten years of bee nutrition research have produced an inexpensive artificial die for honeybees that make life easier around the hive and makes beekeeping more profitable.

Released earlier this year, the Beltsville Bee Diet, developed at the ARS Bioenvironmental Bee Laboratory, Beltsville, Md., allows colonies of bees to build up their populations faster and earlier in the season. The broods are then ready to pollinate such early spring crops as blueberries and almonds, and they start producing honey earlier in the season.

Artificial diets also are needed when bees are confined during extreme weather and when colonies are isolated from areas of pesticide spraying. In addition, the Beltsville Bee Diet is a foolproof way to avoid transmitting diseases to a colony through bee food.

Bee Lab scientists Elton W. Herbert and Hashiro Shimanuki started the search for the right formula by identifying the exact nutrients honeybees require to reproduce efficiently. "Then, we faced the perhaps more difficult task of making the bees eat. We mixed and matched many ingredients until we hit on a diet that not only serves honeybees what we know they need, but also what they want to eat," says Herbert.

To fill the critical protein requirement — the pollen substitute — the scientists settled for a whey-yeast compound. Whey is a byproduct of cheese-making. The yeast provides honeybees with needed vitamins and minerals. Sugars in the diet provide carbohydrates, which also help preserve the formulation.

The Beltsville Bee Diet can be kept at room temperature for many months without spoiling or hardening. It has the color and viscosity of peanut butter.

Sanctity amendment assures export contracts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senator Jesse Helms, last Friday supported an amendment, offered by Minnesota Senator David Durenberger, guaranteeing sanctity of contracts.

The amendment, offered as a rider to S. 2109, reauthorization for the Commodities Futures Trading Commission, was passed by the Senate by a voice vote, with strong bi-partisan support from the Agricultural Committee.

The amendment requires the U.S. Government to assure the sanctity of all agricultural commodity export contracts for nine months, except when the president declares a national emergency or Congress declares war.

"This amendment is important because the farm community has suffered seriously from past embargoes and threats of embargoes," said Helms. "Farm prices in this country continue to decline below the cost of production due to global good weather, increased subsidization of farm exports by the European governments, the Carter embargo and depressed demand."

"This amendment helps farmers, and won't cost the U.S. treasury a dime.

Pa. broiler placements down

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending Sept. 18 were 2,230,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were three percent below the corresponding week a year ago and seven percent above the previous week. Average placements during the past nine weeks were one percent above a year ago.

Placements in the 19 key poultry producing states were 78,861,000, slightly below the previous week but slightly above the same week a year earlier. Average placements in the key states during the past nine weeks were three percent above a year ago.

Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending Sept. 8 totaled 1,641,000, with an average liveweight of 4.09 pounds.

Farm Bureau applaudes foreign purchase allocations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressional action mandating the government to use at least $500 million next year to directly finance foreign purchases of U.S. farm commodities is "significant because it shows America's farmers and ranchers that someone is serious about helping to revive the farm economy," American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Delano said last Thursday.

The farm leader was commenting on a provision in the fiscal 1983 agriculture appropriations measure passed by the Senate yesterday and the House last week. It differs from current policy by providing direct loans from Commodity Credit Corporation, at rates slightly above the government's cost of money, instead of government-guaranteed loans financed by private banks, which is now the case.

"One of our current problems has been the high interest rates our trading partners must pay for our commodities," Delano said. "Of the $2.8 billion budgeted this year for guaranteed loans, only half has been used, partly because interest costs have been prohibitive."

Delano said the direct loans and the $175-190 million authorized by the 1983 budget reconciliation act for interest "buydowns" were "but a few of the many things needed to move this nation's abundance into world markets."

Also needed, he said, are direct export subsidies to combat unfair foreign trade practices. He applauded press reports saying that Undersecretary of Agriculture Seeley Lodwick has called for the government to begin subsidizing farm negotiations, particularly with the European Community, have failed.

"U.S. farmers are extremely upset—and are becoming militant—over European Community efforts to capture markets from traditional suppliers through the extensive use of export subsidies," he said. "Farm Bureau broke with the past when it endorsed retaliation against those nations that use subsides, but now we just have to counter their stealing our markets."

"The elevator told us our corn had the highest recorded test weight of 1980. Our cost to dry was 6¢ a bushel. We're starting on our third season now. Already this year, three farmers asked me if I'd buy it all over again. I said yes to all three. We've been happy with our system."

USDA proposes changes to grain sampling regulation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing to revise regulations to eliminate the requirement that diverter-type samplers be used for certain types of grain shipments.

If adopted, the proposal would allow the use of any sampling method approved by USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service for bulk or sacked grain inspected for domestic barge shipments and export railcar and truck shipments, and for sacked grain inspected for export cargo shipments. The diverter-type sampler would only be required for export cargo shipment of bulk grain.

"Under present regulations, beginning Jan. 1, 1983, a diverter-type mechanical sampler must be used on these kinds of grain shipments; otherwise, a statement must be included on the inspection certificate indicating the samples may not be as representative as those obtained with a diverter-type sampler," said Kenneth A. Gilles, administrator of USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service.

The regulation, which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1983, is being reconsidered because USDA recently received numerous letters from grain merchandising companies and elevator operators who did not submit comments when the regulation was initially proposed, Gilles said. These organizations and individuals would like another opportunity to review the regulation. The Federal Grain Inspection Agency Grain Advisory Committee, at its July meeting, also endorsed a review of the regulation to allow for more comment from the grain industry.

Comments on the proposed revision should be sent, in duplicate, by Oct. 28 to Lewis Lebakken, Jr., Regulations and Directives Management, USDA, FGIS, room 1636-S, Washington, D.C. 20250; telephone 202/382-0231.

The proposal was published in the Sept. 28 Federal Register.

Wild corn lends blight-resistance to crops

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Wild corn from Central America will help Midwest corn crops resist such diseases as the southern leaf blight which struck the Corn Belt in 1970, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said recently.

That blight 12 years ago pointed up the danger of planting a narrow genetic base of hybrid crops vulnerable to diseases. Now, plant research is borrowing the disease resistance in wild corn to counter the danger, said Herman L. Warren, a plant pathologist for USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

What is coming from this basic research are what Warren calls "breeding lines" — a type of corn not sold in markets, but which corn breeders rely on to upgrade already available lines of corn.

Germplasm, which carries valuable genetic traits such as disease resistance, is passed along from the breeding line to the new corn.

Now, after 10 years of research, Warren and Purdue University scientists at West Lafayette, Ind., have developed two new breeding lines. Warren said the lines possess "multiple disease resistance" to viruses, blight and other damaging pathogens commonly found in the Corn Belt.

According to Mary E. Carter, acting administrator of the Agricultural Research Service, the new lines will "help corn breeders increase the genetic diversity of corn grown in this country."

Carter said the two lines continue "to expand the inventory from which replacements for current, widely grown corn

Private participation in farm operating loans rises sharply

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Private-lender participation in farm operating loans is up sharply this year at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration, Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said last week.

Block credited participation lending and other cooperative efforts of federal and private lenders with successfully providing needed agricultural credit for thousands of hard hit farmers in 1982.

Meeting with representatives of the American Bankers Association, the Independent Bankers Association of America and the Farm Credit Administration, the secretary emphasized the need to continue cooperative and participation lending to meet farmers' credit needs in 1983.

He said the USDA agency will continue to enlarge its role with the private sector in making farm operating loans to meet the anticipated heavy demand for credit in crop year 1982.

Charles W. Shuman, administrator of the USDA lending agency, attributed the increase in participation lending directly to cooperation between the USDA and rural lending institutions.

"Although our funds for operating loans are up about a third over last year," Shuman said, "demand for those funds is heavy. Through participation loans involving commercial banks and local members of the farm credit system, we stretch our limited funds, making them available to those who need help most."

"In many cases, Shuman said, the agency has subordinated its security to the private lender, helping borrowers stay with their regular credit sources.

Loans of about 5,800 of the agency's operating loan borrowers were shared with other lenders in fiscal 1981. In the first 11 months of fiscal 1982, the number rose to 28,032.

In dollars, the amount of the agency's farm borrowers' debt held by private lenders rose from $91.6 million for all of fiscal 1981 to an estimated $1 billion for the first 11 months of fiscal 1982.

While the participation loan may begin with either a private or public lender, Shuman said the USDA-initiated effort begins at the county level when borrowers and a Farmers Home county supervisor review the borrower's "farm and home plan," which is the credit and economic blueprint for the borrower's crop year.

"When the plan shows a need for more operating credit than the agency by law can supply to an individual, or when the plan shows that private credit can be utilized for the borrower's needs, a local lender is contacted," Shuman said.

"If the local lender can make the loan, the agency may subordinate part or all of its security in favor of the local lender — in effect giving the private lender first rights to collect its debts in the event of default."

Participating in last week's meeting with Block were Under Secretary Frank Naylor and Shuman of the USDA; American Bankers Association representatives Ken Lee, associate director, Michael Fitch, vice president for agricultural affairs, Wells Fargo Bank in San Fransico, and Alan Tubbs, president of First Central Bank in DeWitt, Iowa.

Representing the Independent Bankers Association of America were Weldon Barton, agricultural rural representative; Thomas Olson, president, Lisco State Bank, Lisco, Neb.; and J.R. Kuiken, president, First National Bank, DeKalb, Ill.

Deputy Governor Larry Edwards of the Farm Credit Administration represented his organization.

Is your heat detection plan accurate?

UNIVERSITY PARK — Studies indicate that spproximately 20 percent of the cows presented for artificial insemination are not in heat. Michael L. O'Connor, Penn State Extension dairy specialist, offers 10 suggestions for improving heat detection:

- Cows in conventional housing should be turned out twice daily once in the morning and again later in the evening - for at least 15 minutes each time.
- Loose housing does not make heat detection easier. Check cows for signs of heat at least three times a day, more frequently if possible. Schedule these observation preiods so as to avoid feeding times and times when cattle are moving to and from milking.
- Remember that most mounting occurs between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m., and that 25 percent of the cows are in heat less than eight hours. Use your time efficiently and check heat during times when cattle are most like to express it.
- Slippery and muddy conditions will inhibit mounting activity. Provide an area were cows are free to interact, with good footing and few obstacles.
- Cows with sore feet and legs make heat detectino more difficult. These cows may not engage in mounting activity or may stand to be mounted when not in heat because it is too, painful to avoid the mounting cow. Keep hoofs trimmed and treat infected feet as soon as the problem is noticed.
- Appoint one person to be responsible for heat detection and allow time to do the job properly. However, train all personnel to recognize the signs of heat and report information promptly to the responsible person.
- Use a pocket notebook to record all heats and other cow information. Then record heats on the heat expectancy chart and on the cows permanent record sheet. Abnormal length cycles and long intervals from freshening to first service should be apparent. Such cows can then be examined by a veterinarian.
- Record all heats whether the animal is to be bred or not.
- Poor cow identification is one reason why some animals are presented for insemination when they are not in heat. Legible neck chain numbers, large ear tags and freeze brands aid in accurate cow identification.
- Consider using heat detection aids to help increase the number of heats detected. Detection devices and detector animals should be used in conjunction with routine visual observations.

hybrids could be developed quickly whenever a disease threat occurs."

To get a broader genetic diversity in the new lines, the researchers crossed Central American corn plants known as Mayorbela with "elite domestic lines." Warren said the 10-year research span was necessary to produce the final products offering disease resistance and other agronomically desirable traits.

The scientist first had to adapt early-maturing Mayorbela corn plants to the early growing seasons of the Corn Belt. He then crossed the Central American plants with domestic lines, selecting the best plants from each pairing to self-pollinate a new generation until he developed the new lines, H110 and H111.

Warren said the two lines now are available to corn breeders.

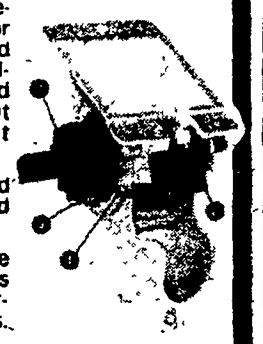
The secret is in the Seed Cup and the Depth Control Wheels

1. Fluted roll, molded of oxide-coated sintered metal, is tops for precision, smoothness and resistance to corrosion. It's well-supported at both ends, and precisely aligned for accuracy. It turns extra easy, and won't freeze up during idle periods.

2. Shut-off block of sintered metal, is also precision-molded for accuracy.

3. Fluted washer fits over the roll and mates closely with it. It's cadmiumplated to prevent corrosion, keep it like new for years.

4. Insert acts as a positive bearing surface to surround and support the fluted washer, reduce wear.



Depth Control and press wheels aid in faster seed germination.

TORQUE AMPLIFIER, CLUTCH & TRANSMISSION PARTS & SERVICE

NEW ITEMS

Complete new 3 pt. hitch assemblies for 06, 56, 66, 86 IH tractors. Will economically replace 2 pt. or worn out 3 pt. hitches. Call for prices. Easy shift hydraulic trans. brake control for 06, 56, 66, 86 & 2+2 model IH tractors. Eliminates grinding, eases hard shifting & reduces shift linkage & gear wear.

Complete TA assemblies for 706-1586 are prices at $595 and come with a Dana Co. Heavy Duty Sprag instead of the usual IH sprag. The Dana sprag is guaranteed for 2 yrs. against failure. Sprag kits (includes sprag gear, Dana sprag & piston carrier) and all items for rebuilding your own TA assembly are available to qualified persons. Ramps and carriers for older style TA's (as in SMTA-340-560) are priced at $150 each and carry a 90 day guarantee. We have parts needed for TA repair in stock at prices which will save you money. Shop is available for complete TA installation or split the tractor yourself and send the center housing to us. Complete rebuilt center housing available for installation in tractors which did not have TA from factory.

Now buying tractors for our used parts dept. Let us bid on your damaged tractors.

FARMERS REPORT MORE PRODUCTIVITY WITH AN INTERNATIONAL AXIAL-FLOW

Get More Bushels Per Day, More Bushels Per Acre, More Dollars Per Bushel, And More Bushels Per Gallon Of Fuel.

Full Season Comparison of International Axial-Flow Combine with Prior Combine of Equal Size.*

CORN/BEANS

		1440 Vs. Class IV	1460 Vs. Class V	1480 Vs. Class V
More Bushels Per Day Percent increase in bushels per 10-hr. day	Corn	+33%	+21%	+35%
	Beans	+26%	+18%	+26%
More Bushels Per Acre Extra bushel from less grain loss	Corn	+.63 +.91 sidehill	+.56 +.76 sidehill	+.33 +.66 sidehill

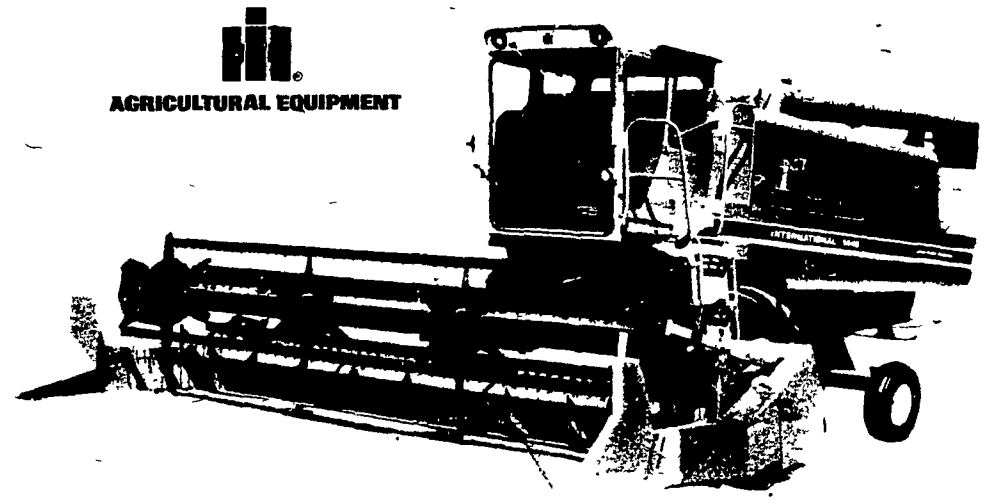
More Bushels Per Gallon Percent increase in bushels per gallon	Corn	+39%	+25%	+28%
	Beans	+31%	+22%	+24%

*More than 1600 owners of Axial-Flow combines compared the productivity of their Axial-Flow combines with their prior combines. These facts are from the more than 1000 corn/bean farmers reporting.

Increased Productivity Does Not Always Have To Carry A Higher Price Tag. IH Combines Are About The Same Price As Comparable Conventional Combines.

AGRICULTURAL EQUIPMENT



THE FACTS ARE SIMPLE

Year after year more farmers are noticing the impressive results of International Axial-Flow Combines. When your neighbors get increased performance and productivity like outlined above, its no wonder that International Axial-Flow combines have earned the trust and admiration of farmers all over the East.

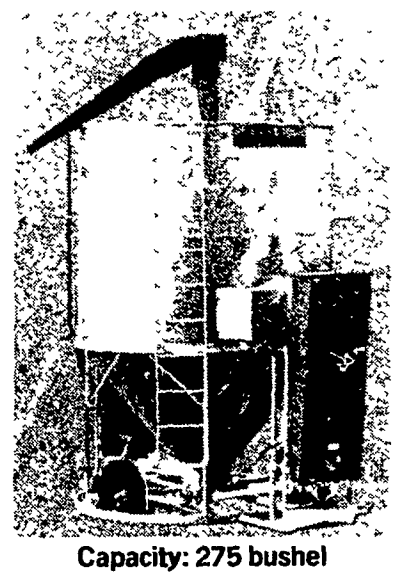
MORIDGE GRAIN DRYERS

Dry all types of grain... Corn, Wheat, Soybeans, Milo, Rice, Barley, Flax, Sunflower and Rape seed, and many others.



Capacity: 275 bushel

FEATURING:
- Modulating temperature control varies amount of heat according to grain temperature, rather than air temperature.
- Manually set timer controls length of drying time.
- Center recirculating auger and loading auger are telescoping shaft and gear box driven. Only the fan is belt driven.
- Tractor P.T.O. speed of only 400 to 420 r.p.m.
- Tractor P.T.O. speed may be increased for load-unload cycles.

AVCO® NEW IDEA

VICON WENT TO ALL LENGTHS TO MAKE A SEEDER-SPREADER THAT GOES TO ALL WIDTHS.

Visit your Vicon dealer to see the full line of new dimension Vicon Seeder-Spreaders. They're the most accurate on the market for applying seed, all types of fertilizers, trace elements, and most farm chemicals. Hopper capacities range from 400 to 2400 pounds. Best of all is the new ADJUSTABLE FEATURE that lets you spread in widths from 20 to 45 feet.

Glass-fibre reinforced polyester makes the hopper strong, yet lightweight and easy to clean. Other critical parts that come in contact with fertilizer are made of nylon or stainless steel.

Vicon's proven oscillating-action spout provides even, accurate coverage on flat, sloping or uneven ground. Use it for everything from broadcasting to band-spreading. The hopper can be lowered to the ground to fill easily by hand or machine.

You need a multipurpose, multiwidth seeder-spreader like this. Vicon went to all lengths to make it durable, versatile, reliable and accurate.

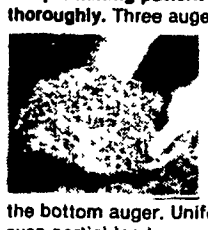
Make every bite right.

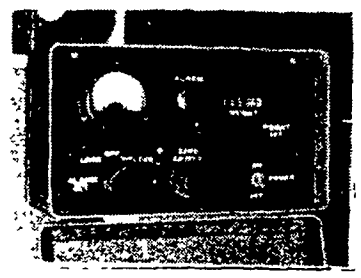
Combine Ensilmixer® feed mixer, with scales, and a Jamesway® TMR system.

You can increase production. Reduce feed costs. And improve labor efficiency. All, when you use an Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, by Oswalt® to round out your Jamesway Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system (including silage distributor-unloaders, conveyors and cattle feeders). Or, use it with any mechanized feeding system. Whether you prefer the stationary, trailer-mounted or truck-mounted model, it's a real profit-building management tool.

Unique mixing pattern blends feed thoroughly. Three augers move feed from front to back and side to side. Reverse flighting at both ends lets feed fall freely for recirculation or discharge by the bottom auger. Uniformly mixes even partial loads.



Precisely weighs ingredients. Accurate weighing means consistent, balanced rations; eliminates waste. Lets you calculate the amount of feed needed and mix that much. Weigh bar system is standard, electronic scales optional.



That's why the Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, and TMR feeding system are right for you as well as your cattle And, can help make farming just a little bit better. Ask your Jamesway Power Choring dealer.

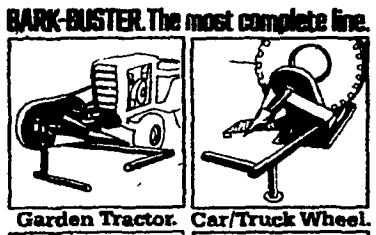
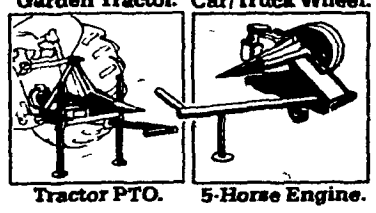
BARK-BUSTER.
Nobody splits wood faster or better.

"How much wood could a woodchuck chuck?" More than anyone else if he uses a Bark-Buster — America's No. 1 auger-type wood splitter. Fastest, most economical type. Splits from side, in split seconds. Lets you continuous-feed logs, one against another.

BARK-BUSTER. The most complete line.



Garden Tractor. Car/Truck Wheel.



Tractor PTO. 5-Horse Engine.

LET'S BARK BUSTER SPLIT!

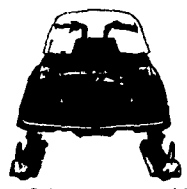
Before you buy, weigh the competition

Now through December thirty-first, we're cutting our sled prices way back. So you save from $275 on the new direct-drive Snowfire to $450 on liquid-cooled Liquifire. Make a regular downpayment and you won't pay any finance charges until March 1983.* That's savings on top of savings!

There's no better, smarter way to get your hands on the kind of quality that has put John Deere snowmobiles on the snow to stay. Liquifire®, Sportfire®, Trailfire® LX, Sprintfire™ and Snowfire™ — the brightest sleds on the snow. See us soon while selections are greatest.



*Subject to approval for John Deere financing

MADISON® SILOS

Your best silo buy!

The secret is the Vibra-Cor® Stave.

Unique truss-beam design of the exclusive Madison Vibra-Cor Stave makes it the strongest in the industry

Add to that Madison's new wide door and Kleen Chute to match Madison's rattle-free wind resistant roof Madison's full-measure hooping Madison's attractive light gray stave color plus extra care in construction by Madison's own factory branch crews and you have the highest quality silo it's possible to build

Is it any wonder that one out of every four silos sold in America is a Madison?

MADISON "System of Choice" gives you the logical structure for every feed you grow Madison Silos for corn silage Madison Nutri-Matic and Grain-O-Matic for medium moisture haylage and high moisture grain Saves you money because there's no need to over-structure

Making things better for you.

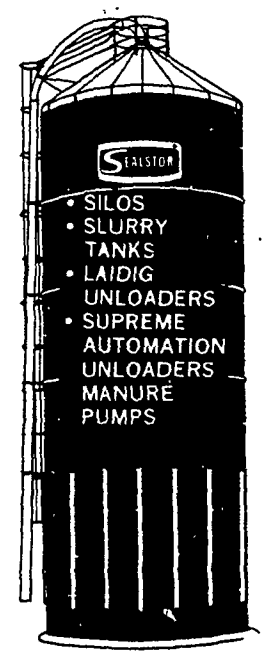
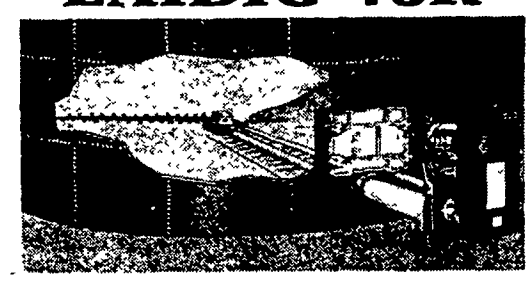
SEALSTOR



LAIDIG 43R



NOW YOU CAN UNLOAD WITH THE BEST
Shelled Or Ground Ear Corn

Storing high moisture grain can cause problems unless you have the right unloader. If you're bothered by high maintenance costs, poor feed delivery or a "free flow" system that fails, then you should consider the new Laidig 43R grain unloader.

It's designed for use in existing, oxygen-controlled storage units. And it can be installed in a single day WITHOUT ALTERATIONS TO YOUR STRUCTURE!

The Laidig 43R Power Sweep Auger replaces those Gravity Feed Sweep Augers. It's a heavy-duty machine engineered for day-in, day-out operation...the same high quality and peak performance that operators expect from a leader...from Laidig!

LAIDIG
3 Year Warranty

*43R IS A COMPLETE CONVERSION PACKAGE FOR OXYGEN-CONTROLLED GRAIN STRUCTURES.
For metal structures up to 20' in diameter

Replace Your Gravity Flow Unloader With A new LAIDIG NOW!
We will trade in your old unloader

GUNITE Silo Relining & Repairs

Extensive tests have been conducted on Gunite Below are some of the properties of Gunite:

1. Excellent bonding
2. High Density
3. Extreme strength and hardness
4. High resistance to absorption

The excellent physical properties of the material are due to the water content being only the amount needed to satisfy chemical hydration.

Reseal and re-strengthen your silo with Gunite.

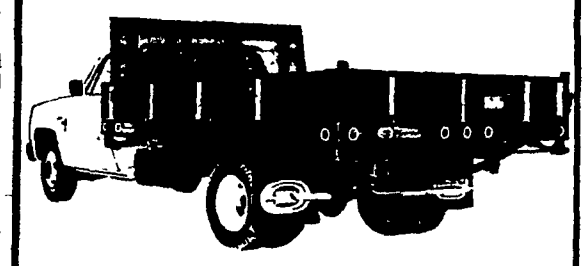
Tri-Loader...

European-style Contractor Body



The European-style Tri-Loader body is an extremely versatile piece of equipment. It features 14" hinged sides which fold down or remove completely for loading from either side, a double-acting tailgate, hinged top and bottom for dumping and spreading operations with forward or rear controls, or both. Swaged (indented) 3-light cluster in rear outrail for better light protection and appearance. Heavy duty 40" or 52" steel bulkheads with full width mesh windows combine maximum protection and visibility. The rugged 96" wide platform offers maximum payload and is available in wood, smooth steel, treadplate steel or steel over wood flooring.

More than 90 winners emerge from Horse Sho

Iffat, exhibited by Holly Eckenrode of Lebanon County helps this 4-H'er earn the Brood Mare Arabian class award.

Alida Farrington of Lancaster County earned the Appalossa 2-year-old fillies award with Princess Candicane.

HARRISBURG — State winners in 63 4-H production project classes and 31 performance classes were selected in the annual Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Show held October 1-3 in Harrisburg's Farm Show Complex.

James Gallagher, Extension animal scientist at Penn State, said that about 600 young horsemen from most Commonwealth counties vied for awards. The state show climaxes the year for more than 8,000 Pennsylvania 4-H members enrolled in horse and pony project work.

All members who participated in the state show were winners in county and district competition.

Winners in 4-H horse production project classes are:

Precast Concrete
UPRIGHT BUNKER SILO

Featuring a single component design for fast installation and completion. The sections bolt together and the use of a sealant placed in the tongue and groove creates a sealed wall surface.

The sections may be dismantled and relocated. Customers may select any length or width in 5' 2" increments.

A special center wall is available to permit placing bunker silos side by side or dividing existing trench silos.

In addition to silage storage, these upright units may be used as retaining walls or manure pits.

Is farm equipment shortage developing?

MINNETONKA, Mn — Tractors and other major farm machines could start to become scarce by the second half of 1983, according to a farm equipment guidebook publisher.

Morris W. Dorosh, whose Marshall Publications of Minnetonka, MN. produces the semi-annual Marshall's Farm Equipment Guide, says the farm equipment market is on the verge of a major change that will mean higher prices, fewer financing concessions and waiting lists for many tractor and machine models.

"The problem in the farm equipment industry over the last two or three years has been similar to that of agriculture itself: overproduction in the face of weak demand," says Dorosh. The scramble to reduce manufacturer and retail inventories and generate cash at a time of record borrowing costs has financially strained every major manufacturer, according to Dorosh. He predicts that at least one, possibly two of the biggest names in the farm equipment industry won't survive in their present form beyond mid-1983.

"Farm equipment and tractor inventories are being reduced quite rapidly, which means that fewer units are being produced than are being sold", says Dorosh. Many production lines are indefinitely idle and most of those still operating are working at reduced rates. Dorosh expects this to continue until the industry is sure that a genuine recovery in farmer demand has begun. In the meantime, inventories will likely shrink to the point where not all models or types will be available for immediate delivery from a dealer lot. Factory ordering will become common at prices much closer to list.

Manufacturer's list prices have been increased more slowly in most cases than actual production costs since 1979. With discounts and rebates from the factory and price-shaving by dealers, most farm machines sold in the past two years cost more to produce than buyers paid for them. It's the inability to obtain "normal" manufacturing margins, much more than the highly-publicized debt-service problems of some companies, that is the most serious problem even for the industry leaders.

Manufacturers don't have to operate at the production rates of the boming 1970s, according to Dorosh. "Most manufacturers have excess capacity even for good years. Some are now starting to rationalize plants and product lines in order to be more flexible and be able to operate at lower output and sales rates. This will allow them to operate profitably even in poor sales periods so that the market probably won't be flooded with big-ticket machines again for years to come".

A factor in the current situation is the introduction of new tractor model lines this year by Allis Chalmers, Ford, International and Deere. "Filling the distribution pipeline with new models kept output higher than it would have been otherwise and contributed to the new-tractor glut", says Dorosh. Many dealers are selling new tractors of both new and obsoleted models, which especially depresses values of some late-model used tractors.

The latest edition of Marshall's Farm Equipment Guide shows clearly that used-equipment values have dipped along with those of new tractors and equipment. Additional downward pressure in the used market has come from an unprecedented number of farms and dealership dispersals, liquidations and auctions. But used tractor and machinery prices will recover faster than those of new machines, Dorosh anticipates. "Buyers who go new-tractor shopping a year from now will experience the same kind of 'sticker shock' that's been hitting new-car buyers. That's likely to cause a surge in used equipment values, especially larger, late-model units in prime condition. With fire-sale deals, huge factory rebates and below-cost financing almost a thing of the past, the used market should be booming by this time next year". Buying soon will save money in the longer run.

Harvestore sponsors ag lender conference

CHICAGO, Il. — More than 550 persons from the United States and Canada attended the eighth annual North American Agricultural Lender's Conference, Sept. 12-14, 1982 at the Chicago O'Hare Marriott Motor Hotel.

Lending institutions from 18 states and 2 Canadian provinces were represented at the meeting.

The two-day conference was sponsored by A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., a manufacturer of oxygen-limiting feed storage structures, automated feeding equipment, and liquid manure handling systems and their dealers.

"This annual lender's conference is designed to provide representatives of agricultural credit institutions and agencies throughout North America with an opportunity to learn of new developments in agricultural finance," said Carl Clayton, organizer of the conference and director of marketing staff services for A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc.

"This meeting also gives ag lenders an excellent chance to take a look at the exciting challenges that face them in the years to come," he added.

The Lender's Conference program involved presentations by a number of authorities on agricultural finance.

Among the speakers were Frank W. Naylor Jr., undersecretary of agriculture, U.S. Department of Agriculture, who presented a Washington insider's view of the outlook for agriculture; and Art Buffington, president of the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, Neb. who discussed long-term agricultural lending.

More than 550 persons from the U.S. and Canada attended the eighth annual North American Agricultural Lender's Conference, Sept. 12-14, at the Chicago O'Hare Marriott Motor Hotel.

Additional speakers included John F. Marten, staff economist, Farm Journal, who discussed the outlook for agriculture; and Marvin R. Duncan, assistant vice president and economist, Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, Mo. The economist provided an update on the fast changing field of leasing agricultural products.

Other speakers represented universities, lending institutions, and the staffs of A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., and its dealerships. Also on the program were farmers with extensive experience in the effective use of credit.

The conference also featured tours of the sponsoring company's manufacturing facilities at DeKalb, Il.

Upjohn to market mastitis treatment

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Quartermaster, a combination antibiotic formulation for treatment and prevention of Staphylococcus aureus mastitis infections in the dry cow, is now available exclusively from The Upjohn Company.

Hamilton Pharmacal Company, Division, West Agro-Chemical, Inc., and The Upjohn Company recently concluded an agreement whereby Upjohn has been selected to be the exclusive marketer for Quartermaster. Quartmaster is an Rx product available only from veterinarians.

Gerald A. Welch, division vice president of Upjohn's Agricultural Unit, said Quartermaster puts the company into the position of having two dry cow products — Quartermaster and Drygard — and Special Formula 17900 Forte, a procaine penicillin-novobiocin formulation for lactating cows, available to the veterinary profession.

"Upjohn's product line will enable veterinarians to offer their clients a more complete mastitis treatment program," Welch commented.

Each 10 ml syringe of Quartermaster contains 1 million units of micronized Procaine Penicillin G and 1 gm of micronized Dihydrostreptomycin Sulfate in an extended action base for longterm treatment.

The value of using Quartermaster as part of an effective mastitis control program was demonstrated in a three-year trial conducted by Cornell University researchers. The test involved 1,973 infected quarters on 24 commercial dairy farms. Trial participants followed a mastitis control program which included udder sanitation, treatment/culling of severely affected cows, and infusing all quarters of all cows at drying-off with Quartermaster.

Trial results showed that when infected animals were placed on this program, infection rate dropped from 28.1 percent of the quarters to 7.1 percent — a 92.9 percent recovery or elimination of infected quarters.

Another well-controlled field study conducted by The Upjohn Company confirmed the efficacy of Quartermaster in reducing frequency of Staph. aureus mastitis infections. Results showed that Quartermaster eliminated 72 percent of Staph. aureus infected quarters, compared to elimination of infection in 34 percent of non-medicated control cows.

Jan. 15 set as opening for new Purina plant

St. Louis, Mo. — Tom Potterfield, Director of Operations, North Atlantic Area, for Ralston Purina Company's Chow Division has announced that the Company's new Chow manufacturing facility, now under construction in Lancaster will be completed and on stream by Jan. 15.

According to Potterfield, "Our new Chow plant will utilize all the latest manufacturing equipment and techniques. We are pleased with the progress made here in Lancaster County and the tremendous support we have received from the community. For that, we are especially grateful."

As announced earlier, the new plant will employ approximately 15 people and have an annual production capacity of 150,000 tons of Chow feed products per year.

Construction continues on new Purina Chow manufacturing plant at Lancaster.

Now you can process whole cob earcorn and fill a structure using one machine and one tractor.

Badger's Earcorn Blower Mill handles wet, shucky, even frozen earcorn. The unique crusher unit shells corn and shreds the cob ahead of the rollers which crack the kernels and reduce the cob further. No troublesome screens to change or slow down the capacity. It comes with 8-foot hydraulic intake auger. The intake auger swings to the rear for transport and may be operated at any angle from rear to side. Now available with husk shredder for unwanted husks in the corn.

Other mills available with tilting auger discharge and other options.

Agway offers program to hike wheat yields

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — A new breakthrough in crop management practices aimed at maximizing profitability per acre on wheat is now available to Northeast farmers, according to Dr. David Pieczarka, plant pathologist for Agway's Crops services divisions.

The new Integrated Crop Management (ICM) program includes combining adapted seed varieties, increased fertilization rates, fungicides, a growth regulator into a complete "package" for use by farmers.

"We saw good results in our ICM wheat demonstration tests this year," says Pieczarka. "We expect yields of over 100 bushels per acre from actual farm operations next year.

Working with scientists from two agricultural companies, Mobay and Union Carbide, the crop specialists at Agway have adapted small grain growing techniques from England to a cropping program which includes the control of powdery mildew disease in wheat with fungicide Bayleton and the control of lodging in the high yielding wheat fields with Cerone, a growth regulator which shortens and stiffens the stem of the wheat plant grown under high fertility.

During the 1982 growing and harvesting season, farmers, research scientists, and extension personnel have visited twelve farms where 20-acre controlled experiments with winter wheat were seeded last fall.

Dr. Pieczarka says many farmers are showing interest in Agway's ICM program this fall. He emphasizes that the combination of increased fertility, especially nitrogen, and the timely application of the fungicide Bayleton and growth regulator Cerone, at the proper stages of growth in the spring are essential for maximum yields and profitability.

"You can't use just part of this program and expect it to work," Pieczarka says. "Trying to increase yields with heavier fertilization without controlling powdery mildew and lodging can actually cut yields rather than increase them," he warned.

University Researchers in Maryland, New Jersey and at Penn State have been working with the fungicide application and growth regulars for several seasons. Where powdery mildew and lodging is a problem, proper application has increased yields substantially.

Dan Bailey, marketing manager for Agway's crop services division sees potential for increasing profitability in small grain production in Pennsylvania using the new ICM program.

"Agway is providing leadership for farmers to use this program in the coming wheat growing season," he says.

"Crop Specialists are providing on-the-farm assistance to help farmers achieve formerly unattainable high yields."

Agway, a farm supply and food marketing cooperative active in the Northeast, is a leader in applying the latest technology to actual farm conditions. The aim is to maximize profits for its farmer-members. Agway has 110,000 members throughout 12 northeastern states.

In addition to its farm research center at Tully, N.Y., Agway conducts hundres of field trials on member farms throughout the Northeast each year, comparing crop varieties, fertilizer rates, pest control measures and other crop management programs.

Inter-State holds Holly open house

MT. HOLLY SPRINGS — Holly Milk Cooperative, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, has scheduled an open house for its recently upgraded wastewater treatment plant, Thursday afternoon, October 21.

The facility uses activitated sludge to treat water. In this process, millions of microorganisms eat the organic materials present in the wastewater. According to general manager Rod McLeod, 90 percent of Holly's water contains milk byproducts. The 5-year-old plant is capable of processing two million pounds of milk a day.

In other IMPCO news, the milk co-op has announced four more district meetings scheduled for October.

The District 2 Woodstown, Salem and Bridgeton locals in southern New Jersey will hold their annual dinner meeting Tuesday, October 12 at the Elmer Grange Hall, Pole Tavern Circle, starting at 7 p.m.

Also on Tuesday, October 12, the District 16 Cumberland County Local will gather at the Newville Fire Hall at 7 p.m.

The District 2 Burlington County Local will hold its annual dinner meeting Wednesday, October 13 at 7 p.m. at the Vincetown Grange Hall, Vincetown, New Jersey.

On Thursday, October 14 the District 24 Biglerville and East Berlin locals will assemble at the York Springs Fire Hall at 7 p.m.

Farmtronix introduces Cow Calendar system

SHERIDAN, Wy. — Farmtronix introduces Cow Calendar, a new record keeping option available for the Dairy-Tronic Computerized Feeding System for the 60-250 cow dairy.

The Cow Calendar will track each cow through her entire cycle, from freshening (or servicing) and provide printed summary records for each cow. In addition, the Cow Calendar will provide individual printed reports such as, Heat Alert List, Service/Pregnancy Confirmation List, Pregnancy Check List, Dry Off List, Steam Up List, Status Code List, Single Cow History and entire Herd History.

Located in Sheridan, Wyoming, Farmtronix designs and manufacturers electronic computerized feeding systems and a complete list of components, feeders and hoppers for free stall, free-standing and stanchion feed setups, including dual-ration feed stations and multiple feed hoppers, engineered for efficiency and accuracy in ration handling. Farmtronix is a joint venture between Electro Dynamics, Inc., a Wyoming Corporation, and Chek-Tech, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Ralston Purina Company.

Farmtronix has a Distributor/Dealer Sales and Service Network in the continental United States and Canada. All service technicians are factory trained. All Farmtronix products feature add/on capability for future products.

All Farmtronix components, hoppers and feeders for their computerized feeding systems come with a comprehensive factory warranty with an extended warranty plan available.

N.Y. Cattlemen's market exchange "working"

BAINBRIDGE, N.Y. — The Market Exchange initiated June 1 by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association to bring sellers and buyers of cattle in contact with each other is "on target" according to a three-month evaluation presented to the executive council of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association at its quarterly meeting.

Market Exchange Coordinator Helen Patton of Bainbridge reported 40 cattlemen have listed a total of 426 available cattle with the Exchange. She said two-thirds of the counties in the state are represented as are almost all beef breeds. Listings include purebred and commercial breeding cattle, feeders, finished cattle, and animals suitable for 4-H projects.

Peter Nixon of Westfield who chaired the Market Exchange evaluation said, "The program is working.

Persons wishing to buy cattle may contact the Market Exchange at 607/967-7261 Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon and Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. Persons wishing to list cattle for sale with the Market Exchange may contact Pattor during these same hours.

Internat'l Stockmen's school coming Jan. 2-6

PETIT JEAN MT., Ark. — Henryk Jasiorowski, director of cattle breeding at Warsaw Agricultural University, will be the featured international lecturer at the 1983 International Stockmen's School sponsored by Winrock International Jan. 2-6 in San Antonio, Texas.

The former president of Warsaw Agricultural University and former director of animal production and health for the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations in Rome will lecture on global livestock production systems and on cattle breeding. Some of his lectures will be based on ten years of evaluation of cattle in Poland produced from semen of bulls from 10 other countries and the U.S. He is one of almost a dozen lecturers at the school who will be presenting papers on international topics.

The 1983 Stockmen's School, designed to help producers of beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep, goats, and horses increase the productivity and profitability of their enterprises, will offer increased opportunities for exchanges between U.S. stockmen and scientists and their colleagues from other countries, according to Frank Baker, director of the school.

Other international lecturers will include H.K. Baker, director of operations of the British Meat and Livestock Commission, who will speak on animal welfare and on cattle breeding; Martin Gonzalez of Mexico, president of a private consulting firm and past international president of the Range Management Society, who will speak on range management and improvement practices; and John Stewart-Smith of Alberta, Canada, president of Beef-Booster Cattle Limited, who will speak on innovative cattle breeding, testing and marketing.

Manuel Ruiz of Costa Rica, head of animal production at the Tropical Agricultural Research Center, will speak on beef and dairy management systems in tropical environments; J. O'Shea of Cork, Ireland, a researcher with the Agricultural Institute, Fermoy Co., will speak on research of dairy management and on mastitis control; and Miguel Galina, professor of animal science at the University of Mexico, will speak on dairy goat nutrition and management and on sheep production.

In addition, a number of U.S.-based researchers will lecture on international topics, John De Boer of Winrock International, formerly on the faculty of the University of Queensland, Australia, will speak on the competitive position of Australian beef in the U.S. market, and R.L. Baker of the University of Illinois, a New Zealand native and formerly a geneticist with the Raukura Research Station in New Zealand, will speak on cattle and sheep breeding and improvement.

Allen Tillman, a retired Rockefeller Foundation researcher formerly with the University of Gadjah Mada, Indonesia, will speak on protein and mineral nutrition of cattle, and Ned S. Raun, vice president of Winrock International, formerly with the Center for Tropical Agricultural Research in Cali, Colombia, will speak on tropical cattle production and management.

In all, four All-Time Greats, and 85 lecturers, including livestock producers, government leaders, scholars, and agribusiness specialists, will speak at the four-day school. Textbooks on beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and goats, and horses, including all lectures will be available. The abstracts will be available in both English and Spanish editions.

The International Stockmen's School was founded in the early 1940s by M.E. Ensminger and was transferred from the Agriservices Foundation to Winrock International in late 1981. Winrock International is a non-profit, publicly-supported research and education corporation which emphasizes serving people through animal agriculture.

For more information on the 1983 school and for registration forms, write Frank H. Baker, director, International Stockmen's School, Winrock International, Route 3, Morrilton, Arkansas, 72110.

PFA lauds bill to increase U.S. food at overseas military bases

CAMP HILL — The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association is supporting a resolution and legislation introduced by Congressman James Nelligan (R-11th Dist.) this week to increase the use of American-produced food at overseas U.S. military bases.

PFA president Keith Eckel said, "We welcome and encourage any positive efforts to improve our farm economy. Net farm income is dropping for the third straight year and agricultural exports are expected to decline for the first time in 12 years. Meanwhile supplies of some commodities continue to outpace demand.

"Congressman Nelligan's proposals would open export markets for American agricultural products which should rightfully be ours. At the same time it would help reduce trade deficits and save the taxpayers' money by reducing commodity storage costs."

House Resolution 600, introduced by Nelligan, would have the Secretary of Defense develop policies for the maximum feasible use of U.S. agricultural products at U.S. military installations overseas. It also calls for the Defense Secretary to devise new ways to use surplus farm commodities presently contained in Commodity Credit Corporation reserves.

H.R. 7165 would direct the Secretary of Defense to submit a report to Congress within six months on the use of U.S. agricultural products at overseas military bases and to make recommendations on how to increase that use.

Both measures have been referred to the House Armed Services Committee for action.

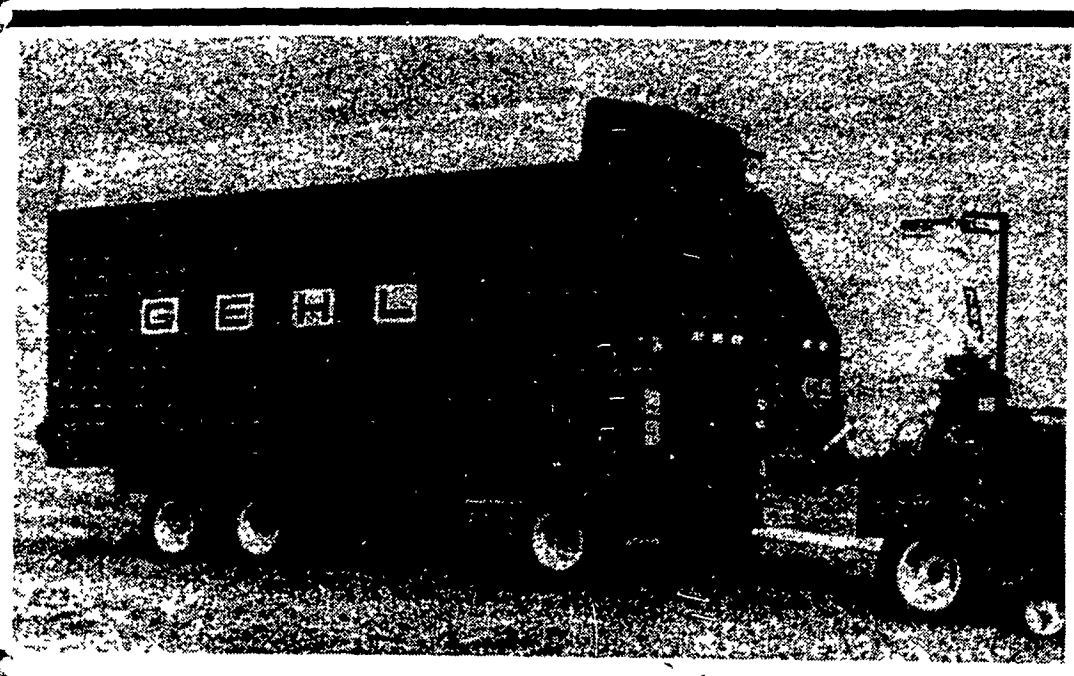
Delmarva poultry health meeting set Oct. 19-20

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Final details have been completed for the 17th National Meeting on Poultry Health and Condemnations which will be held at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City, Maryland Oct. 19 - 20. This annual event is expected to attract over 500 industry people from all over the nation.

Leading scientists and industry leaders are scheduled to cover many current health and processing topics with the latest findings. In addition, there will be presentations by representatives from the Food and Drug Administration and the USDA Inspection Service who will outline new and proposed regulation changes within their agencies.

For further details of the conference, contact Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., R 2, Box 47, Georgetown, DE 19947, 302-856-2971.



. . . the introduction of our new Gehl BU960 self-unloading forage box!

Our new, improved Gehl model 960 forage box is ready to order in three available sizes. The 14-foot unit features wood stakes and sides, while the 16-foot model offers both wood and steel stakes and sides. The all new 18-foot forage box is available with steel stakes and sides.

We've Put Good Ideas to Work with an all-new look and several refinements on our new 960 box. The 20-inch cross conveyor has been lowered three inches for easier unloading with a full eight inches extending beyond the box side for better silo positioning. A totally new designed roof, non-wrap beaters and the addition of steel to the main sills provide extra strength and durability to our new self-unloading unit. And the three-speed worm gear drive with two operating speeds and one sweep speed unloads crops quickly, easily with less time and spillage at the silo.

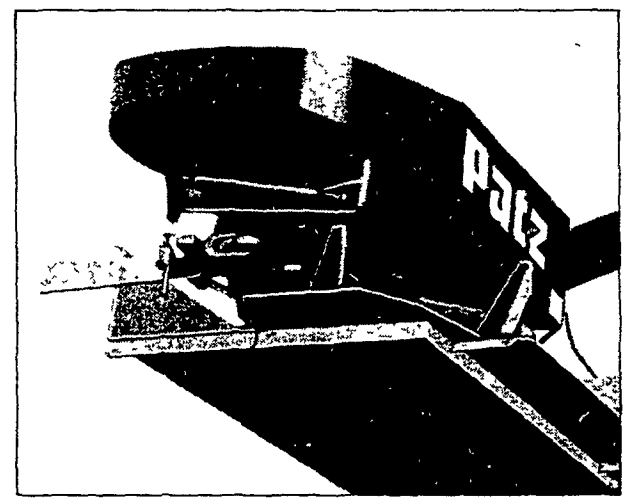
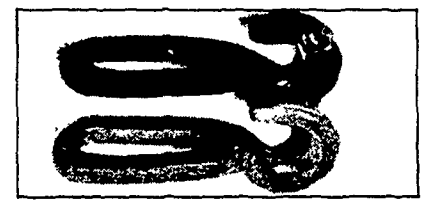
THE PATZ SOLUTION:





Heavy-duty link (top) and extra heavy-duty link (bottom) for long chains and heavy loads.

Adapts to varied installation layouts.

Rugged, Dependable Gutter Cleaners

Patz makes gutter cleaners you can depend on year after year. The secret to Patz performance is the proven one-piece forged steel hook-and-eye link that lets you adjust chain length or replace links and flites by hand, without tools.

The all-steel slide and steel flites with wear shoes are engineered to withstand the rugged wear of everyday operation.

Thinking of stacking manure? Consider a Patz Tripod Supported Stacker or a Swinging Slide Stacker. You'll save with Patz because one motor and reducer run both the gutter cleaner and stacker.

Before you choose a gutter cleaner, take a close look at Patz. You'll find Patz performance means fewer problems for you, and more time to manage your livestock operation for greater profit.

Penn State workshop to examine sludge disposal

HARRISBURG — As the cost of disposing of sewage sludge safely and economically by conventional means (landfills or incineration) continues to rise, more and more municipal authorities are turning to a lower-cost alternative: recycling the sludge as farmland fertilizer.

Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service, aware that many municipalities are incorporating sludge in agricultural soils or considering this alternative, has scheduled a workshop to examine various aspects of this method of sewage sludge management.

The workshop will be held Oct. 13 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Grantville Holiday Inn, exit 28 on Interstate 81, northeast of Harrisburg.

Public and private sewage treatment plant operators and personnel, municipal officials and managers, farmers and the general public are invited to attend this workshop.

Topics to be discussed include:

— The development and interpretation of a diagnostic soil testing program for sludge sites;

— Small-scale sludge composting, an alternative sludge management procedure for wastewater treatment plants producing under 10 million gallons per day;

— Options available for operators and municipal authorities to improve community relations; and

The registration fee is $10 per person, which covers handouts, morning refreshments and lunch.

To preregister for the workshop, contact Richard Fox, Dauphin County Extension Office, Suite 101, 75 South Houcks Road, Harrisburg, Pa. 17109, telephone 717/652-8460.

Clearfield Co. man fills Grange post

HARRISBURG — A clearfield county man has been appointed as a special deputy for the Pennsylvania State Grange by State Grange Master Charles Wismer.

Gordon Harrell of Morrisdale will fill the newly created post of "Deputy for Fraternal Relations," effective Oct. 1. A plumbing and heating contractor, Harrell has been active in the Grange for most of his life. He currently serves as Pomona Master (county president) in Clearfield County, and as director for the newly formed Pennsylvania Grange Credit Union.

As Pomona Master, Harrell has consistently achieved a net gain in membership for his county, making Clearfield the second largest Grange county in the state. In addition, he has done membership work for the State Grange.

In his new office, Harrell will travel within the state to work with individual Granges on internal affairs and help to establish new Granges in Pennsylvania.

Cumberland Co. youth wins saddle

HARRISBURG — Steve Otto, of R8, Carlisle, through his outstanding work as a 4-H horse club member, has been named state winner of a saddle presented by Kutz Harness Shop, of 1184 Harrisburg Pike, Carlisle.

The saddle, with a retail value of $1,700, was presented to Otto by G. Richard Keim, shop owner, Oct. 2, at the State 4-H Horse Show in Harrisburg. The recipient of the prize was the 1982 state horse division winner in national 4-H awards competition. He was judged on his leadership ability, statewide 4-H activities, and project work.

Keim, who purchased the Kutz Harness Shop five years ago, said, that he contacted officials in Penn state recently to see if he could donate a saddle because of his interest in youth and their work with horses. He will make this award on a continuing basis.

"I've never seen a youngster that works with horses get into serious trouble," Keim added.

James Gallagher, Penn State Extension animal scientist and 4-H horse program coordinator, worked out the details that led to presenting a saddle to a worthy youth.

The harness shop owner also supports the Cumberland County 4-H horse activities and helps defray expenses for the county 4-H drill team to perform at various civic functions.

Keim, who termed his shop the largest business of its type in the East, sells all kinds of horse products, including western and English clothing and tack. He formerly raised and sold horses.

ATTENTION FARMERS

REDUCE FEED COSTS WITH

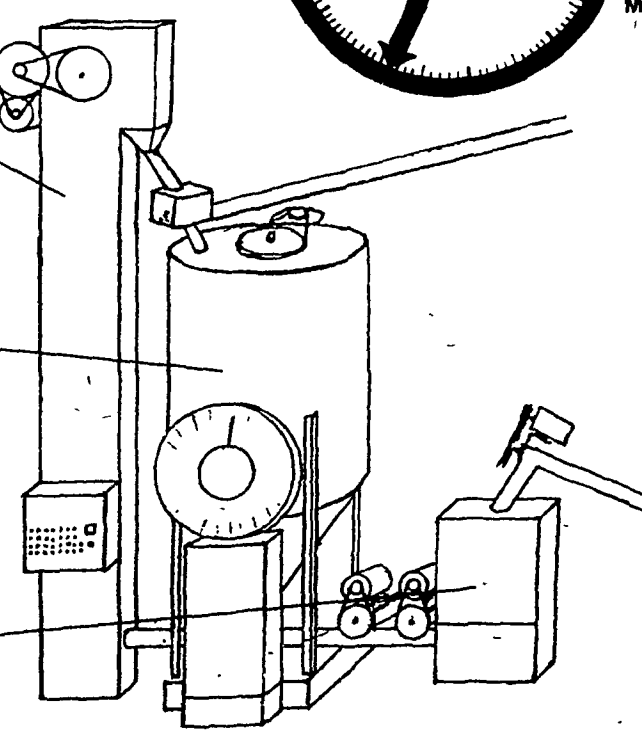
The Farm Size Milling System That Weighs Each Ingredient.

Master Mill™
Formerly Martin Automatic Milling System

BUCKET ELEVATOR
- Galvanized construction
- Low horsepower requirement

VERTICAL MIXER
- Galvanized construction
- Steep slope hopper eliminates feed channeling

HAMMER MILL
- Powerful magnets remove metal before entering grinding compartment



Safety circuits will stop the complete system if any part of the system malfunctions.

The Master Mill automatically grinds, mixes and delivers up to 5 different rations to your bins as needed. Ground corn and up to 7 other ingredients are individually augered into the mixer to each prescribed weight. The rotation of feed through the bucket elevator and mixer auger thoroughly mixes all ingredients for 5 minutes. Discharge augers then deliver the feed to designated feed tanks.

The Timpte Twins are Tough.

Got Grain? Then get the trailers that are Timpte tough... the Super Hopper or the level floor Super Grain Trailer. They're not only built to take it... they're also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper and the level floor Super Grain Trailers are lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

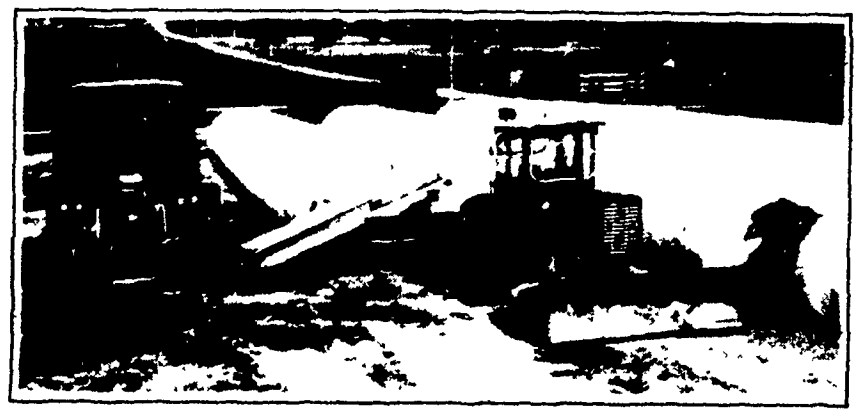
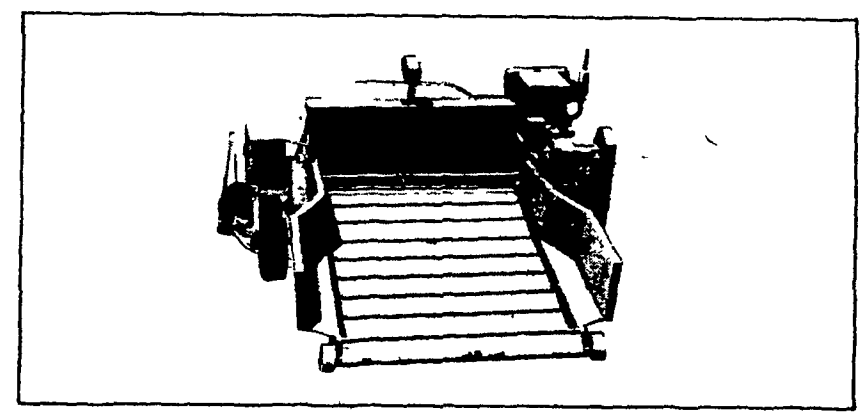
MORE FOR LESS.

The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM





MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG: "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage... Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage... a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help. I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing."

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made"... says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon.

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days."

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool"... says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska.

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs. to finish.

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration. I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements."

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain."

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed... I can guarantee at least that"... says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan.

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging. It's just like feeding grass. I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System..."

HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU

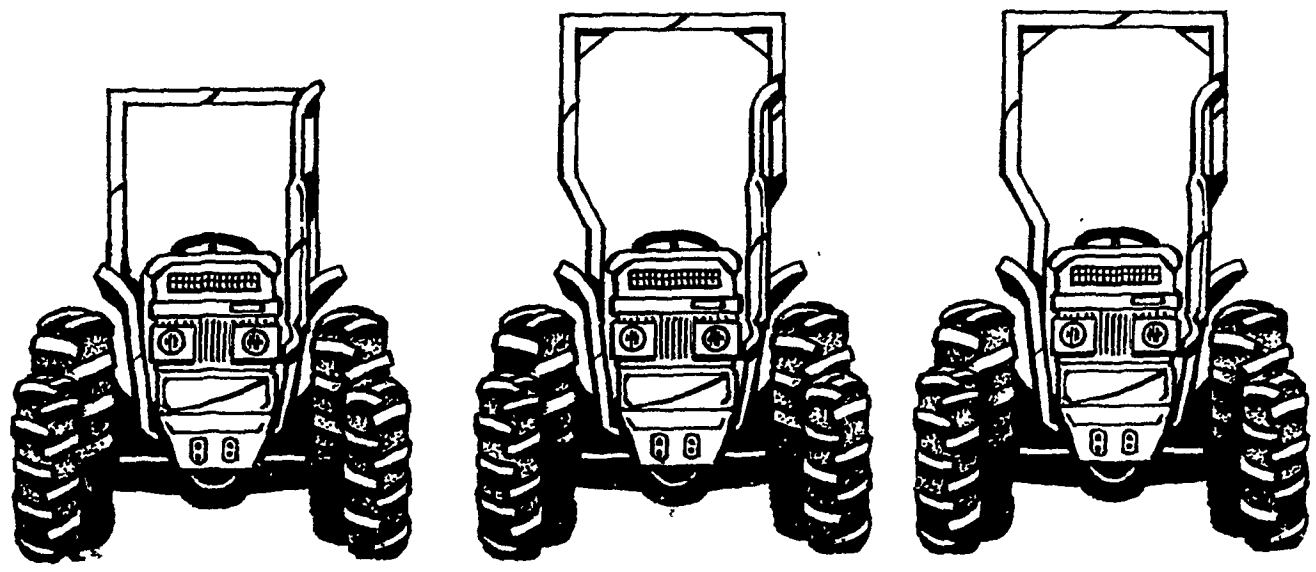
FARM ECONOMISTS.



The Kubota M Series tractors are built to carry a heavy workload. But not a heavy price.

They offer 47.4 to 72.2 PTO hp, independent PTO, power steering, plus position and draft control. And each one comes with an economical diesel engine. Which means you don't spend as much as you would on gasoline. Or tune-ups.

So put a Kubota M Series tractor to work. It's good for your economy.

Block sets '83 grain target prices

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block recently announced a 10 percent acreage reduction and a 10 percent paid land diversion for the 1983 feed grain program. Block also announced an additional $60 million allocated to the fiscal 1983 farm storage facility loan program beyond the $40 million originally allocated.

Block said current law requires for him to announce only a 10 percent acreage reduction and 5 percent paid land diversion program for feed grains. But, with such large supplies, he said an additional 5 percent paid diversion would help bring supply more in balance with demand.

"We must do everything possible to reduce carryover supplies and increase commodity prices, Block said.

Block said the per bushel target prices for 1983-crop fed grains will be: corn, $2.86; sorghum, $2.72; barley, $2.60; and oats, $1.60. Regular Commodity Credit Corporation price support loan rates, per bushel, will be: corn, $2.65; sorghum, $2.52; barley, $2.16; oats, $1.36; and rye, $2.25.

The signup for the 1983 feed grain program will be Oct. 1 through March 31. Producers may request 50 percent of their projected 1983 deficiency payments and 50 percent of their 1983 diversion payments when they sign up.

USDA estimates per-bushel deficiency payment rates will be; corn, 21 cents; sorghum, 20 cents; and barley, 15 cents. Advance deficiency payments to eligible farmers will be half these rates. Advance deficiency payments are not authorized for oats.

Land diversion payments have been established at $1.50 per bushel for corn and sorghum, $1 for barley and 75 cents for oats. The land diversion payment is based on the per bushel payment rate times the farm yield times the acres diverted.

Farmers who request advance diversion payments at the time they sign up for the 1983 program will receive a payment equal to half the established payment rates.

A producer who accepts an advance payment, but who later does not comply with program provisions, must refund the amount of the advance payment with interest. Interest charged will be the rate in effect for commodity loans on the date of the advance payment, plus 5 percentage points.

To be eligible for these benefits as well as for price support loans, a producer must agree to limit corn, sorghum, oats and barley acreage planted for harvest to not more than 80 percent of the farm's feed grain base.

As under the 1982 program, two bases will be established: one for corn and sorghum, the other for barley and oats.

Producers also must devote to conservation uses an acreage equal to both the acreage reduction and land diversion requirements.

Land designated for conservation use must have been devoted to row crops or small grains in two of the last three years except for a summer fallow farm, for which the cropping requirement is for only one of the previous two years. Mechanical harvesting is not authorized and grazing will not be permitted during the six principal growing months on the acreage taken from production, Block said.

The 1983 feed grain bases will remain the same as the 1982 feed grain bases with adjustment for crop rotation. Neither cross compliance nor offsetting compliance will apply to the 1983 feed grain program.

Block said USDA is delaying decisions on the 1983 feed grain reserve program until the domestic and world supply and demand situation is studied.

He said the additional $60 million for the farm storage facility loan program is necessary because record corn, wheat and soybean crops have created widespread tightness in storage availability.

Pa. steel shot zones continue

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Game Commission this week reminded waterfowl hunters that the steel shot zones in the state are continuing on a permanent basis.

Steel shot has been required since 1977 to hunt ducks, geese and/or coots in three locations in Pennsylvania. The areas are Crawford County, the Middle Creek Wildlife Management Area in Lebanon and Lancaster Counties, and on and within 25 yards of the Susquehanna River between Northumberland and the Maryland line.

Reduce calving interval of problem breeders

UNIVERSITY PARK— How soon should dairy cows be bred after calving? Michael L. O'Connor, Penn State Extension dairy specialist, says many dairy farmers spend too much time trying to shorten the breeding schedule of cows that already have optimum calving intervals.

"Reproduction management should be directed towards reducing the calving interval of those cows with a history of repeat breedings," he says.

The limiting factor to early breeding is the time is required for cow's uterus to return to normal breeding condition. The process of uterine recovery and repair is called uterine involution. During this tiem, the uterus returns to normal size and tone, the carnacles (points of placental attachment) regress, uterine tissue becomes less inflamed and fluids are absorbed.

In most cases, uterine involution is complete 30 days after calving. Several factors such as retained placenta, difficult birth, contamination at calving, calcium deficiencies in the blood, or poor health of the cow may affect the length of time to complete the process.

Researchers have found that breeding dairy cows at first standing heat 50 days after calving results in accpetable conception rates. Breeding before 50 days, however, tends to reduce conception.

O'Connor says breeding at 50 days should be preceded by a routine postpartum examination between 20 and 40 days after calving.

"Futhermore, dairy producers should concentrate on detecting early heats (before 40 days) on all cows so that onset of the next heat can be predicted. By anticipating heats, more cows will be bred on the first heat 50 days after calving," he adds.

MEAL-TIME
The programmed feeding system that cuts your No. 1 production cost

Now there's a way you can boost profits 20% or more. An entirely new way to feed hogs, Chore-Time's new MEAL-TIME Hog Feeding System feeds your hogs 2 or 3 programmed "meals" a day, giving them time to thoroughly digest and fully utilize their feed. The result — feed conversion improved 5% or more for an additional 15 to 20% or more net profit per pig.

Chore-Time offers 3 sizes of MEAL-TIME feeders with built-in waterers to properly fit all hogs and minimize feed wastage.

See us today and find out how you can profit from the Chore-Time MEAL-TIME System.

Update on the poultry industry

By Herb Jordan

Penn State Extension Poultry Specialist

Double your net income from layers

Handle 30 birds at random in any large cage layer house and examine them to learn what they need to reach maximum productive efficiency.

It is a simple task to learn to handle individual layers to diagnose their physical problems and their needs.

Look for the following and the diagnosis will follow:

✓ Sweet breath means the layer is healthy. If her breath is sour she is drinking dirty or polluted water.

If her breath is obnoxious with a bowel odor she is not regular and has an intestinal upset which will require feeders to be cleaned out and only fresh, high quality feed fed to birds. At this point a vitamin-mineral-electrolyte supplement may also help her. If this is fed through the water proportioner make sure it is calibrated.

✓ Molting two or more large primary wing feathers from one or both wings means she is lying 10 to 20 percent below normal and she may be laying too many thin shelled eggs.

✓ Face and beak showing yellowish color means she is reabsorbing yolk pigments as her yolk sacs degenerate and she is going out of egg production.

✓ White lesions inside the mouth means vitamin A deficiency due to capillaria worms, mycotoxin poisoning or some other disorder.

✓ Drainage from the nostrils, mouth or eyes means congestion like found in some respiratory infections — take these birds to the lab.

✓ Pinch the abdominal flesh lightly between the fingers. If the fat under the skin holds the fingers apart one inch or more than the layer is too fat and must be placed on a weight reduction program under the care of a nutritionist. An obsese abdomen with hard fat will prevent egg production.

✓ A fleshy protuberance on the beak means a dirty or poor debeaking job. Debeaking is a type of surgery and must be done with precision and cleanliness.

✓ Light or dark colored combs can mean one of several diseases of disorders so take four birds to the laboratory immediately.

✓ Liquid or urates draining out of the vent all over the abdominal feathers means a picked vent ring, cannibalism, a kidney disorder, digestive upset or mycosis.

✓ Lice can be seen on feather shafts as light brown insects with six legs about the size of a hyphen (-), while mites are darker or black below the vent on the feathers and half the size of a period. These must be treated by culling, sanitation, isolation and pesticides.

Look at every bird every day and handle 30 once a week. Then improve the environment, nutrition and/or management.

Specifications Subject To Change Without Notice

COMPARE: Price/Performance/Durability

If you want a tough, dependable 5' rotary cutter at an affordable price, look no further than the Bush Hog Squealer.

The Squealer's attractive price compares most favorably with cheaply-built, competitive models.

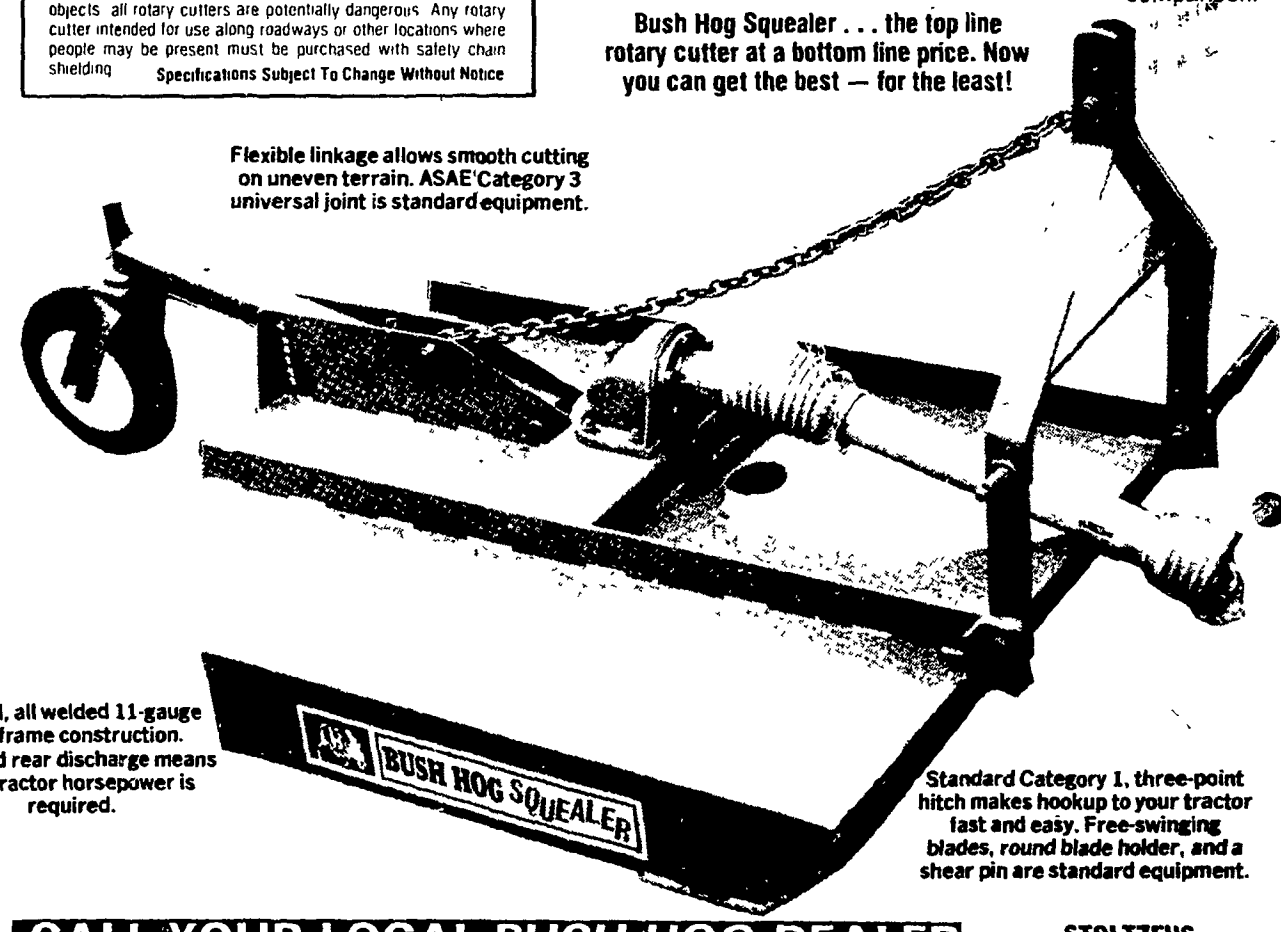
The Squealer is built for dependability — year after year.

The Bush Hog Squealer is a quality product from the industry leader . . . the number 1 choice with any standard of comparison.

Bush Hog Squealer . . . the top line rotary cutter at a bottom line price. Now you can get the best — for the least!

Flexible linkage allows smooth cutting on uneven terrain. ASAE Category 3 universal joint is standard equipment.



Rugged, all welded 11-gauge steel frame construction. Tapered rear discharge means less tractor horsepower is required.

Standard Category 1, three-point hitch makes hookup to your tractor fast and easy. Free-swinging blades, round blade holder, and a shear pin are standard equipment.

USDA proposes grain inspection fee increases

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing to increase some and lower other federal grain inspection fees and will hold a public meeting to discuss the changes, a USDA officials said.

The proposed increases — from 6 to 28 percent — are for original inspection, official weighing and supervision of weighing services in the United States and Canada. The proposed decreases are for supervision of truck inspections and protein reinspection.

The public meeting is scheduled for Oct. 13 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. in Room 1072-S of USDA's South Building, Washington, D.C.

"Even though the Federal Grain Inspection Service has significantly decreased expenditures this past year by more than $12 million, revenue still does not adequately cover the current or projected costs of providing most of the services," said Kenneth A. Gilles, administrator of USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service. "Basic fees under the U.S. Grain Standards Act have not been increased since December 1980."

In the past year, the Federal Grain Inspection Service has cut its workforce from 1,452 to 1,013, closed its five regional offices and five field offices, reduced travel costs and other discretionary expenses, Gilles said.

"We plan further cost reductions for fiscal year 1983, and we will continue to monitor costs and revenues to determine if fees are at the minimum level necessary to assure effective services," he said.

Under the proposal:

—Fees for providing inspection services under contract in the U.S. during regular workdays would be increased from $18.60 to $21.80 per hour and from $22 to $25.20 per hour for a non-regular — night, weekend and holiday — workday. In Canada, the fees under contract would increase from $24.40 to $26.80 per hour for regular workdays and from 28.40 to $31 for non-regular workdays.

—Travel time for U.S. service would be charged at the rate of $24.20 per hour for regular weekday schedules and $28 for non-regular workdays. In Canada, the rate would be $37.80 per hour for regular workdays and $44.40 for non-regular workdays.

Under the proposal, USDA also would:

—Assess a fee each time a reinspection, appeal inspection or review of weighing is performed, regardless of a material error determination; and

—Assess fees on a per-unit sample basis for all reinspections or appeal inspections, and an additional fee for sampling if the reinspection or appeal inspection is based on a new sample.

USDA is also proposing to assess:

—Hourly fees, rather than a per-unit carrier fee, for some original inspection services;

—A separate fee for travel time and costs for special services related to original inspection and official weighing and all appeal and reinspecton services perfomed more than 20 miles from a service representative's assigned duty station;

—A fee for standby time when it is not feasible to reassign a service representative to perform service at a different location;

—A fee for all equipment and scale testing services; and —"Factor only" inspection fees for a maximum of two factors for USDA supervision of official state and private agencies.

USDA is proposing also to reduce fees for supervision of truck inspection and protein reinspection services provided by official state and private agencies. Truck inspections would decrease from $1 to 75 cents and protein reinspection from 75 cents to 25 cents.

Gilles said the proposed changes were endorsed by the Federal Grain Inspection Service Advisory Committee as a proposed rule.

The proposed fee schedule was published in the Sept. 20 Federal Register. Written comments should be sent by Oct. 20, in duplicate, to Lewis Lebakken, Jr., Regulations and Directives Unit, FGIS, USDA, Rm. 1636-S, Washington, D.C. 20250. Telephone 202-382-0231 Balanced nutrition: the surest way to a bigger milk check.

Help yourself to a bigger milk check by making your dairy rations from homegrown feedstuffs and Vigortone dairy pre-mixes. You keep out-of-pocket costs down and encourage better milk production, when building rations fresh right on your farm. Vigortone assures the proper levels of vitamins, calcium, phosphorus and other minerals necessary for top milk yields.

Vigortone helps dry cows, too.

Balanced nutrition during a cows' dry period can reap big rewards at calving time and during her next lactation. Feed Vigortone's economical dry cow pre-mixes and see the difference in your milk records. Let your Vigortone dealer show you how to save on feeding costs and promote top milk yields.

Double cropping forages offers high quality emergency feed

ST. PAUL, Min.. — Double cropping of forages offers livestock producers in the upper Midwest and Northeast a promising system to produce high quality feed and more fully utilize land and facilities.

A combination of barley grown and harvested early as silage followed by another forage for fall grazing has provided high yields of good quality forage in research here by agronomist Gordon C. Marten, USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

The system would fit well, Marten says, where dairy and beef cattle producers have year-around silage storage facilities. It offers an excellent way to meet emergency forage needs following winter kill of such perennial forages as alfalfa or in a cropping system where a perennial may be inappropriate, he says.

The early harvest of a small grain crop as silage also greatly reduces the risk of crop loss because of wind, rain and hail, he says, and enables livestock producers to more fully utilize labor, equipment, and storage before harvesting corn as silage later in the season.

Marten compared yields and quality of small grain crops grown and harvested as forage. Assisted by graduate student J.H. Cherney, he found that barley usually yields more forage dry matter, digestible dry matter, and crude protein than do oats, wheat, or triticale. This led to a close examination of barley as a first crop in a double cropping annual system. It also led to a study, now in progress, to find out how good a companion crop barley may be compared to oats.

In double cropping forage, Marten says barley must be planted as early as possible in the spring and harvested for silage at least by June 20 under Minnesota conditions. Barley will then be in the boot or early heading stages depending on the year. A second crop is then planted immediately.

Besides Sudangrass and annual ryegrass, Marten and R.M. Jordan, University of Minnesota ruminant nutritionist, are studying soybeans, cowpeas, turnips, forage rape and the common weed kochia as potential second crops for grazing in August through October Marten equates the feed value of barley silage harvested at the boot stage with that of top grade alfalfa, whereas that harvested at dough stage is considerably lower — equal to third or fourth-grade alfalfa. This quality loss is caused by increased lignification of stem tissue between boot to dough stages.

"The leaf doesn't change that much with maturity," he says, "but the stem changes very dramatically as it accumulates lignin. Lignin ties up the cellulose and hemicellulose in the stem and is itself indigestible. This makes lignin the primary culprit that causes overall loss of quality as the plant matures, even though grain is accumulating at the same time."

Nat'l Broiler Council president addresses DPI

GEORGETOWN, Del. — George B. Watts, president of the National Broiler Council, will be the featured speaker at the annual meeting of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. on Tuesday, Oct. 12. The meeting is to be held at the Delmarva Power and Light Company auditorium in Salisbury at 7:30 p.m.

Watts will discuss "The National Broiler Council and Issues Facing the U.S. Broiler Industry." Watts, a native of Georgia, spent seven years as a legislative assistant for Georgia Congressmen in Washington assisting with their work on the House Agriculture Committee. Since 1972, he has been president of the National Broiler Council in Washington.

Other business to come before the annual DPI meeting will be the election of officers and directors of the association for 1983. All DPI members and other interested persons are invited to attend.

U.S. Senate Ag Committee adopts Helms Pesticide Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Committee on Agriculutre, Nutrition, and Forestry, last Wednesday unanimously voted to adopt extensive amendments to the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act, also known as FIFRA. The provisions reported out of committee as a substitue for H.R. 5203 are esstentially those contained in S. 2620, introduced by Senator Jesse Helms June 10.

Committee Chairman Helms said, "The bipartisan support for the legislation demonstrates the balance we have struck in providing sound and effective regulation of the agricultural chemical industry."

Helms said the bill is important for two reasons. "First, it provides for changes in a complex regulatory program that are necessary to maintain a system of free enterprise for the agricultural chemcial industry and farmers. Healthy competition among pesticide producers is necessary to ensure the continued investment of capital into the development of new pesticides that are both safe and effective. We must continue to allow the development of products that are vital to the health agriculture and the American people."

Senator Helms was careful to point out the fact that the legislation would not "in any way reduce the ability of the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to keep unsafe chemicals off of the market."

Second, Helms said the legislation is necessary to prevent the continued borrowing of American technology which creates unfair foreign competition for American industry. "This legislation will protect American jobs in American industry by protecting our industry from unfair foreign competition," said Helms.

Specific provisions of the bill include:

Registration — The bill extends from 10 to 15 years the basic period for exclusive use for some types of registration data filed with the Environmental Protection Agency. The 15-year period of exclusive use is also applied to "additional data" requested by EPA to support an existing registration.

The bill would also terminate EPA's policy of requiring registration applicants to cite all relevant data in EPA's files, and would phase out, by 1993, the current authority for registrants to use some data submitted by other companies if compensation for the use is paid.

Protection of Trade Secret Data — The bill retains the current ban on release of trade secret information by EPA except that it allows states to obtain some trade secret information. For information to be given trade secret protection, a data submitter must designate it as such and explain the basis for the designation when the data is first submitted.

The bill also allows registrants 60 days to designate information previously submitted to EPA as trade secret. Failure to do so will result in the release of all data to the public.

EPA may release to the public all health and safety data, except for trade secret information, subject to reasonable conditions on further copying, publication, and transfer of the data by persons who receive it. Otherwise, the data could be freely used and discussed.

The bill prohibits EPA from releasing any information to pesticide producers or persons representing or working for them, and to foreign nationals who will remove the data from the U.S. without the consent of the data submitter.

EPA may not make public any information received from a foreign government if that government requires confidential treatment as a condition for providing the information. Also, the bill allows EPA to disclose data, other than trade secret information, to foreign governments subject to an agreement with that government restricting further disclosure and use.

The bill authorizes enforcement of the data disclosure through civil suit and through civil or criminal action of EPA.

Other Provisions — The bill would continue the authority of states to regulate the sale and use of pesticides and would clarify that this authority is specifically reserved to the state government.

The bill establishes procedures for states to acquire health and safety data in addition to that needed for EPA registration. The bill also establishes time limits for the processing of applications that do not involve a special local concern within the states, and provides for judicial review by federal district courts.

The bill makes it unlawful for an employer to take adverse employment action against a person because that person exercised any rights under FIFRA.

The bill extends the term of the Scientific Advisory Panel of the EPA for 10 years, through September 30, 1992.

The bill reauthorizes the FIFRA Program for two years.

Hog inventory lowest since 1975

HARRISBURG — Inventory of all hogs and pigs on Sept. 1 in the 10 states conducting quarterly hog surveys is estimated at 41.6 million head. This number is 12 percent below last September and 15 percent less than Sept. 1, 1980, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The 10 quarterly states are Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina and Ohio. This is the lowest Sept. 1 inventory for the 10 states since 1975.

Breeding inventory at 5.55 million head is 13 percent less than year ago and 15 percent below two years earlier, the second lowest breeding inventory during the past 10 years. Market hog inventory, at 36.1 million head is 12 percent below last year and 15 percent less than in 1980. This is the lowest Sept. 1 market hog inventory since 1975.

The June-August 1982 pig crop was 16.2 million head, 11 percent less than last year and 10 percent below two years ago. There were 2.19 million sows that farrowed during June-August, a decrease of 11 percent from a year ago and 13 percent from the same period two years ago. Sows farrowing averaged 7.39 pigs per litter compared with 7.37 last year and 7.18 two years ago.

Hog producers in the 10 quarterly states intend to farrow 2.17 million sows during September-November of this year, 10 percent less than during the comparable period in 1981 and 17 percent less than two years ago. Farrowing intentsions for December 1982-February 1983 quarter are 1.90 million head, four percent below the same period a year earlier and 13 percent below two years ago.

236 HEAD OF REGISTERED & HIGH GRADE HOLSTEIN DAIRY CATTLE 236

Consisting of 136 head of mature cows, 40 of which are 1st & 2nd calf cows. Approximately 25 head have freshened in past 60 days, 25 dry cows with balance in different stages of lactation. Many cows with records over 15000 lbs. milk with at least 10 head with over 20,000 lbs. of milk and 750 lbs. fat. 100 head of calfhood vac. heifers of which 40 are of breeding age, 26 head 6 to 9 months of age, 20 head of started heifers, balance are bred heifers bred to freshen from sale date to spring. All are dehorned and have extra teats removed.

This is an excellent home-raised herd including 2 heifers, one Arlinda Chief and one Ivanhoe Star with an index of 1207 and 1297, out of artificial breeding by mostly Sire Power breeding using such sires as: ELEVATION, ASTRONAUT, ARLINDA CHIEF, MARVEX, JEMINI, GAY IDEAL, IVANHOE STAR, and others. There are 40 Registered mature cows, 30 Registered heifers and approx. 100 head of Identified Grades. Herd Bangs & T.B. tested within 30 days of sale; pregnancy examined by Vet. with Lepto & IBR shots. Official D.H.I.A. records and catalogs at ringside.

This is an exceptional herd out of artificial breeding and bred back artificially, some safe in calf to Chairman. These cows are milking well and showing a lot of potential to the good dairyman. Don't miss this sale!

Sale held in tent. Pedigrees by: Henry Kettering
Notice: Sale order of cattle–Heifers selling first followed by Dairy Herd.

Purina BIO-MITTENT™ Lighting Program

The Bio-Mittent™ Lighting Program

The Purina® Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is a unique lighting program for pullets and layers which saves energy and money without adversely affecting growth or egg production. It supplies pullets and layers with 15 minutes of light and 45 minutes of darkness each hour they receive light under a standard lighting program. This intermittent lighting program resulted from the discovery that chickens will grow and produce well when supplied 15 minutes of light per hour instead of 60 minutes.

Potential Bio-Mittent Lighting Savings Per Cycle
For John Smith Egg Farm, Inc.

No. of light bulbs	350	Feed price=$180/ton=$.09/lb.		Timeclock	$120

Why Bio-Mittent Lighting Works

Bio-Mittent Lighting works because short periods of light repeated often are interpreted by the chicken as constant light. The chicken's hormonal reproductive control system does not recognize darkness unless she is without light over 3 hours. Thus, the dark periods are never perceived as such by the hen's system. For Bio-Mittent Lighting to provide maximum benefits, light tight housing is required. In non-light tight houses, electrical savings are realized but feed savings are slightly less. In open-sided housing, the advantage is only electrical savings. However, this still can be significant.

Bio-Mittent Lighting for Pullets

The function of a pullet lighting program is to control sexual maturity. As with a standard lighting program, on the Bio-Mittent Lighting program pullets receive constant light from 1-14 days of age. Afterwards, until 20 weeks of age, the Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is implemented. The intermittent pattern of 15 minutes light/45 minutes darkness per light hour is used during the time lights are normally used.

Bio-Mittent Lighting For Layers

When the hours of light are increased to stimulate onset of lay, constant light should be initiated and continued through 36 weeks of age. At which time, layers can gradually be phased onto Bio-Mittent Lighting. Intermittent lighting is continued throughout the laying cycle and can be used in the second cycle with comparable savings, if the flock is molted.

*Tests were conducted at Purina Research Farm with commercial White Leghorn strains of hens lighted 15 hours per 24 hour day.

Number of minutes of light:number of minutes of dark per light hour. Birds were grown under the same lighting regimes as pullets using 8 light hours per 24-hour day. At 20 weeks, lights were increased to constant light for 13 hours and at 24 weeks to constant light for 14 hours. At 28 to 36 weeks, 15 patterns of designated light sequences were used.
